125 AMERICANS ARE WARNED TO EVACUATE ETHIOPIA WHILE DARKENING WAR CLOUDS CONTINUE TO GATHER

8 ADMINISTRATORS NAMED TO DIRECT GEORGIA WPA JOBS

State Divided Into Districts for Efficient Supervision of Vast Program of 881 Projects Given Approval of NEC.

MISS SHEPPERSON TO STEER PROGRAM

Conference of District Heads Called Tomorrow To Receive Instructions on Launching Projects.

District works progress administrators who will supervise the expenditure of $10,256,603, Georgia's initial allotment for works projects from the $4,880,000,000 works relief fund, were announced yesterday by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, WPA administrator for Georgia.

The state has been divided into eight districts by Miss Shepperson and a district administrator assigned to each. These men, all of them engineers and heretofore in the employ of the FERA, will supervise the carrying out of approved projects and will receive applications for new projects. They will work directly under Miss Shepperson.

List of Administrators.

The district administrators and the cities in which they will make their headquarters are as follows:

Robert C. Watkins, of Atlanta, in charge of the Atlanta district.

O. T. Ray, of Albany, in charge of the Albany district.

W. S. Dennis, of Griffin, in charge of the Macon district.

R. V. Glenn, of Milledgeville, in charge of the Savannah district.

Tom Gash, of Swainsboro, in charge of the Columbus district.

R. E. Williams, of Cornelia, in charge of the Marietta district.

H. A. Glass, of Athens, in charge of the Athens district.

John L. Peters, of Augusta, in charge of the Augusta district.

Shepperson in Charge.

At the same time, Miss Shepperson made it clear she will be in direct charge of the entire works program, with R. L. MacDougall, state engineer for the WPA, as projects supervisor.

"Applications for new projects will be made to the district administrators, who will submit them to me," she said. "I will discuss them with Mr. MacDougall and if he assures me they are worth while and meet with all requirements, I will forward them to Washington.

"If approved by Washington, the projects will be returned to me and I

Maj. Gen. Heintzelman Dies at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., July 6.—(UP)—Major General Stuart D. Heintzelman, Omaha, Neb., commander of the seventh corps area, died tonight at the army and navy hospital here.

The officer was brought here by plane early in June from his Omaha headquarters and had been confined to the hospital since that time.

Immediate cause of death was from complications that set in after an operation, attending physicians said.

Early Vote on Sewer Bond Issue Urged by Mayor and Councilmen

Need for Improved Sanitary System Pointed Out by Leaders; Atlanta Asked To Raise $1,000,000 To Match Federal Allotment of $4,599,079.

TWO-THIRDS VOTE NEEDED FOR ISSUE

Bond voting requirements are as follows:

1. Two-thirds of those voting in the election must vote for bonds in order to authorize the issue.

2. This two-thirds must represent a majority of those registered to vote.

3. Citizens may register and vote up to and on the date of the election. Payment of poll taxes is the only taxes which must be paid to register.

In other words if 21,000 are registered and the vote cast is 18,000, two-thirds of the latter, or 12,000 must vote for bonds for them to be authorized. The 12,000 would be a majority of those registered if 21,000 were on the records.

Mayor Key and virtually every one of the 38 members of general council yesterday were considering asking an early vote on authorization of $1,500,000 worth of sewer bonds in Atlanta to meet federal government proposals to completely modernize the sanitary sewer system and to make ample provision for storm water flow.

Atlanta is asked to pay only $1,000,000, half the actual cost of materials for the sanitary system, with WPA having already set up $4,599,079 for the other half of materials and for all labor costs.

City government heads were backed in their support of the move to provide the city's share of the undertaking by W. H. Edwards Jr., city sanitary engineer; William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction in charge of sewers; Clark Donaldson, chief of contruction, and many others who are familiar with the sewer problem and the urgency of relieving intolerable condition which now exist.

Other Improvements.

The mayor yesterday also favored providing about $62,929 asked by WPA for improvements to various city institutions for which the government agreed to expend $698,681.

"This bond issue should be voted and the city should take advantage of other improvements," Key said yesterday. "The city hasn't any money, but we cannot afford to pass this opportunity.

"It is a wonderful proposition for the city. The effects of having this huge sum of money put into our channels of trade is worth virtually all it will cost us even if we did not get lasting and much needed improvements.

"We have sidetracked the sewer emergency for a long time, but there is no need to delay it further. In fact things have reached such a point that we cannot delay any longer.

"I do not know how we will get the money to match the federal government's requirements for other projects, but it should be done. We cannot afford to lose this opportunity. It may never come again."

City Must Match Fund.

Spurred to action by the announcement of Robert L. MacDougall, state FERA and WPA engineer, that if the city fails to provide the funds for sewers the allocation will be withdrawn, Alderman Reynolds said he

DISBARMENT PLEA FILED AGAINST LEE

Boykin Asks Court To Act Against Bond and Share Company Lawyer.

Disbarment proceedings against Robert Lee, attorney for the defunct American Bond & Share Company, were begun yesterday when a petition signed by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and Ed Stephens, assistant solicitor, was filed in Fulton superior court.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey set the date of hearing at 9:30 o'clock July 27.

Lee, who is said to use the aliases of Robert E. Lee, Robert Stewart Lee and Robert E. Stewart Lee, was charged with unethical practice of law in Georgia and two instances were cited in the petition for disbarment.

"Manufactured" Case.

The first alleged that Lee, in an effort to show that "service agreements" of the American Bond & Share Company were not securities within the provisions of the Georgia securities laws, had simply manufactured a test case in the superior court of Tift county.

All in a single day, June 1, Lee rushed an entire proceeding through the superior court to the supreme court, it was charged. On that day, the proceeding was initiated and the process, service, rule nisi, answer, stipulations, hearing, order on interlocutory hearing, bill of exceptions, order thereon, service thereof and the final filing for the supreme court were completed.

It was the case of M. L. Dame,

ORGY OF SPENDING CHARGED TO BOARD

Longino Renews Attack on Majority Faction of Fulton Commission.

George F. Longino, Fulton county commissioner, launched another bitter attack against the majority faction of the county board yesterday, charging the "wild orgy of spending and extravagance," which he lays at the door of three board members, will wreck the county in a short time if it is not stopped.

"The budget was out of balance when the year started and I protested against it then. Since that time even that unbalanced budget has been exceeded every month," Longino asserted.

"If this spending is not ended, county employes will soon go payless —even the parasites who have been put on the pay roll in the last few months," he declared.

Asks Pay Roll Data.

Commissioner Longino yesterday had written the clerk of the commission to supply him with a comparative list of salaries paid employes, both old and new. He asked also for other information regarding county affairs.

The commissioner's statement came as a probe of county affairs was being planned. Last week the county commission, at Longino's insistence, voted to request the grand jury to investigate his charges of waste and extravagance, and that many unnecessary employes put on the pay roll since the majority faction came into office this year. The grand jury will probably start the investigation Tuesday.

"In 1928, which was the last year of Edwin F. Johnson's previous tenure as a commissioner, the board started the year with a $300,000 surplus and ended it with a $700,000 deficit.

"This meant that board spent $1,000,000 more than it had," Longino said.

Deficit Increasing.

"If this wild orgy isn't stopped, we will end this year with an even greater deficit. Every month it is being increased through this waste of money.

"Already the tax assessors are increasing assessments several times over in an effort to meet the increasing expenditures, but still the senseless spending goes on.

"I appeal to the county employes to join with the people of Fulton county to help stop this extravagance before the financial affairs of the county are wrecked. It took years to recover from the deficit of the year 1928, when Johnson was a board member before, and we will face a worse condition than that unless something is done," the commissioner said.

Adams Silent.

Dr. C. R. Adams, chairman of the board, declined to comment to newspapermen yesterday. He said he did not wish to make this a matter of "newspaper talk" and that he would say what he has to say about the charges in open meeting of the commission.

Commissioner Longino declared he was seeking definite information from the records of the board for his own

CONSTITUTION TILT CHOSEN BY F. D. R. FOR '36 CAMPAIGN

Roosevelt Will Subject Whole Program to Test by Supreme Court, Then Let Voters Decide Issue.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was believed at the capitol today to be pointing the New Deal determinedly into an epochal political and constitutional struggle.

Whatever uncertainty existed before was offset by his request for the house ways and means committee not to "permit doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable, to block" the Guffey coal bill.

Other developments this week also supported the prospect.

New Deal in Court.

With challenges of its enactments pyramiding in the courts, the administration finally saw the Wagner labor bill become law and progress of the social security and utility control bills toward the statute books.

Each had been attacked as unconstitutional. The parties divided on the votes.

Suits to annul them will take their place alongside those already pending against the AAA and TVA. Thus a broad range of New Deal philosophy will be reviewed by the supreme court, possibly in time to influence the 1936 campaign profoundly.

If the essential principles share the fate of NRA, and no other way can be found to effect them within the constitution, proposals to amend that instrument are expected.

If all should be sustained, "issues" now indicated would have less chance of realization.

Dispute to Grow.

In the months that must pass before the court acts, the current dispute over fundamentals of government is expected to grow. While the President has just broadened his objectives to include "wider distribution of wealth" through taxation, opposition to the New Deal centers the more on its alleged "un-Americanism."

Former President Hoover expressed it from the republican viewpoint July 4, saying "liberty" was threatened. Former Vice President Curtis suggested "save the constitution" as a rallying cry to regain the White House.

On the democratic side, Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, and former Senator Blease, of South Carolina, warned against federal usurpation of "states' rights." Senator Byrd, of Virginia recalled George Washington's advice that "the choice is between the constitution and confusion."

Frank support of much of the New Deal by republican independents in congress, however, showed they do not share the Hoover fears. Only today in Chicago Senator Nye, republican, Indiana, said "between Roosevelt and what the republicans are getting ready to put forward—a reactionary—Roosevelt is the way out for liberals.'

Coalition Possibility.

On the same day as the Talmadge speech in Georgia, Senator Russell, of that state, counseled "take no stock in the whispers of dictatorship and usurpation of power by the President."

In Virginia the first recorded "Roosevelt-for-Re-election" Club was organized tonight.

Intermixed in the situation are proposals to unify conservative opposition to the New Deal on the one hand and radical opposition on the other.

Talk of a coalition ticket on the "right" next year persists, with the American Liberty League mentioned as a potential rallying point. Its latest moved was to denounce the wealth tax program as an unsound "political gesture."

Forces of the "left," feeling that the New Deal does not go far enough, are seeking a basis for a third party movement.

Talmadge Renews Attack on AAA And New Deal in Carolina Speech

WALLBURG, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—Ignoring an attack upon him in unsigned circulars distributed before the meeting, Governor Talmadge of Georgia today denounced the policies of the national administration in an address to a farmers' rally here today.

The circulars were handed out by a man who declined to give his name but asserted he was acting for union labor.

They referred to the Georgia Governor as a "boll weevil" and a "destructive pest," who should be thrust back into the "hog wallow stockade like the one he used to imprison Georgia textile workers."

The audience was asked in the circulars to "boo" the speaker back to Georgia, but the suggestion was not followed by the crowd of about a thousand farmers which gave the Georgia chief executive a respectful hearing.

Non-Tax Association.

Sponsored by the North Carolina Non-Tax Association, composed of planters opposed to surplus product taxation, the address was delivered in a community that voted overwhelmingly a few days ago for continuation of the federal program of tobacco production control.

Discussing the "billions of dollars appropriated by congress to help business," Talmadge said none of it "has found its way into small loans." He added:

"Billions of dollars have been loaned to railroads. Other billions have been loaned to great industries, but in the rank and file of small business people, money is scarcer today than ever in the history of our government."

During abolition of all activities of

F.D.R. MAKES PLEA FOR GUFFEY BILL

Roosevelt Says Legislation Should Be Voted Despite Legality Doubt.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today exerted direct pressure on congress to speed passage of the Guffey coal stabilization bill, despite any "reasonable" doubt about the constitutionality of the measure.

He expressed that wish in a letter to Chairman Samuel B. Hill, democrat, Washington, of the house ways and means subcommittee before which the Guffey bill is pending. The letter was written after the President was informed that a majority of that subcommittee was against the measure. In it, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Manifestly,' no one is in a position to give assurance that the proposed act will withstand constitutional tests, for the simple fact that you can get not ten but a thousand differing legal opinions. . .

Situation Urgent.

"But the situation is so urgent and the benefits of the legislation so evident that all doubts should be resolved in favor of the bill, leaving to the courts, in an orderly fashion, the ultimate question of constitutionality.

"A decision by the supreme court relative to this measure would be helpful as indicating, with increasing clarity, the constitutional limits within which the government must operate. . .

"I hope your committee will not permit doubts as to constitutionality, however, reasonable, to block the suggested legislation."

Immediate reaction from both republicans and democrats was cautious and in most cases comment was privately expressed. But members of both parties were reminded of the press conference just after the supreme court held NRA invalid when the President said he thought that decision took the country back to horse and buggy days.

Open Protests.

His remarks were interpreted then as indicating that he would like a constitutional amendment giving the federal government greater power over business and industry. That suggestion brought open protest from some "state's rights" democrats.

The iimmediate, practical efforts to get the controverted bill out of the ways and means subcommittee were not prominently noticeable. Hill said it would be Tuesday night before his subcommittee could meet again, because of necessary work on the social security and wealth distribution tax bills.

The general belief, however, was that the democrats on the subcommittee—all "regulars"—would yield to the President's wishes.

The Guffey bill has been termed a

Separated for 40 Years, Woman Finds Kin Slain

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(UP)—An elderly woman who had been searching for her half brother for 40 years, found him today—murdered.

The woman, whose name police refused to reveal, timidly rapped on a rooming house door and asked if George F. Buchanan, 60, lived there. She clutched a newspaper clipping containing an advertisement seeking her whereabouts. The woman was led upstairs by the attendant. When the door to Buchanan's room was opened, the man was found slain.

Police said Buchanan had been beaten to death with his own hunting rifle. Robbery was apparently the motive.

CONGRESS IS SPLIT OVER WEALTH BILL

Temporary Dropping of Measure Seen in Inability To Agree on Scope.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Fast-expanding differences over the scope of the President's wealth-tax program prompted opposing predictions tonight it would be dropped temporarily and it would hold congress in session well into September.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, republican leader, forecast that congress either would recess and reconvene in the fall or enact the tax bill at the session beginning next January 3.

On the other side were house ways and means committee democrats, still sticking by their pledge to bring out a bill this session. They doubted, almost to a man, that final congressional action on the bill—not even drafted yet—could be obtained before the first week of September.

Push TVA Measure.

Simultaneously, plans went ahead to expedite other measures on the "must" legislative program. The house planned to take up Monday the controverted amendments to the Tennessee Valley Authority law.

The senate arranged to take up Monday and vote Tuesday on a motion by Senator Dieterich, democrat, Illinois, to concur in the house amendment, knocking out of the utilities bill the death sentence for "unnecessary" holding companies. Scheduled to follow that were the Wheeler water carrier, AAA amendment and omnibus banking bills.

In the house hearings were set for next week on the new "must" gold clause bill, while leaders hoped the Guffey coal stabilization and federal alcohol control measures would be ready for the floor by the week-end.

There was, too, a wide difference of opinion among house ways and means committeemen over what the wealth distribution tax bill should contain. Chairman Samuel B. Hill, democrat, Washington, of the tax subcommittee said he thought the measure should raise $350,000,000 to $500,000,000 annually.

Another leading democratic committeeman, who talked privately because he did not want to start a "fuss" with Hill, remarked he thought a bill raising $200,000,000 would be sufficient.

$600,000,000 Sought.

Hill said, however, that it would be difficult to raise $340,000,000 a year even by increasing taxes on all incomes over $100,000 and putting new levies on all inheritances above $50,000. Chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee had calculated that $340,000,000 would be raised by taxing only incomes above $1,000,000, inheritances over $300,000, gifts and corporation incomes.

Secretary Morgenthau told Harri-

LAPRADE ANSWERS M'BRAYER ATTACK

Presiding Judge of Minister's Trial Cites Law of Church on Subject.

The Rev. H. E. McBrayer's criticism of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for suspending him for his part in the recent repeal campaign yesterday drew a statement from Dr. W. H. LaPrade Jr., presding elder of the Augusta district of the church and an answer from Mr. McBrayer.

In his statement, Dr. LaPrade, who was judge at the recent church trial at which Mr. McBrayer was found guilty of gross imprudence and unministerial conduct, answered the McBrayer attacks and pointed out the law of the church covering the case. In his response to Dr. LaPrade's statement, Mr. McBrayer pointed out the differences between them.

At the same time, Mr. McBrayer announced receipt of the first out-of-town contribution for his new church, the Lakewood Heights Interdenomination church. It was for $5 from J. B. Miller Sr., naval stores man from Baconton, Ga. Accompanying his donation, Mr. Miller wrote:

"I am strongly convinced public opinion has exonerated you of any wrong doing during the prohibition campaign. I am heartily in sympathy with you for an interdenominational church."

The headquarters of the McBrayer campaign fund committee is located at 1630 Jonesboro road. The telephone number is Main 2918.

LaPrade Statement.

The statement of Dr. LaPrade follows:

"Since such wide publicity has been given to the case of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, against Rev. H. E. McBrayer, and since there has been so much misunderstanding and misrepresentation of the law and procedure of the church, at the request of the trial committee the following facts are made public:

"The Methodist church stands unequivocally against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor to be used as a beverage, whether it be done legally or illegally, and in paragraph 655 of our book of discipline the law of the church provides that any minister or member who engages in the sale or manufacture may be expelled for immorality. The same paragraph specifies four things which may be considered as aiding and abetting the sale of liquor, namely: signing peti-

WASHINGTON ACTS TO KEEP NEUTRAL

Afro-European Tension Provides Spur to Senate Munitions Committee on Arms Embargo Issue.

Events seemed to be marching Saturday irresistibly toward war between Italy and Ethiopia.

ADDIS ABABA—The American legation told 125 resident Americans to leave the country.

LONDON—Britain contemplated one more effort for peace, with little hope it would succeed. (See story in Page 4-A.)

PALERNO, Italy—Benito Mussolini, speaking to 12,000 blackshirts leaving for East Africa, said: "We have decided upon a struggle in which we . . . will not turn back."

ROME—Italy continued her warlike preparations. Mussolini's two young aviator sons signed up for service.

WASHINGTON—The Sate Department in effect has refused Emperor Haile Selassie's request to find some way to make Italy abide by the Kellogg anti-war pact.

AMERICANS ARE WARNED TO EVACUATE ETHIOPIA

ADDIS ABABA, July 6.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty-five Americans living in Ethiopia were advised today by their government to leave this war-threatened land.

Diplomatic quarters took the action to mean the United States—to which Emperor Haile Selassie appealed this week under the Kellogg anti-war pact—had virtually given up hope that Italy and Ethiopia would settle their differences peacefully.

Washington's reply to the emperor's appeal, which cited Italy's obligations under the 1928 pact outlawing war and asked that some way be found to make her abide by them, was received at the legation at noon.

There were indications its delivery to the foreign minister might be delayed until Monday.

$1,700 Pay Roll Taken In Holdup at Albany

ALBANY, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Two employes of a construction company told police they were robbed of a $1,700 pay roll here today by a man who wore a handkerchief over his face.

Ray Charles and Jack Collins were taking the money from a bank to the office of Worsham Construction Company when their motor car was overtaken by a man in another car. They said the man pointed a pistol at them, forced them to the curb and demanded the pay roll.

H. V. Blalock said he was a witness to the holdup, and that the handkerchief slipped once from the man's face. He described the robber as a man of sallow complexion, about 40 years old.

100-YEAR-OLD DOCTOR FETED BY HIS 'BABIES'

Many of 1,800 He Brought Into World Help Him Celebrate Birthday.

BETHEL, Ohio, July 6.—(AP)—Many of the 1,800 babies he brought into the world during 75 years of practice thronged Main street today to celebrate Dr. William Eberle Thompson's 100th birthday.

For one day, at least, the still-active centenarian attended no patients. Instead he received honors paid him by his fellow townsmen. The town weekly newspaper printed a special issue. Members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, to which he belongs, named a class of initiates in his honor. The Ohio State Medical Association sent its president, Dr. John A. Caldwell, of Cincinnati, to pay the respects of the profession.

"It is very kind of you to so honor my one-hundredth birthday anniversary," he said in a birthday message, "while my personal wish would be that I might spend this day with no more outward show of demonstration than any other day, I do appreciate the tribute which you wish to bestow upon a fellow citizen.

"It has been my happy privilege and choice to dwell among you throughout my life. It has also been granted to me to minister as a physician among you for more than 75 years. I have heard the first cry that many of you have made, and I have watched you grow from feeble infants into strong men and women.

"It was in this town where my home was established, where the relatives and friends of my youth lie buried. It is here that I am watching the setting rays of life's sun. It is your home and my home and we have just reasons to be proud of it."

ATLANTA'S 'OWN' UNIT PREPARING FOR CAMP

Two Weeks of Maneuvers at Fort McClellan Will Start on July 14.

The 122d infantry, Atlanta's own, will leave next Sunday for Fort McClellan, Ala., for its annual two-week period of summer training and maneuvers under the command of Colonel T. L. Alexander.

The unit, recently motorized, will make the trip to Alabama in a fleet of 40 trucks. The advance units, including the service company, will leave here Thursday to set up the camp. Three trips by the trucks will be required to get the 1,200 officers and men and their equipment to the Anniston camp.

Colonel Alexander is in charge of arrangements for the camp, assisted by Lieutenant Colonel Sion B. Hawkins and Captain Leckie Mattox, the regimental adjutant.

The two-week camp will be featured by war maneuvers on the flats surrounding Anniston, Sunday, July 21, has been designated as Georgia day, on which the regiment will pass in review before Governor Talmadge and Major General George Van H. Moseley, the fourth corps area commander. Mayor Key and a number of other state, city and county officials have been invited to the camp for the review.

"The trip this year ought to be one of the most outstanding training periods of the regiment's history," Colonel Alexander said yesterday. "It will be the first made by truck and I am sure that all of the men will be pleased with and benefited by the training period."

The 121st infantry, commanded by Colonel L. C. Pope, of Dublin, opens its annual encampment at Camp Foster, near Jacksonville, today. Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp went to Jacksonville last night to aid in the opening of the camp. Other units of the national guard will go into camp later at Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. C.

Stars For Benefits For Humane Society

Snowball and Sunshine, popular team of stage and radio entertainers, who will appear at the Atlanta Woman's Club on July 26 and 27 in benefit performances for the Atlanta Humane Society.

Humane Society Urges Support For Two Benefit Performances

Continued operation of the Atlanta Humane Society, with its shelter for stray or abandoned dogs and cats on Howell Mill road, depends entirely upon the response that animal lovers of the city make to the drive now in progress to raise the needed $2,500 it will cost for the remainder of the year.

Inability of the city or the county to give funds at this time will force the closing of the shelter and will leave every homeless pet at the mercy of police, who were ordered to kill all strays, or at the mercy of the fate that means slow starvation for these helpless creatures.

In an effort to raise all or a substantial part of the needed money a performance with the ever-popular radio team of Snowball and Sunshine as the stars will be given at the woman's club auditorium on Peachtree at 14th street on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, July 26 and 27. Admission will be $1 and the entire proceeds will go to the Humane Society.

In addition to Snowball and Sunshine some five or six other well-known acts will be included in the show. All have gladly given their services so there will be absolutely no expenses to meet, leaving 100 cents on each $1 ticket for the cause.

The drive and the show is sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's Club and the Woman's Division of the Chamber of Commerce. Tickets may be obtained from either organization or at the campaign headquarters, 423 Connally building and at the Piedmont Hatters on Peachtree, opposite the Candler building.

Already a gratifying response to the call for funds has been received, but it will be necessary to pack the club auditorium for each performance if the needed $2,500 is secured. It is suggested that all who wish to help, whether they can attend the performances or not, mail their checks at once to the campaign headquarters, and tickets will be sent them at once.

One of the most gratifying of recent contributions came from M. D. Kallfelz, manager of the Kallfelz Service Stations. He will supply 10 gallons of gasoline free each week during July, August and September, so that the society's truck in which the stray animals are rescued from the streets may continue to run.

Other gifts have come in from people in all walks of life and in all sections of this area, for love of animals knows no limitations of class, of wealth or of geography.

Tuberculosis Deaths Drop in '34; Atlanta, However, Registers Gain

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—The 1934 tuberculosis deaths, showing a national drop, but also spreading of the disease in 16 of the larger cities, were issued tonight by the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The report concludes that tuberculosis is not being eliminated as rapidly as it might be. The survey, made by Godias J. Drolet, covering 46 cities, shows a decline of 4 per cent in deaths, to a rate of 69.6 per hundred thousand population. This is the lowest yet recorded for large American cities.

Last year's increase in 16 cities caused concern when compared with the previous year. On that occasion only 10 cities showed a rise in tuberculosis deaths. The 16 this year are almost entirely a new crop, only two, Atlanta and Syracuse, having been in the previous year's rise.

Against this is balanced the fact that the deaths started down again in eight of the 10 cities previously yielding to tuberculosis ravages. Warning as to the significance of this Mr. Drolet states:

"The survey would seem to indicate that we can scarcely hold too close a check on the disease as it is constantly surprising us by reappearing unexpectedly where it was thought to be under control.

"It is unfortunate to find 16 cities showing an increase where only 10 had shown it the year before, and emphasizes again the fact that the keynote of the fight against tuberculosis is unfailing vigilance."

The Drolet survey is different from others because it credits to each city the deaths of its tuberculosis residents who die elsewhere.

The lowest death rate was at Akron, Ohio, with 35 per 100,000 despite an increase of 5 per cent over the previous year. The highest rate was at San Antonio, 145, credited to the large Mexican population. San Antonio decreased 6 per cent under the previous year.

Four of the five largest cities showed decreases. These were New York, Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles. Philadelphia, the fifth, was unchanged.

In a separate study negroes showed a death rate of 221 against 56 for whites.

The total mortality rates for the 46 cities follow, the first figure being the deaths per 100,000 in 1934, the second for 1933 and the third the per cent change.

SABIN TO CAMPAIGN FOR U. S. SALES TAX

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Charles H. Sabin Jr., wealthy New York broker, confirmed reports tonight that he was forming an organization of wealthy persons to campaign for a federal sales tax and governmental economies and against higher income and present "nuisance" taxes.

The organization will be known as the Committee of Americans. It hopes to present a petition of 1,000,000 names to the President and congress urging the budget be balanced by methods advocated by the group, Sabin said.

Admitting that some of the wealthiest persons in the country were represented on the committee, Sabin denied, however, that its program included a "wealth lobby" against President Roosevelt's tax measures.

Sabin said he could not confirm for such a report that a letter sent out by the committee mentioned the "Fells, Whitneys, Taylors, Watsons and Vanderbilts" in the east and the "Wriglers, Armours, McCormicks, Mayers and Mortons" in the west, but said he believed many of them were mentioned.

KEETON SLAYER FREED ON PLEA OF ILL HEALTH

LAUREL, Miss., July 6.—(AP)—After physicians testified that his health would be endangered by continued imprisonment, W. M. Carter, 68-year-old Laurel businessman, who was convicted several weeks ago of complicity in the butcher-slaying of Mrs. Daisy Keeton, was freed under $15,000 bond here today.

Carter had been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Miss Ouida Keeton, 33, Carter's one-time secretary and with whom he admitted a "love affair," was convicted at a separate trial as a joint conspirator with Carter in her mother's mutilation murder, and was likewise sentenced to life imprisonment. She is free under $15,000 bond pending the outcome of an appeal to the state supreme court.

GROUP WILL REPORT ON TEXTILE INQUIRY

Full Cabinet Committee Will Hear Findings of Probers Monday.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—A special cabinet committee next week will begin work on its answer to the cotton textile industry's plea for relief from foreign competition and from the cotton processing tax.

The cabinet group—comprising Secretaries Hull, Wallace, Perkins and Roper—disclosed today that the preliminary study had been completed by a subcommittee consisting of aids of the cabinet members.

This group, after an exhaustive study of testimony presented during hearings extending over a two-week period, has completed its findings and will report them to the full cabinet committee at a meeting in Secretary Roper's office on Monday on the basis of these findings, which will not be made public. The committee will make its recommendations to the President.

In addition to the testimony piled up by manufacturers, New England governors, and civic groups who contended that the processing tax, Japanese imports and other factors had resulted in the closing of scores of mills, with resultant loss of employment to thousands of workers, the subcommittee has drawn for information on statistics from a number of government agencies.

A spokesman for the cabinet group predicted that the recommendations of the full committee would be completed and made public within a few days—possibly by the end of next week.

The cabinet group was designated by the President to study the cotton textile situation after the White House and the capitol had been deluged with protests from textile mill communities, complaining that the industry was being destroyed as a result of failure of the administration to give relief through tariff assistance and through removal of the processing tax.

SOUTHERN HOSIERIES APPROVE CODE PLAN

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—The Southern Hosiery Manufacturers' Association today voted approval of a voluntary agreement for the hosiery industry preserving the basic features of the old NRA code.

Action was taken at the closing session of the association's two-day convention here.

The resolution adopting the agreement also contained a recommendation to all manufacturers in the southern territory that they operate under the agreement.

The voluntary agreement provides for no drastic cuts in wages, no child labor, no lengthening of hours and that all merchandise other than first quality shall be so labeled.

Provided 75 per cent of the manufacturers representing 80 per cent of the industry's production sign, the agreement will become effective July 20.

COMMODOREROLLINS,95, FLEET DIRECTOR, DIES

BALTIMORE, July 6.—(AP)—"Commodore" Thornton Rollins, who once owned the largest fleet of Baltimore clippers plying between here and Rio de Janeiro in the coffee trade, died suddenly today. He was 95.

Members of the household believed his death was superinduced by the heat.

AL COOK.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 6.—(AP)—Al Cook, 53, who was a star of comedies in silent motion pictures, died today at the Santa Monica hospital after a year's illness. For many years Cook was co-starred in comedies with Alberta Vaughan.

J. R. MANNING.

NASHVILLE, July 6.—(AP)—James Roy Manning, 47, vice president and general manager of a Nashville dry goods company, died today following an extended illness.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Manning was active in church, civic and fraternal circles.

ARMY PILOT IS KILLED IN HONOLULU PLUNGE

HONOLULU, T. H., July 6.—(UP)—One army aviator was killed and a second leaped to safety in a parachute four miles from land today when an army attack plane plunged into the sea four miles southwest of Oahu.

Sergeant John A. Haley was killed when the plane plummeted from an altitude of 3,000 feet.

The pilot, Lieutenant Douglas M. Cairns, leaped to safety as the craft began its plunge. He was rescued by fishermen aboard a Japanese sampan, who later recovered Haley's body from the airplane.

Both fliers were attached to the 26th army air squadron, Wheeler field, Honolulu.

NORTH CAROLINA TOLD TO FORBID GATHERINGS

Ten New Cases Bring Paralysis Total to 312 and Grim Warning.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—A strong warning that "gatherings of persons over the state should be stopped" was issued today by Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, North Carolina health officer, along with the announcement 10 new cases of infantile paralysis had been reported to the health offices to make 312 in the state his year.

The disease since January 1 has appeared in 61 of the state's 100 counties, but the majority of the cases have been in the east-central section of North Central, a survey showed today.

Fourteen fatalities have been reported from poliomyelitis since May 1, when the current flare-up really started, as only 15 cases were reported the first four months. Forty-four were reported in May, 198 in June, and thus far in July 55 have occurred.

N. Y. SENDS SERUM IN MOMENTOUS TEST

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Regarded by medical authorities as the first test of sufficient magnitude to give a definite indication of the efficacy of the recently announced infantile paralysis serum, 300 doses of the vaccine have been sent to stricken areas in North Carolina, it was learned tonight.

The United States Department of Health has expressed concern over the spread of the disease along the routes of motor highways in North Carolina and Virginia.

The vaccine was developed in the research laboratories of Dr. William H. Park and Dr. Maurice Brodie, but has received only limited tests on human beings.

To be accounted scientifically successful, medical men assert, the vaccine must prove entirely efficacious in immunizing all who receive it.

Government doctors assert that so far the only reaction of the vaccine definitely proved is that it is harmless.

If a single inoculated child, should contract the disease, they point out, the serum cannot be accepted as an immunizer.

But if the treatment is proved successful, the names of Park and Brodie would go down in history beside those of Pasteur and Lister.

Dr. Park said the amount of vaccine which can be sent to the stricken areas depends upon how many rhesus monkeys his laboratories can get from India.

The serum is developed from the spinal cords of infected rhesus monkeys.

Dr. Park said that the capacity of the laboratories could be stepped up until 15,000 doses of the vaccine could be produced every 30 days.

2 HELD TRYING TO SELL STOLEN GEMS TO OWNER

MIAMI, Fla., July 6.—(AP)—Stolen jewelry valued at $1,400 was recovered and two youths were arrested here today as they sought, Detective Chief L. O. Scarboro said, to sell the gems to the rightful owner.

Chief Scarboro said the youths, booked as Edward Carlisle, 19, and A. M. Holmes, also known as James Ferguson, 18, asked $500 of C. R. Maxwell for the jewelery taken with $100 in cash from his downtown office Monday night.

First approached yesterday, Maxwell delayed answer until today. He notified police and detectives closed in as Carlisle met Maxwell. The youth fled, but was caught in a nearby office building.

The other youth was arrested when he appeared at the building.

KITCHEN SOAP IS SAID REMEDY FOR CHIGGERS

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 6.—(AP)—It's not the bite so much as the rub, explained Dr. Emery R. Hayhurst today in backing up this assertion:

"Nudists never would be troubled with chiggers."

The chief of the hygiene division of the state health department said chiggers irritate the skin only where clothing touches it and causes friction.

His chigger remedy for non-nudists: A hot bath with ordinary kitchen soap.

Another 'Symphony Under Stars' To Be Given at Buckhead Tonight

The second "symphony under the stars" of the Buckhead symphony orchestra will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock at the shell on Peachtree road at Buckhead.

The no admission charge policy will be continued, it was announced, with 1,000 seats available and additional ground cleared to accommodate another 1,000, who, the directors said, will be comfortable providing they bring cushions. Last week 2,000 persons attended the concert, interrupted by a slight rainfall.

Ruth Dabney Smith, whose musical accomplishments have thrilled thousands of southerners, will be the guest artist. The violinist will play the "Symphonie Espagnole," by Lalo, with full orchestral accompaniment.

The overture for tonight's program will be Mozart's "The Magic Flute." Following will be a number of selections from "Naughty Marietta," Victor Herbert's operetta.

The intermission will follow Miss Smith's appearance. T. K. Glenn will make a brief address during the intermission.

Schumann's popular "Nocturnal Peace" and "Angel's Serenade," by Braga," will open the second half of the program. "Rouet d' Omphale," spinning wheel song of Saint Saens, will be followed by a resume from "Carmen," by Bizet, concluding the performance.

Directors of the orchestra project said the symphony found its greatest response at the 8 o'clock hour and that they would continue the night presentations.

The last half of tonight's program was to have been presented last Sunday when the program was interrupted by the threat of rain. Officials of the orchestra said the program was stopped after a "rainpanic" had been caused by the action of one person in raising an umbrella, but that actually very little rain fell. The presentation was a "symphony under the stars," they said, because the evening star never was obscured by clouds which filled the rest of the sky.

Wire Tapping by Lobbyists Charged In Impending Utility Bill Probe

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Charges of wire tapping crackled more lightning today over the impending utility bill lobby investigation.

The charge that utility holding company lobbyists "tapped telephone wires of members of congress" came from Representative Rankin, democrat, Mississippi, proponent of both the administration's "death sentence" for "unnecessary" holding companies and the measure to broaden the power of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Floor fights in both the senate and house on the two measures will break next week. A group of pro-TVA representatives today went into a huddle to map vote strategy for the TVA bill.

In the senate arrangements were made to begin on Monday and end on Tuesday a showdown battle on the holding company "death sentence" legislation, passed by the senate, rejected by the house and now back for senate concurrence in the house action. The house passed a bill to regulate instead of abolish holding companies.

From senate and house proponents of both administration bills came predictions of victory. Representative Maverick, democrat, Texas, said the TVA bill would pass the house in the form wanted by President Roosevelt with a 50-vote margin. Chairman Wheeler, democrat, Montana, of the senate interstate commerce committee, said "four or five" more votes had come to the support of the senate bloc which barely squeezed through the "death sentence" utility bill.

Rankin sought to bolster his charge of wire-tapping by asserting to reporters that "they tapped mine for several days."

"We could hear them on the line," he said, "but could not locate them and the telephone company declared they did not know where these connections were."

While the house prepared for opening its lobby investigation by the rules committee Monday, a move was afoot in the senate to broaden the scope of the proposed inquiry there to include lobbying on all legislation, utility or otherwise.

Over in the house office building, Maverick, Representative Hill, democrat, Alabama, and Representative Thomason, democrat, Texas, worked most of the day with Director David E. Lilienthal, of the TVA, on the language of amendments this group in the military affairs committee will offer to the compromise measure of a committee majority.

Three floors below, Chairman Sabath, democrat, Illinois, called in the house steering committee to lay plans of strategy for marshaling democratic votes behind the President's wishes.

Wheeler said an agreement had been reached with Senator Dieterich to stave off the vote on the question until Tuesday when it was expected all senators would be returned from the Fourth of July holiday.

Senator Dieterich, who lost by one vote a move to delete the "death sentence" when the bill passed the senate, has announced he will move Monday for the senate to concur at once in the bill as it passed the house.

Forecasting defeat of the motion, Wheeler said he would follow with a proposal to have the measure sent to conference. There, he said, he is certain he can have the "death sentence" reinstated in the bill.

Thereafter, he said, the senate and house would concur in the revised measure or he would "go to the country" to fight at the polls the congressional foes of the legislation.

MRS. ANNIE K. DAVIS DIES AT VILLA RICA

Mrs. Annie K. Davis, a resident of Atlanta for more than 50 years, died yesterday in a hospital at Villa Rica at the age of 85. Death was due to a fall sustained by Mrs. Davis in Villa Rica at which time she suffered an injury to the hip.

She is survived by three sons, S. L. Davis, T. H. Davis and J. G. Davis. Several grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of the West Side Funeral Home with Elder Roy N. Mitchell officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant Grove cemetery, near Villa Rica.

FRANCE REDUCES ARMY TO NORMAL STRENGTH

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—France reduced her army today to its normal strength of 600,000 troops by releasing about 10,000 conscripts. Half of those returned to civilian life were of the yearly class, the other half mobilized last October all had served three months beyond their obligatory time.

France extended the year's compulsory military service when her military leaders became uneasy over the German rearmament.

The standing strength of 600,000 troops is said by France to equal the strength of the German army plus Hitler's militarized police.

LONG'S 26 NEW BILLS ARE PASSED IN HOUSE

Followers of Huey Speed Action on Measures Despite Protests of 'Enemies.'

BATON ROUGE, La., July 6.—(AP) Helpless anti-Long leaders today spoke bitter words and fought gamely but Senator Huey P. Long's followers did his bidding, passed his 26 new bills in the house and rushed them to the senate for final action.

The measures, giving the "Kingfish" almost unlimited powers, were expected to receive almost immediate favorable report by the senate's finance committee, leaving only a voting formality Monday to enact them into law.

Long, personally supervising the legislative work on his bills, heard himself called a "lying crook" and other words—but he went right ahead to give his followers control over every non-elective public job, big and little, in the state and send to jail anyone who uses federal relief money for political purposes.

After taking action, the house adjourned until 12:30 a. m., central standard time, Monday.

Anti-Long representatives insisted that use of state funds for political purposes should be outlawed as well as federal funds, and one, accused of politicalizing the state's revenues.

Representative George M. Lester, of West Feliciana parish, read a letter he said was written by a former state employe in which Long was referred to as a "lying crook" and a political manipulator of state funds, and Representative Rupert Peyton accused him of insincerity, but the Louisiana "Kingfish" merely yawned and watched the fund politicalization and other bills go through.

The biggest bill in the lot—the one placing every public worker in Louisiana under the state civil service commission composed of Long's followers—was passed with no debate.

Representative Peyton jokingly asked whether "bellboys were included," and was told by Representative N. S. Hoffpauir, one of Long's followers, that he "thought they were."

NORTH CAROLINA YOUTH TO DIE IN GAS CHAMBER

RALEIGH, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—Ed Hester, 19-year-old Gaston county youth, today was sentenced to be executed by gas August 23, making the first death sentence to be passed under North Carolina's recently-enacted law substituting the lethal chamber for the electric chair.

Hester, who was serving a 25-year prison sentence for the murder of his brother-in-law early this year, was convicted of killing a fellow convict, Paul Honeycutt, with an ax.

SOUTHERN LIFE NAMES IRONS VICE PRESIDENT

Deputy Insurance Commissioner Becomes Executive of New Company.

Lewis A. Irons, of Atlanta, deputy state insurance commissioner for many years, is the newly elected executive vice president of the recently organized Southern Life Insurance Company of Georgia, it was announced yesterday. Edward M. Veatch, formerly of Atlanta and now of Louisville, Ky., returns here to become assistant secretary of the company.

Officials of the company, which numbers 700 prominent Georgians among its stockholders, said that others of the insurance personnel would be selected soon. The company is the first of a group of Georgia-owned companies fostered by the Southern Insurance Securities Corporation, it was said.

Standard forms of life insurance policies and two special draft-attached emergency policies will be issued by the new organization. There is a likelihood, officials said, that fire and casualty insurance facilities will follow. Life insurance policies will be sold by August 1, it is planned.

Mr. Irons, the new vice president, was for many years with the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia. He is well known both here and in the east as an insurance executive of wide experience.

Mr. Veatch, who will be in charge of the business department, assistant to the medical director and supervisor of all claims, returns to Atlanta after several years' absence. He was in the insurance business here for 21 years.

KEY ASKS SUPPORT FOR 'MEMORY DAY'

U. D. C. Sponsors Commemoration of Battle of Atlanta, 71 Years Ago.

Mayor Key on Saturday gave his indorsement to the "Memory Day" celebration to be staged here Monday, July 22, under auspices of the Atlanta Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. The occasion will be in commemoration of the historic Battle of Atlanta 71 years ago and will be the first revival of the "Memory Day" held 11 years ago sponsored by the Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., of which the late Mrs. John A. Perdue was president. Mrs. Forrest Kibler is now president and is being assisted in preparations by Mrs. B. M. Boykin as general chairman.

In giving his indorsement and support to the day and the sale of tags to provide funds to be used for the work among the veterans, Mayor Key issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, 71 years ago on July 22, 1864, the Battle of Atlanta was fought, and

"Whereas, this battle was one of the momentous engagements of the War Between the States, when outnumbered Confederate forces distinguished themselves with valor that will live on in history and the heart of a people, and

"Whereas the dangers endured were as real and the service and sacrifices of noncombatant men, women and children during the seige of Atlanta were not less notable than the valorous courage of the soldiers, and,

"Whereas, after three score and ten years, kind providence has spared to us yet survivors, brave heroes and heroines who participated in the glorious but vain struggle to save the city, and,

"Whereas, the Atlanta Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has designated July 22 as 'Memory Day' and planned appropriate observance for the anniversary of the Battle of Atlanta, and,

"Whereas, we welcome every opportunity to do homage to those who fell in battle for the south and those who survive, therefore I, James L. Key, mayor of the city of Atlanta, do proclaim Monday, July 22, 'Memory Day' and request the people of Atlanta to take part in the exercises of the day and in other proper manner join in the commemoration of the occasion."

CONTEST TO SELECT NEW MISS ATLANTA

Beauty Queen of 1935 To Be Named at Lakewood on August 4.

A "Miss Atlanta" contest to determine the city's entry in the "Miss America" contest at Atlantic City late in August, has been announced for Lakewood park on August 4.

The 1935 contest is sponsored by the Paramount theater and Lakewood park, with Tommy Reid, manager of the theater, and Weyman Boyles, director of free attractions at Lakewood, in charge of the program.

The Lakewood contest will be free to the public, but the theater will charge its regular admission when "Miss Atlanta" is introduced from the Paramount stage, after the contest.

Following the Atlanta contest the city's entry in the national contest will be given a trip to Atlantic City with all expenses paid.

Each entry must be accompanied by two character references. Entries may be filed at the Paramount theater.

BABY RECOVERS FAST AFTER PIN OPERATION

Hiram Surasky, Savannah infant who is recovering here from an emergency operation for removal of a safety pin from his throat, will be able to leave St. Joseph's infirmary within two weeks unless unlooked-for complications set in, the attending physician said yesterday.

The child is up, playing all over his bed and eating anything "he wants to," he said, but is still breathing through the silver tube inserted after throat irritation had threatened his life. The physician explained that it is easier for the child to breathe through the tube than through his nose, and that he must be "weaned" away from the tube breathing just as a baby must be weaned away from an original milk diet, before he can be released as fully recovered.

LEPERS IN NEAR RIOT IN FREEDOM DEMAND

MANILA, P. I., July 6.—(AP)—A near riot of a hundred lepers demanding their release from San Lazaro hospital here was revealed today on the heels of the legislature's adoption of a bill relaxing restrictions against sufferers of the dread disease.

When they learned of the legislature's action yesterday the lepers demanded their immediate release from the ancient Spanish hospital, where lepers are confined before being transferred to the island of Culion, known as the largest leper colony in the world.

The rioters insisted health authorities had no right to detain them further. Police were called to restore order.

Dr. Eugenio Viana, superintendent of the hospital, explained to the patients the bill had not become law as it has not been signed by Governor-General Frank Murphy.

The measure would permit the treatment of lepers by private physicians in homes or private leprosariums with the approval of the director of health. Most lepers are now confined at Culion, where 5,000 are under treatment.

Black Widow Spider Not Deadly, Emory Biology Professor Says

Dr. W. B. Baker Explodes Popular Belief That Bite Means Certain Death; Stings of Wasps and Honey Bees Also Can Result Fatally, He Declares.

The black widow spider, which is receiving much notoriety at present, is dangerous but is not deadly, Dr. W. B. Baker, biology professor at Emory University, said yesterday in exploding the popular belief that sure death results from the bite of the insect.

He had under study a large specimen, which he captured last week in the garage of an Atlanta woman.

The spider 'most frightened her to death because she had heard so much about how poisonous the black widow is. But Dr. Baker said it isn't so.

"Its bite may cause swelling and pain but its not necessarily deadly at all," he declared. "There have been people who died after the bite of a black widow but so have deaths been caused by the sting of a honey bee or wasp."

The black widow gains her name from the fact that she eats the male immediately after mating.

"It is certainly a woman's world the spider lives in," said Dr. Baker.

As a matter of fact it should be pointed out that the black widow, and most of her kindred insects, show little or no consideration or gratitude toward their mates. But she perpetuates her race by laying hundreds of masculine and feminine gender eggs, which she encases tightly in a web of her own weaving. These hatch in cool, dark, woody places and the process of having the "boy friend" for dinner begins another family of spiders.

Black widows have been common always and there is no indication that there are more of them now than at any previous time. Dr. Baker said it was probable that the ladies whose husbands are dead have merely procured a press agent for themselves.

Or it might be that the widows have come to town and are being noticed more by people. They like the country best but recently many have been found in cities. You know how it is though. It's lonesome away from the crowds for a widow, even a self-made one.

J. W. BELL, DECATUR, PASSES AT RESIDENCE

J. W. Bell, employe of the Atlanta Joint Terminal for 15 years, died yesterday at the family residence, 341 West Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, at the age of 58.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. H. O. Hatcher, of Harlem, Ga., and Mrs. Margaret Bell, of Decatur; four sisters, Mrs. Sarah Fox, Mrs. H. S. Paschal and Mrs. E. D. Clary, all of Harlem, and Mrs. J. A. Larkin, of Augusta; a brother, H. H. Bell, of Augusta, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the graveside of the Harlem cemetery with the Rev. O. J. Withrow officiating and A. S. Turner in charge.

H. S. MOREHEAD RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for H. S. Morehead, widely known Atlantan and former salesman for the M. C. Kiser Shoe Company, will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill with the Rev. A. Lee Hale officiating and H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

Mr. Morehead died Friday night at the family residence, 107 Terrace drive, at the age of 87. The body will be taken to Greenwood, S. C., for burial.

JUVENILE CRIME WILL BE STUDIED AT WORLD PARLEY

Score of Countries Will Be Represented at Conference Opening in Brussels on July 15.

BRUSSELS, July 6.—(UP)—Two international conferences of outstanding interest to students of child-welfare throughout the world are scheduled here between July 15 and 21.

They are a meeting of judges and magistrates who preside over juvenile courts, and a congress of the International Association for the Protection of Minors. The former conference will last from July 15 to 17. It will be followed immediately on July 18 by the second of the two gatherings which will continue until July 21.

Fifteen countries will be represented at the conference of justices of juvenile courts. They are Belgium, Brazil, China, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Poland, Portugal, Spain, United States and Yugoslavia.

Important Papers To Be Read.

It is expected that chief interest at this conference will be focused on the paper to be read by the Hungarian delegate, Pierre de Nemeth, on the effects of economic distress on criminality among children. Another eagerly awaited paper will be that of Mme. Woytowicz-Grabinska, of Poland, the first woman appointed as judge in juvenile courts in Poland. She is now juridicial counsellor at the Polish Ministry of Social Assistance, and is a recognized authority on criminality among children.

At least 20 countries will be represented at the conference of the International Association for the Protection of Minors, which was first organized in Brussels in 1921. Several South American and most European countries are members of the association.

Stress Laid on Two Problems.

Two main questions will be discussed at this conference. The first deals with the care of children from medical, judicial and social standpoints as well as in the schools. It is felt that the education of children in rural districts of many countries is badly neglected and that insufficient attention is paid to the needs of abnormal and crippled children.

The second main head of discussion will be the effect of economic depression and unemployment on children. There will be a debate on the question of raising the school age by law to reduce juvenile unemployment and to give young people special technical training. Among other subjects of discussion will be a program of studies in a school of social service, on which Mme. de Bray, of Santiago, Chile, will read a paper, and various questions dealing with the education of children.

Queen to Open Session.

The congress will be opened at 10 a. m. July 18 by Queen Astrid. On the following day the delegates will take trips to the seaside and visit schools, sanitariums and correctional institutions. They will also visit the Brussels infants' clinic, the colony for weak children at Dongelberg, in Brabant, the school for abnormal children at Rixensart, and the Henri Jaspar children's convalescent home at Tervueren, near Brussels.

The work of the conference will continue on the two succeeding days and will be wound up at a final meeting July 21. It is expected that there will be a reception for the delegates in the Brussels city hall.

20 AMERICAN PRIESTS RECEIVED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, July 6.—(AP)—Pope Pius today received in audience 20 young priests of the American college in Rome, introduced by Monsignor Joseph Breslin, of New York, vice rector of the college.

They are about to return to the United States to begin their life's work. The pope made a brief address, wishing them all success in their vocation.

Those received by His Holiness included: Fathers Bernard Moore, Richmond, Va.; John Mendelis, of Baltimore, Md.; Francis Reilly, of Nashville, Tenn.; Charles Polker, St. Louis, Mo.; Lenon J. Federal, Raleigh, N. C.

SECRET COMMUNIQUE IS ISSUED BY BERLIN

BERLIN, July 6.—(AP)—The naval ministry said today that a communique had been sent to the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy, but refused to divulge its contents.

At the foreign office the communique was described as "a technical matter of no general significance."

(An authoritative British source in London said that Germany late last night had delivered a document to the principal naval powers setting forth some details of her present and future naval building plans.)

FRENCH CITY AVERTS CLASH OF 2 PARTIES

LUNEL, France, July 6.—(AP)—Fear of a clash between right and left "political troops" caused this town today to bar its doors and windows and go into a virtual state of siege.

Trouble was averted, however, when a scheduled meeting of the Croix de Feu, extreme nationalist organization, was moved to a point 40 miles away because of a counter meeting of 3,000 members of the "common front" composed of communists and socialists.

In the meantime the government moved 300 mounted mobile guards and 200 gendarmes into the town to preserve order.

As the members of the Croix de Feu moved out to the new meeting place some peasants stoned their automobiles. Otherwise there was no violence.

Lightning Stuns Crowd At Chamblee Ball Game

Lightning flashing into the midst of spectators stunned and shocked many persons watching a baseball game between Chamblee and Brookhaven teams late yesterday afternoon.

The game was being played at the old Camp Gordon ball diamond.

Roy Head, 15, and Dewey Dyer, 16, of Chamblee, and Lloyd Casey, 14, of Brookhaven, were the most seriously shocked and required medical treatment. They were taken to Grady hospital, treated and dismissed.

M. E. Smith, of Chamblee, later was brought to the Crawford Long hospital suffering from shock. He was admitted for observation, attaches said.

The lightning struck a tree, about which between 200 and 300 spectators were standing. Many in the crowd suffered from shock, but were not taken to the hospital for treatment.

QUEEN ELIZABETH GRANTED DIVORCE

Abandonment Charged in Plea of Ex-Royal Consort of Greece.

BUCHAREST, July 6.—(AP)—On the ground that her husband, the former King George, of Greece, had abandoned his marital domicile in Rumania, the court of appeals today granted an absolute divorce to former Queen Elizabeth.

This action precluded the possibility that Elizabeth might join George on the Greek throne should he be recalled as a result of a plebiscite to be held in Greece probably the end of this month.

The proceedings today occupied only 16 minutes and were held in secret. George, who is living in London, ignored the entire case and was not even represented by lawyers.

Elizabeth, it was announced, will now resume her old title of Elizabeth of Hohenzollern, princess of Rumania. She will make her permanent home on a beautiful estate she recently purchased in Transylvania.

Under Rumanian legal procedure the divorce will be final failing an appeal by the former king within five days from next Monday.

Inasmuch as he was not represented at the proceedings it was taken for granted that no appeal would be filed.

TALMADGE RENEWS ATTACK ON NEW DEAL

government competition with private industry and of process taxes, he said crop production contracts with farmers should be paid out of the $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund.

"If this $4,880,000,000 is squandered, thrown away and used as a political bait in this country, the government of our forefathers will go on the rocks," he said.

Higher Living Costs Charged.

Governor Talmadge said unemployment rolls had grown rapidly under policies of the New Deal administration and that multiplied taxes had tripled living expenses in many instances.

"If three-fourths of the taxes were written off, the price that the farmer receives for tobacco in the raw product would be doubled," he predicted in condemning federal levies on tobacco.

"There were all kinds of taxes placed on tobacco products during the World War. At the time these taxes were placed on the tobacco products, they gave the reason that they had to have the money to win the war.

"The war is over—and 17 years afterwards we see these gigantic taxes still remaining on cigars, cigarettes, chewing tobacco, snuff and tobacco in other forms.

Penalizing Some Farmers.

"After this the processing taxes were placed on tobacco and now the Kerr-Smith act is penalizing some farmers and giving special privileges to others in the tobacco business."

He charged the Washington administration with undertaking to stop "starvation from overproduction and plenty" with a program of "increased scarcity and twenty-fold multiplication of taxes."

The Georgia Governor said imports began increasing shortly after Roosevelt was inaugurated in 1933 and that the United States would have had a famine under the crop curtailment program had not corn and other products been brought in from foreign countries.

In March, 1934, Talmadge said, 16,892 bushels of corn were imported and 7,017,558 bushels came in from foreign lands during the first three months this year.

"little NRA." It would establish a national bituminous coal commission which would have the authority to regulate production and practices, even allocating production to specific mines and regions.

All producers would be subject to a tax of 25 per cent of the sale price of their coal at the mouth of the mine. Those who abided by regulations of the commission, however, could get a "draw-back"—a credit—of 99 per cent of the taxes due. The remaining 1 per cent would be used to finance operations of the commission.

'RELIGIOUS ISSUE' RAISED BY ITALY IN AFRICAN RIFT

Rome High Command Hopes Moslems Will Be Allies If War Comes With Ethiopia.

By ANDRUE BERDING.

ROME, July 6.—(AP)—The Italian high command hopes that religion—not their own—will aid them if war comes with Ethiopia.

Their hopes are based on the fact that the religion of the outlying sections of Ethiopia facing the Italian colonies is the same as that of those colonies, Eritrea and Somaliland—namely, Moslem.

The religion of Addis Ababa and the majority of the empire is Coptic Christian.

Native Army Organized.

The Italian high command hopes that if hostilities begin the Moslem portions of Ethiopia will come over to Italy. The following points are cited as a basis for their expectations:

1. The outlying Moslem sections of Ethiopia—Galla, Somali and Sidama—were conquered by the late Emperor Menelik a generation ago, and those peoples live in a subjection under Haile Selassie which Italians believe is intensely irritating to them.

2. The relations between the natives of Galla, Somali and Sidama on the one side and Moslem Eritrea and Somaliland are reasonably close.

3. A large native army, already more than 40,000 strong, will be created by the Italians. It is estimated by military circles that this army will reach 200,000 men. It will offer many attractions to the Galla, Somali and Sidama natives.

Overtures to Musselmen.

Already overtures are being made to the Musselmen in official speeches here by members of the government. Undersecretary of Colonies Alessandro Lessona told the chamber of deputies:

"Italy, although she reaffirms her fidelity to the religious ideals which irradiate from Rome and which have always inspired her policy, nevertheless in Africa wants the faithful of Islam to feel secure and tranquil in their traditional cult because she recognizes that it represents a form of the most noble and spiritual social life amid the furies of old and new barbarian paganism in Africa and elsewhere."

In the same speech Lessona delivered an attack on the religion of Ethiopia, saying:

"The Ethiopians make an arguing point of their Christianity and their centuries old resistance to the Musselman invasion. However it is necessary to look with skeptpticism on the Ethiopian Christianity which offers us the spectacle of a Christianity impregnated with barbarism."

Official Plans Trip.

Lessona has planned a trip to Moslem Arabia to interest the religious chiefs there in Italy's struggle with Ethiopia and to induce them to exert their influence over the Moslems living in Ethiopia.

It is significant that at this juncture the crown prince of Hedjaz, son of Ibn Saud, ruler of Saudian Arabia, has come to Rome, had long audiences with King Victor Emmanuel and Mussolini and been received everywhere with the greatest of honors.

EIGHT ARE SELECTED FOR WPA JOB DRIVE

will instruct the district administrators to carry them out. The district administrators also will be responsible for the execution of the 881 projects announced Friday in Washington."

Rule for Application.

Miss Shepperson emphasized the fact that applications for new projects must first be submitted to the district administrators, and that sponsors of projects could not come direct to her to gain approval of their plans.

The district administrators have been summoned to Atlanta for a conference at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Biltmore hotel. The program for launching approved projects will be explained and the district aids will then return to their respective districts to set the machinery in motion for giving employment to 21,000 men from the relief rolls.

Shifting of family heads from relief projects to works projects will commence on July 15 and it is anticipated that within six weeks all of Georgia's 70,000 unemployed breadwinners will be put to work. It is hoped the transfer of 21,000 provided for in the first allotment to Georgia of works relief funds will be effected within two weeks.

Some Under Way.

Approximately 25 per cent of the 881 projects are already being carried on as relief projects, and the shifting of the workers on these to works projects will be a matter of bookkeeping. The remaining 75 per cent will be started on July 15 or as soon thereafter as possible. In some cases the cities and counties must contribute funds to the projects for materials and this will cause a slight delay.

Such is the case in Atlanta's sewer project, for which the city must vote a bond issue of $1,375,000. Until the city puts up its share the work will not be started. This applies to all other projects in which local funds must be subscribed, according to Miss Shepperson.

Hours and Wages.

Under the WPA, workers will be employed five days a week, six hours a day. Wages will range from as low as $19 per month to as high as $75, depending upon the type of work and the locality. This is still far above the relief budgets, which averaged $14 per family per month in Georgia.

Georgia is expected to receive between $90,000,000 and $100,000,000 of federal funds, all of which must be expended by July, 1936. It was explained, however, that the WPA will be charged with disbursing only a portion of that money, inasmuch as some of it will be expended on PWA projects, on rural resettlement, highways, rural re-electrification and grade crossing elimination. It is believed probable, however, that Miss Shepperson will supervise the expenditure of more than half of the entire Georgia fund.

The FERA will cease to exist as an organization just as soon as the transfer of Georgia's 70,000 unemployed breadwinners to works projects is completed. Some of the 3,900 FERA employes will be transferred to the WPA, but a large number are slated to be dropped, it was said.

Silver Trophy Given Derby by Race Promoter

Many Atlanta Boys Seek Prizes In Annual Soap-Box Derby July 27

Many Atlanta boys already have entered the Atlanta Soap Box Derby, to be run on Saturday, July 27, and there is plenty of time left for any boy to make his soap box car and enter. The only requirements are that he visit any Atlanta Chevrolet dealer's showroom and get his entry card and book of rules and regulations for building his racer.

Last year more than 150 boys competed for the prizes in the Atlanta races. The event was won by Virgil King, a 10-year-old boy, who was taken to the national races held in Dayton, Ohio. The national races this year will be held in Akron, Ohio.

Besides the trophy, there are many other prizes selected, especially for boys. The first grand prize, a miniature motor-driven car, will be given to the winner by Loew's Grand theater here. A second miniature car will be given to the boy whose car wins the award for design and workmanship by the Atlanta Chevrolet dealers. These two little cars are now being built by J. G. Young, of LaGrange, Ga., one of America's most successful builders of small cars.

In addition to the many prizes to be awarded locally, the committee here has been advised that in the national races to be held in Akron, the first prize will be a four-year course in college, second prize a Chevrolet Master sedan, and third prize a Chevrolet Standard sedan, and many other lesser awards.

The winner of the Atlanta race will be taken to the national events at the expense of The Constitution, a representative of The Constitution going along to see that the boy is well taken care of. Many sight-seeing trips are being arranged for them while in Akron. They will be given an opportunity to visit some of the rubber manufacturers and see first-hand how tires and inner tubes are made.

AMERICANS WARNED TO LEAVE ETHIOPIA

Sudan Frontier Missjon of Philadelphia, and the Women's General Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church of North America, which has headquarters in Pittsburgh.)

T. A. Lambie, intimate friend of the emperor and field director of the Ethiopian mission service, who is in London seeking to organize an ambulance corps for that nation, said 50 American missionaries stationed at Addis Ababa would not heed the legation's warning.

"We put our faith in God and do not expect consular protection," Lambie declared, revealing he had cabled his coworkers to remain at their posts "whatever happens."

Addis Ababa "Hidden."

The mission director discounted fears that the missionaries would be exposed to grave danger. He pointed out that Addis Ababa was difficult of access to Italian bombing planes, since the late Emperor Menelik, when he founded the capital 50 years ago, planted groves of eucalyptus trees over an area 10 miles long and three miles wide, thus camouflaging much of the city.

"The emperor's palace itself is exposed," Lambie said, "since it is situated on a hilltop and part of the city would be an easy target for bombs. But the rest is hidden."

As soon as hostilities break out, Lambie said, "most of the inhabitants probably will take to the countryside." He added:

"Moreover, Italian planes would have to fly at least 350 miles from either Eritrea or Somaliland to reach Addis Ababa, and there are no landing fields en route."

NEUTRALITY MOVEMENT GAINS IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The threatened outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia today stirred new action in Washington designed to insure American neutrality in event of war.

The State Department revealed that William Perry George, charge d'affaires in Addis Ababa, had been authorized to advise the approximately 125 American citizens now in Abbysinia to concentrate in the Ethiopian capital or leave the country.

The Afro-European tension gave senate munitions investigators a new whip to speed congressional action on its proposed arms embargo and neutrality legislation.

The State Department's action toward the evacuation of this country's nationals was almost coincidental with the American note to Haile Selassie, Ethiopian emperor, rejecting a plea for invocation of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. In it Secretary Hull said this government was "loath to believe" there would be any outbreak of war.

Precautionary Move.

Responsible officials here contended, however, that the evacuation move, based upon the premise of actual hostilities, was merely the exercising of wise and necessary precautions in preparing for any eventuality.

Other nations already have taken steps for the evacuation of their nationals.

The United States has followed a similar policy when conflicts threatened in inland China and several Latin-American countries in the past.

The American government at present has no authority to order its nationals out, but can state that unless certain advice is followed proper protection cannot be given.

It was explained further in official quarters here that it might be weeks before the comparative handful of Americans in Ethiopia could be even advised of Washington's suggestions. Some are scattered 500 miles back in the mountains, far removed from Addis Ababa.

Action In Congress.

Little doubt remained, however, that the situation would spur congressional activity. Acting under the urging of Senators Nye, republican, North Dakota, and Clark, democrat, Missouri, members of the munitions committee, the senate foreign relations committee ten days ago reported out two resolutions aimed at preserving American neutrality.

One would bar Americans from the danger zone by denying them passports. The second would prohibit any private or public loans to belligerent nations. Both were aimed at preventing situations likely to induce this country to enter war.

The foreign relations committee set next Wednesday for consideration of two other neutrality resolutions sponsored by munitions committee members. One would empower the President to apply an embargo on munitions going to any belligerent nation. The other set out a long list of "contraband" articles the shipment of which would be prohibited except at the owner's risk—which would be in effect to deny protection to commerce with warring nations.

DISBARMENT ACTION IS FILED AGAINST LEE

(who, the petition says, is Mrs. Louise Nourse, a stenographer of the American Bond & Share Company) against Gorden E. Lee, a representative of the same company and a brother of Robert Lee. M. L. Dame was represented by Eldon Haldane, as attorney, and Robert Lee acted for his brother.

Won Decision.

Boykin charged the share company attorney drew papers on both sides and engineered the case for the defendant and the plaintiff.

The Tift superior court, Judge R. Eve presiding, held that the "service agreements" were not securities and the supreme court affirmed the decision.

Boykin's petition stated the whole proceeding was a fraud worked upon the courts by Robert Lee.

Certified copies of the legal papers involved in this case were attached to the solicitor's petition.

The other disbarment charge made by Boykin, for the Georgia Bar Association, was that Lee was admitted to the bar of this state on a "fictitious" recommendation purportedly from the supreme court of Indiana.

Georgia's bar requirements are that a lawyer's personal and professional character shall be recommended by the supreme court of the state in which the lawyer has practiced. The petition sets forth that the Indiana court would not recommend Lee's character but that Lee had written in the recommendations himself.

Lee was attorney for the American Bond & Share Company when it was disclosed as a scheme of the Ponzi type. He has been indicted by both state and federal grand juries and is now free under heavy bond.

The collapse of the company brought losses of thousands to Atlantans, the total loss estimated variously between $700,000 and $1,000,000. Ben R. Bradley, president of American Bond & Share, is a fugitive under indictments.

FIRM SEEKS TO HALT AAA PROCESSING TAX

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 6.—(UP)—The Fletcher Wilson Coffee Company today asked a feleral court injunction against collection of the AAA processing tax on peanuts.

The petition charges the processing taxes are unconstitutional, in similar fashion to scores of suits filed throughout the country attacking the taxes on cotton, wheat and meat.

The plaintiff and the Colonial Milling Company were granted temporary restraining orders late Friday.

Hearing on these and seven other similar suits will be held next Friday at Winchester, Tenn.

BRITAIN WILL TRY TO HALT CONFLICT IN NORTH AFRICA

England's Plans for Avoiding Open Battle Between Ethiopia and Italy Are Kept Secret.

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—Britain's government will try again next week to avert an Italo-Ethiopian war but without much hope of success.

This was learned tonight. High diplomatic quarters said Britain was ready to follow the United States in urging all her nationals in Ethiopia to leave at once.

Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, and Captain Anthony Eden, secretary for League of Nations affairs, will talk the situation over with J. A. C. Avenol, League secretary-general, who arrives Monday.

What form Britain's new drive for peace would take remained obscure but unofficial observers — recalling many recent hints from Rome that Italy would forsake Geneva if the League "meddled" in her Ethiopian dispute—agreed that the entire future of the 15-year-old peace body was bound up in it.

If Italy resigned from the League because of any future action of the Geneva body, it would mean an entire new deal in European affairs, sources close to the situation said.

They asserted neither Britain nor France would be surprised to see Germany try to link up with Britain in giving the cold shoulder to Italy.

Astonishment continued in some quarters that France had offered no objections to Mussolini's removal of so many troops from the Austrian front, since the outlook for settlement of southern European problems remained highly uncertain.

WE CANNOT TURN BACK, SHOUTS MUSSOLINI

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

ROME, July 6.—A ringing battle cry from Benito Mussolini echoed through Italy tonight as the country turned to preparations for the war with Ethiopia now believed inevitable.

Before nearly 15,000 blackshirt volunteers destined for service in East Africa who gathered at the Salerno today, Il Duce, cheered to the echo, declared:

"We have decided upon a struggle in which we as a government and a people will not turn back. The decision is irretrievable."

A cannon top was Il Duce's rostrum for his fighting speech, and the throng of eager-faced youths roaring approval of his words, included four of his own kinsmen. They were of the battalion from Forli, the premior's home town. In Rome the leader's two aviator sons, Vittorio and Bruno, signed up for African service.

Quick Departure Seen.

The Forli unit, with three other blackshirt and two regular army divisions, went over equipment in expectation of speedy departure for the African adventure.

Meanwhile the steamer Celio left Naples with 22 officers and 600 men aboard, while the Principessa Maria began loading 40 officers and 1,350 men for departure tomorrow.

The Naples sailing, together with the troops scheduled to put out from Salerno, will push well past 130,000 men in the army Italy has concentrated in her African colonies for hostilities expected to begin after the rainy season ends in September.

Special transports have carried 107,000 soldiers and workmen who may be converted into soldiers. About 10,000 more have gone on weekly mailboats.

New Military Equipment.

They carried with them the most astounding military equipment Africa has ever seen—flame throwers, gas outfits, the latest thing in tanks and airplanes and equipment for covering vast areas with chemicals designed to burn the bare feet of Emperor Haile Selassie's soldiers.

While fascists rejoiced at Mussolini's escape from harm when lightning struck the wireless antennae of his big three-motor airship while it was fighting its way down through an electrical storm to the little west coast town, authoritative sources here reiterated that Italy neither wanted nor would accept mediation of her conflict with Ethiopia.

Once again they declared the matter one to be settled—and settled once for all—directly between Italy and Ethiopia. Italy wants no half settlement such as territorial concessions, they said.

If Haile Selassie is willing to ask Italy to assume an armed protectorate over his country, these sources said, then war may be avoided. If not, war is certain.

Il Duce In Top Form.

Nothing daunted by his near-disaster, Il Duce was in top oratorical form as he told his massed fighting men the die was cast.

"Remember," he said, "that Italians have always defeated the black races. Adua (where an Italian invading force was badly beaten by ill-equipped, but numerically superior, Ethiopian defenders in 1896) was an exception only because of the difference in proportion between the forces. There were only 4,000 Italians against 100,000 Ethiopians."

Declaring the earlier Ethiopian conflict unfortunate for Italy because she was less concerned about her soldiers than with "miserable questions of parliament—an institution his fascist regime has virtually abandoned—Mussolini continued:

"Italy today is rewriting an heroic page of her history."

Nation Behind Sons.

He asserted the entire nation was "behind her sons who are leaving for Africa," and paraphrased the famed fascist slogan "better to live one day as a lion than 100 years as a lamb" in this wise:

"Every Italian prefers a life of heroism to a life of uselessness."

That phrase brought the greatest ovation from the Italian youths ready to join the more than 100,000 men Italy already has sent to her colonies adjoining Ethiopia.

Colonel Attilio Biseo, the leader's favorite co-pilot, who accompanied General Italo Balbo on his mass flight to Chicago, was at the controls with Il Duce both on the flight down and the flight back.

Government Relieved.

Il Duce returned to Rome to find his government, obviously relieved at the United States government's disinclination to do anything about Ethiopia's appeal to the provisions of the Kellogg anti-war pact, pushing forward energetically the enormous preparations for war.

The latest of Mussolini's many narrow escapes from death, the lightning bolt that struck his plane, did no damage to the radio. The operator, however, fainted, quickly recovering and reporting the occurrence.

Official reaction to the Washington government's reply to Emperor Haile Selassie's appeal was one of unmistakable relief.

A government spokesman said previously, however, that nothing could change Italy's attitude toward Ethiopia. That attitude Mussolini explained to Captain Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, on the latter's recent peace mission to Rome, and official quarters said the Briton was informed nothing less than an armed Italian protectorate over the African empire would satisfy Italy.

While Washington's stand was regarded as more incisive than London's, it was pointed out that England had two more reasons than the United States to intervene: Her concern for the possible fate of the League of Nations, and her interest in Lake Tsana, in Ethiopia, which supplies part of the water for the Egyptian Sudan.

Italian newspapers headlined Paris dispatches saying Premier Pierre Laval had returned an emphatic "no" to British requests that she join in trying to keep Italy out of Ethiopia.

Plan Rejected by Il Duce

Although Great Britain expressed a willingness in conversations with Italy to give Ethiopia a corridor to the sea (Zeilah), if she would make concessions to Italy, Premier Benito Mussolini rejected the plan. This is the first time in modern history that Great Britain ever has offered to give up any land.

MONARCH REVIEWS BRITISH AIR FLEET

King George, Queen Mary Observe 42d Wedding Anniversary Quietly.

MILDENHALL AIRDROME, July 6.—(AP)—King George celebrated his 42d wedding anniversary today by reviewing the massed might of Great Britain's air force.

Accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, who were dressed in Royal Air Force blue like their father, the King drove up and down the updrawn squadrons. He paused occasionally and left his open car to chat with officers who explained the newest details of the airplanes.

After motoring to Duxford, where Queen Mary joined the King, the royal couple were to return to Buckingham palace for a quiet anniversary observance.

Some 350 fighting planes of all types, gathered from 38 Royal Air Force squadrons, were inspected by the monarch.

An elaborate official reception preceded the inspection of the guard of honor. The King was accompanied by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary of state for air.

King George, who had been forced to cancel numerous jubilee festivities in early June, appeared well rested, bronzed and in good health.

VETERANS PRAISE HITLER ARMAMENT

Meeting With Army, They Declare Peace Depends on Ex-Soldiers.

KASSEL, Germany, July 6.—(AP)—Germany's old and new armies met today for the first time since Reichsfuehrer Hitler created the new reichswehr, in a mass demonstration in which 300,000 former soldiers participated.

The occasion was the fifth biannual meeting of the kyffhaeuser bund, Germany's largest organization of former soldiers, similar in many respects to the American Legion.

The veterans' first wish, their leader, Colonel Wilhelm Reinhard, said, was to thank Reichsfuehrer Hitler for his recent decree establishing universal military service.

"European peace and happiness depend," he said, "on the former soldiers. We are not thinking about war."

The kyffhaeuser bund, which is working with Hitler in an effort to bring battle-front fighters of all countries together sent greetings to French and English veterans' organizations. The torchlight procession in which grey-beared veterans of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 participated was held tonight.

American, British and Japanese military attaches were here to witness the demonstrations.

DOUG, LADY ASHLEY FLY TO VANCOUVER, B.C.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 6.—(AP) Douglas Fairbanks Sr., arrived by airplane today from Hollywood and with Lady Ashley, his companion on a trip to the South seas, planned a week-end fishing trip to Vancouver island.

He expected to fly back to Hollywood Monday for further business conferences with his former wife, Mary Pickford, and other film studio associates.

Lady Ashley expressed concern over reports that she has been banned from entering the United States.

"I did not even apply for a permit," she said. "On this same five-month cruise I visited Florida and there was no difficulty. It's a lot of fuss over a trifle."

United States immigration officials here have also denied that Lady Ashley was banned.

TOKYO ULTIMATUM THREATENS FIGHT TO SEIZE CONTROL

Right to Station Military Observers Is Demanded by Nippon as Possible Jap-Russ Strife Looms.

MOSCOW, July 6. — (AP) — Independent Mongolia today formally accused the Japanese army, already virtual master of north China, of plotting to seize Mongolian territory.

A communique issued at Ulan Bator, Mongolian capital, and published in the official soviet press, said Manchoukuan and Japanese forces had delivered an ultimatum demanding the right to maintain military observers in Mongolian territory. It made this charge:

"Recent events prove that Manchoukuo, with the Japanese army's support, wishes to avoid peaceful settlement of border incidents and prepare the way for further occupation of our territory."

Mongolia, with its soviet type of government, is closely related politically with the U. S. S. R. Its borders march with Siberia's for many miles. Manchoukuo lies to its east. North China, into which the Japanese army has penetrated deeply during recent months, is southeast.

Follow Border Strife.

The Japanese demands followed several Mongol-Manchoukuan border incidents which were termed provocative in nature. They were presented even as Russia's diplomatic representative at Tokyo was busy seeking assurances against repetition of similar incidents, including alleged invasion of soviet territory, along the Siberia-Manchoukuo frontier.

A note which Chan Kei, head of the Manchoukuan foreign ministry, and high Japanese army officers handed July 4 to the Mongolian section of the mixed Mongol-Manchoukuan committee studying the border incidents contained the demands, the Mongolian communique said. It called them "entirely unwarranted" and "intolerable."

The Japanese army, Mongolia said, asked the right of permanent residence for military observers, the right for them to move about freely and keep contact with Manchoukuo and permission to run telegraph lines into Mongolia to facilitate this communication.

Would Oust Army.

Failing Mongolia's compliance, the communique asserted, Japan threatened to demilitarize much of the eastern section of Mongolia by forcing the withdrawal of Mongolian troops.

A recent dispatch from Tientsin, China, quoted foreign military observers as expressing the opinion Japan's north China and Mongolia policy was designed primarily to guarantee her freedom of communications and freedom from trouble to the south in case she came to war with the soviet.

While the Mongol-Japanese issue was regarded here with great gravity, soviet officials withheld comment pending further developments.

The threat to demand the withdrawal of Mongolian troops was held to be particularly serious, since Mongolia skirts an important part of the soviet union. Observers said occupation by Japanese and Manchoukuan troops of Mongolia, or part of Mongolia, would greatly increase chance of further Russo-Japanese friction.

TOBACCO MAGNATE WILL WED MONDAY

G. W. Hill Will Marry Secretary in Simple London Ceremony.

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—George Washington Hill, 51-year-old American tobacco magnate, is expected to wed his 39-year-old secretary, Mary Barnes, before Registrar W. J. Lickley at the Caxton Hall registry office Monday.

Mystery surrounding preparations for the marriage of the two New Yorkers, which had been impenetrable since they gave notice July 3 of their intention to marry, was partly cleared today with this disclosure by friends.

No explanation was given of Hill's rigid seclusion since his visit to the registrar's office, although one report said he spent the last few days at a nursing home recovering from an arm injury. He was seen last week wearing a sling.

Miss Barnes, who is slight, of medium height and who has the efficient manner of an American business woman, also has remained in her hotel room.

JEAN PATOU PRESENTS RECEIVERSHIP PETITION

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—Jean Patou, noted Parisian fashion designer, today filed a petition for a receivership and announced he was arranging with his creditors to continue in business temporarily.

Patou, who was the first French couturier to bring American girls to Paris as mannequins to capture the American trade, averaged 50,000,000 francs yearly (then about $2,000,000) in business during the boom years when half of his customers were Americans.

Many of his competitors have been forced to close since the depression hit the dressmaking trade and many merged with other houses when the tourist stream to Paris dwindled.

DEATH SENTENCE GIVEN TWO HUNGARIAN SPIES

BUDAPEST, July 6.—(AP)—Convicted of prying into Hungary's military secrets, two men, one of them a Czechoslovak citizen, were sentenced to death today by a Hungarian court.

Lajos Szeldeczki, the Czechoslovakian, was sought recently as he was allegedly trying to smuggle a document containing military secrets across the frontier. He was wounded and captured by border guards after an exchange of pistol shots.

Investigation revealed that Miklos Szamossalvi, a corporal in the Hungarian army, had assisted him. Their four-day trial ended today with the gallows sentence.

The hour for the execution was not set.

BANKS SAID PROFITING BY U. S. SILVER POLICY

Senator Thomas, 40 Others To Demand Stability for Both Metals.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Contending banks were using the treasury's silver buying machinery for their own profit, Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, said today that President Roosevelt will be served immediately with a request backed by 40 senators for early stabilization of gold and silver.

The 40 senators, including members from all but about a dozen states, appended their names to a letter addressed by Thomas to the President requesting adherence to the monetary policy adopted by the last congress. Under the terms of that, this government was pledged to continue buying silver until either one quarter of the nation's monetary metal was silver or until the price of that metal had reached $1.29 an ounce.

Commenting on the recent drop in the price of silver from a high of 81 cents, to about 69 cents, Thomas contended the banks, with forehanded knowledge of when the treasury was to buy or sell silver, were able to profit either on the upturn or the drop.

The Oklahoman emphasized he did not accuse either Secretary Morgenthau or the banks with "duplicity" but insisted "banks will be banks" when an opportunity for profit is offered.

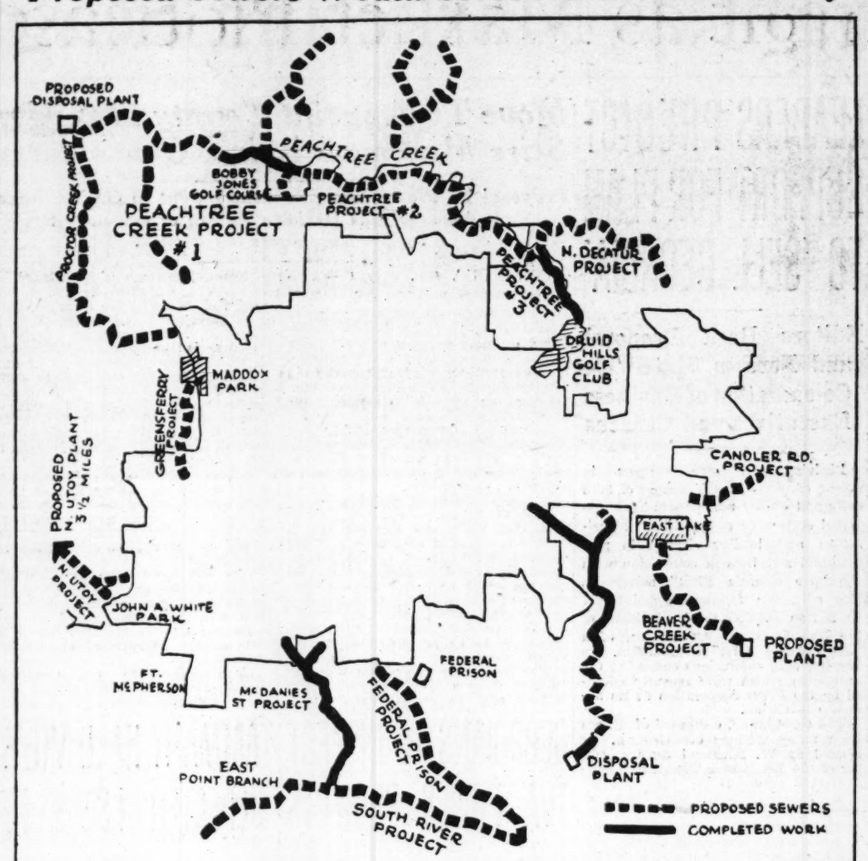

Thomas said if purchasing is pressed the $1.29 price would be reached long before the United States had reached its prescribed quota of $3,000,000,000 of monetary silver.

"The United States is able to fix the price of silver at any point desirable," Thomas said in an interview.

Thus armed with control of the silver price and with a large voice in determining the price of gold, Thomas said the United States should enter an international conference for stabilization of gold and silver in a bimetallic currency system.

He made no suggestion of a time for calling such a conference, but declared the United States should lead out by forcing the price of silver and gold to be determined on the basis of the relative production of the two metals. This, he said, would be at 16 to 1 or less.

Proposed Sewers Would Serve All Sections of City

Every section of metropolitan Atlanta and every citizen inside the city will benefit materially from the projected modernization of the sanitary sewer system, it was disclosed yesterday in a map prepared by William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction in charge of sewers, and reproduced above. A network of trunk-line sewers 54 miles long is shown in the solid black lines. These will be built by the government and will range from eight inches to eight feet in diameter. Five large disposal plants, adequate to care for Atlanta's present needs and for many years to come will be constructed as shown in the map. The map shows in dotted lines about six miles of trunk lines which already have been constructed.

'PERFECT CRIME' VICTIM IS BURIED IN MISSOURI

Special Grand Jury Will Be Asked To Complete Northcutt Death Probe.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 6.—(UP) Mrs. Eula Northcutt, comely wife of the Boone county superintendent of schools who was, police say, the victim of a "perfect crime," was buried late today.

Lieutenant Frank Fenton said he would ask for a special grand jury Monday to complete the investigation.

Since she was found dead in the living room of her home July 3, investigators have found no tangible clues. Neither have they determined a motive for the slaying although they announced they were working on a tip that a jealous woman might have been responsible.

After funeral services, police renewed their questioning of Charles E. Northcutt, the husband, who is a World War veteran. He is 46. His wife was 38.

During a seven-hour examination Northcutt, hysterical and requiring opiates to steady his nerves, gave investigators little information. Witnesses have corroborated his story from every angle.

CLEAR, HOT WEATHER IS FORECAST FOR TODAY

Fair and continued warm weather is in store for Atlanta today, with the mercury hitting a maximum of 92 degrees in midafternoon, according to George W. Mindling, local meteorologist.

Atlantans may plan picnics or motor trips today with impunity, as even the local showers which characterized north Georgia weather last week will be absent.

Temperatures continue to range slightly above normal, with the high reading yesterday being 91 degrees.

CREDIT DICTATORSHIP BY RESERVE IS URGED

Goldsborough Asks Pressure on Senators to Defeat Compromise Plan.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Centralization of credit control exclusively in the federal reserve board as a means of outlawing banker influences was urged tonight by Representative Goldsborough, democrat, Maryland.

The house banking committee member appealed over the radio for public pressure on senators to support credit-control provisions of the house banking bill as opposed to the compromise plan drafted by the senate banking committee.

The formal report on the redrafted bill was filed in the senate by Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia. The revised measure, giving authority to a seven-member reserve board and five representatives of the 12 federal reserve banks to prevent dangerous inflations and deflations, will not come before the senate until late next week.

The Glass report merely digested the changes made in the house bill and gave few reasons for them. It did say the house credit control sections had been "altered considerably."

Goldsborough said both senate and house bill were improvements over existing law, but neither "entirely divorces the currency from the banking system.

The Glass report merely described but made no comments on the clause to permit banks of deposits to return to the security business under strict limitations. This provision has divided bankers and caused President Roosevelt to express concern lest former evils of dual commercial and investment banking return.

2 Negroes Burn to Death.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Fannie Tate, negro woman, reported to be 100 years old, and her daughter, Lola Walker, 42, were burned to death here this morning when trapped by flames on the second floor of a frame building.

EARLY VOTE IS URGED ON SEWER BOND ISSUE

will confer with Mayor Key and construction department heads Monday with a view of asking the sewer committee to approve Tuesday afternoon an early vote on the bond issue.

"I think we should act now while that money is available for the sewer program, which we know we must build," Reynolds said. "Further delay may mean that the offer will be withdrawn and that Atlanta will be forced to provide the $6,000,000 from its own coffers. The city cannot afford to do that.

"Atlanta never before had such a generous offer. Why we spent half the amount asked for the sanitary sewers for a survey of the metropolitan area! It would be silly to fail to take advantage of this proposition."

Urges Early Action.

Hansell yesterday urged early action because of the fact that "men need work and this money is now ready to be expended."

"If for no other reason, we should take whatever steps are necessary to get this money for Atlanta," Hansell said. "It means work for men who need employment. These men do not want charity. All they ask is a chance to earn an honest living.

"But there is another major angle to this issue. We must modernize our sewer system. We must cease to dump millions of gallons of untreated sewage every day into every stream surrounding the city. Several injunction suits are now pending in the courts. The people who have filed them have a real claim on the city. They are being injured.

"City Attorney Jack C. Savage and the late City Attorney James L. Mayson both advised us that we had no defense in court against these suits. That is a positive fact. If those suits are pressed, they mean that the city must act. The courts in all probability will order it.

"The bond issue will obviate all these difficulties and will wipe the slate clean. Those who have filed the suits have not pressed them because they have relied on the city to do the right thing at the proper time.

Time Has Arrived.

"That time has now arrived. Never before has Atlanta been offered a proposition so greatly in favor of the interests of the city and the citizens of Atlanta. We are getting $5,500,000 worth of sanitary sewer improvements and are asked to expend only $1,000,000. Has any such offer ever been made to the city before? I never heard of it.

"If we fail to vote the sewer bonds and provide the $1,000,000 in order that this program can proceed at once, we are facing withdrawal of the sewer fund.

"Then when we go into the courts if those suits should be pressed, we will have to levy an emergency tax against all property owners throughout the city. Every one of them must pay. They will not have to pay $1,000,000 under that plan, but $5,500,000.

"Atlanta does not want this and I do not believe the people of this city want any such thing to occur.

"Intolerable Condition."

"For decades Atlanta has polluted streams in and near the city. It has dumped millions of gallons of untreated sewage into streams every day. This condition has made life most intolerable for persons living along those streams. This is not confined to any one section either. We are guilty of this on every watershed leaving the city.

"I feel sure that this matter is of such vital importance that Atlantans will rectify these conditions. They are a real health menace. The Fulton County Medical Society, the state and city health departments and every organization interested in mass health of the community have warned against the continued use of open streams for sewage trunks."

Edwards pointed out yesterday that elimination of stream contamination would reduce the typhoid threat and would do much to eliminate the mosquito.

"This sewer problem is one affecting and striking vitally at the health of the community," he asserted. "Children are more subject to typhoid than adults. They play in streams, and if the water is contaminated, they are subjected to the germs. Elimination of the pollution would reduce the contamination and would also help us in our fight against mosquitoes.

Epidemic Would Spread.

"If the proposed sewer program is consummated, it will be a long step in the interest of the health and the comfort of the community. I am speaking solely from the health standpoint and that of the convenience of the city of Atlanta and its environs. If an epidemic should break out even several miles from the city, it would spread with alarming rapidity unless checked and many Atlantans might be victims. We should not even take that chance even if we are disposed to be selfish about the sewers."

Donaldson urged action to take advantage of the offer and also that the work may proceed as rapidly as possible.

"While I have no definite commitment, I doubt that the entire program can be completed with the money set up," Donaldson asserted. "The federal government, however, is asking us for only $1,000,000 for the sanitary sewers and $500,000 for the storm water sewers. If more money is needed, I am sure that the federal government will contribute it.

"We must modernize the outmoded sewer system. That is an admitted fact even by those who would oppose a bond issue for any purpose. The time has come when we can delay no longer. We have a proposition which we cannot afford to accept.

Facing Real Crisis.

"Atlantans always have lived up to their responsibilities and have always responded in any crisis. We are facing a real crisis now in our sewer disposal. If anyone doubts that I invite him to ride along the banks of any stream of any consequence in or around the city and see for himself. Every one of them is polluted.

"We are responsible for the pollution. It is up to us to stop it. We have that opportunity now at a ridiculously low outlay on the part of our citizens."

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of council's finance committee, yesterday was studying the requests of WPA of the city in connection with the other projected improvements for Atlanta.

Need for construction of asphalt runways at Candler field prompted the WPA to set up $326,590 to make the field the finest in the south. The ground is now being prepared for the asphalt and thousands of yards of grading have been done on the field under a FERA project.

$209,150 or Schools.

Atlanta schools would get $209,150 from WPA under the announced schedule of projects, and they are asked to pay $31,530 of the costs of materials. Repairs, remodeling and painting of schools are supposed to be included in the list, but none of the school officials yesterday knew what projects have been sanctioned.

A list asking for $435,000 for 16 projects had been filed with federal officials and included $60,000 for improvements at Boys' High school, remodeling and repairing of the dome at Girls' High school, and improvements which included the following other schools:

Haygood, Highland, Adair, Sylvan Hills, Home Park, Sam Inman, Williams Street, Faith and Connally, for white children, and Howard and Davis, for negroes.

Board Meets Tuesday.

It was anticipated that the board of education at its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon will consider what it can do to obtain the $31,530 necessary to begin work on the improvements.

Grady hospital is slated to get $143,173 worth of federal funds if $15,135 is supplied by the city.

Carnegie library will get $19,668 for completion of the addition there if $300 is supplied by the city.

It was believed that the finance committee will consider seriously the Candler field and the Carnegie library projects at its Tuesday afternoon meeting.

School finances are separate from the city, but it was expected that an effort to get the mayor and council to provide the $31,500 needed by then will be made.

PRESS VINDICATED IN CRITICAL RIGHTS

Kansas Court Rules Papers Privileged in Discussing Candidates.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 6.—(AP)—The Kansas supreme court held today newspapers have the right to discuss the records of public officials and to call attention of voters to facts they believe to be true relative to candidates for public office.

The court reversed judgment of the Reily county district court in awarding Hurst Majors, former mayor of Manhattan, $1,750 damages against Fay N. Seaton, publisher of the Manhattan Mercury and Chronicle, in a libel action.

Majors asked $30,000 damages for attacks made on him by the newspaper during his campaign for street and utility commissioner.

The court's opinion said:

"In connection with the coming municipal election, it is the right, if not the duty, of the publisher of the newspaper of the city, to call to the attention of the citizens facts which he honestly believes to be true, together with such comment thereon as is reasonably connected therewith, for the purpose of enabling the electors to vote more intelligently at the election, and if done in good faith, the publication is privileged even though some of the statements may be untrue or derogatory to the character of the candidate."

DISCREET INFIDELITY HELD NO DIVORCE BASIS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Raymond E. Aldrich's decision that a husband's infidelities, carried on discreetly and quietly, did not warrant a legal separation on adultery grounds, was explained today as applying only to the wife's charge of mental cruelty.

Justice Aldrich granted a separation to Mrs. Etta S. Miller, at White Plains, N. Y., yesterday, holding that she was deserted by Robert McWilliam Miller, an attorney, but ruled against the wife's contention that she also was entitled to the decree because of her husband's affairs with Mlle. Marguerite Jeanneret, pretty French maid in the Miller household.

"The infidelity was brought into the case to show there had been mental cruelty," Justice Aldrich said from his chambers in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. "I held that since the wife was not aware of it she could not have suffered mental cruelty."

MAN SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN AUTO HITS TREE

William D. Walraven, 37, of 977 White street, was seriously injured last night when he lost control, according to police, of the car he was driving at Ashby and Cunningham streets and the machine struck a tree.

Walraven was taken by W. H. Mitcham, of 425 Ashby street, to Grady hospital, where it was discovered that Walraven had suffered a deep laceration of the temple which had cut an artery. His condition was pronounced serious due to loss of blood.

EXECUTIVE FOUND SLAIN IN BEDROOM

Police Seek Identity of Assailant After Discovery of Bullet-Riddled Body.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(AP)—The hacked and bullet-riddled body of George F. Buchanan, a printing company executive, was found in his bedroom today amid the wreckage of blood-soaked furniture.

The body was discovered by an employe of a restaurant in the same building, sent to summon Buchanan by two half-brothers who had not seen him for more than 30 years.

Buchanan, clad only in underclothes, had been shot several times. A deep gash at the base of his skull, detectives said, may have been caused by a heavy knife or a hatchet. His head and face were badly bruised by some heavy weapon. He had been dead several hours.

A small-caliber rifle which police said belonged to Buchanan lay on the floor near his outstretched fingers. It had not been discharged. By the bed, from which Buchanan evidently had been aroused by the intruder, lay a copy of "Monsieur Lecocq," a murder mystery by the French author Emile Gaborioux.

Detective Daniel O'Mahoney, of the homicide squad, said Buchanan's wallet and a diamond ring he habitually wore were missing from the room. His expensive platinum watch lay in full sight on the floor, however.

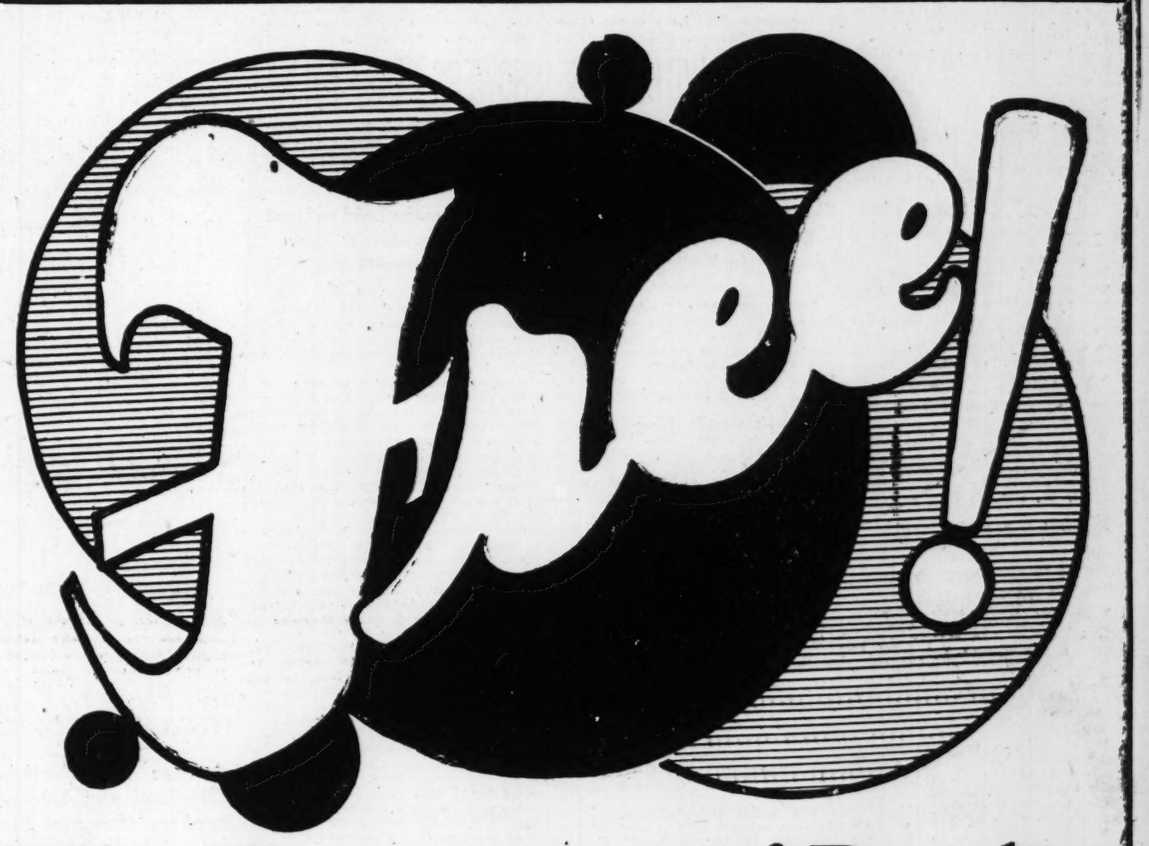

S. ROY SIMS DIES AT RESIDENCE HERE

Member of Prominent Atlanta Family Passes After Short Illness.

S. Roy Sims, member of a prominent Atlanta family, died yesterday at the family residence, 716 Penn avenue, after a short illness. He was a manufacturer's representative for an automobile commodity and was well known here.

Surviving are his wife; two brothers, G. H. Sims and J. E. Sims, of New Orleans; four sisters, Mrs. R. C. Cassels, Mrs. R. L. Logan, Mrs. Chauncey Middlebrooks and Mrs. Grover Middlebrooks.

Mr. Sims had been a resident of Atlanta for many years and was a member of the Methodist church. Funeral services will be held Monday and arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

STATE EDUCATORS COMPLETE PLANS FOR CONVENTION

More Than 40 Leaders in School Work and Other Fields To Appear Before Convention July 15 to 18

ATHENS, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—More than 40 prominent Georgians, leaders in social work and other fields, are to appear on the four-day program of the annual state educational conference at the University of Georgia July 15-18.

While the conference primarily is for school superintendents, teachers and members of education boards, laymen have been asked to attend the sessions.

The various addresses will be part of the general conference theme: "Education not only a national asset but the chief asset of these United States."

Scheduled Speakers.

The list of scheduled speakers follows:

Monday, July 15: Paul Barrett, State Department of Education; H. A. Woodward, FERA educational supervisor; Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state relief administrator; Dr. John T. Wheeler, University of Georgia.

Tuesday: State Senator W. M. Lester and Representative W. N. Lanier, Augusta; Jere Wells, Fulton county school superintendent; Tate Wright, Athens; Philip Weltner, retiring chancellor of the State University System; T. Hicks Fort, Columbus.

Harold Saxon, vice president, Georgia Education Association; Kirk Sutlive, Blackshear, president Georgia Press Association; Bunyan Stephens, district Rotary governor; A. Steve Nance, president, Georgia Federation of Labor; Mrs. Charles D. Center, state president of the Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Superintendent Walter P. Jones, of Bibb county school; Judge Clement Sutton, Wilkes county representative; Marion Smith, chairman of the board of regents; President Spright Dowell, of Mercer University.

Wednesday: Superintendent Claude Purcell, of Habersham county schools; President T. J. Lance, of Young Harris College; Dr. Harry Little, Georgia State College for Women; Mrs. Clara M. Varnadoe, Evans county superintendent of schools; Dr. L. R. Alderman, director of the educational division of the FERA; Superintendent Ralph Newton, of Waycross city schools.

William P. Patterson, Hackensack, N. J.; Dr. Paul R. Morrow, University of Georgia; Superintendent J. L. Laden, Moultrie city schools; President H. W. Cox, of Emory University.

President Guy H. Wells, of G. S. C. W.; President M. S. Pittman, South Georgia Teachers' College; President Dice R. Anderson, of Wesleyan College.

Final Day's Program.

Thursday: Superintendent J. E. Purks, of Cedartown city schools; Mark Smith, president of the Georgia High School Association; President Aquilla Chamlee, of Bessie Tift College; Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; Mrs. S. C. Patterson, Clinch county superintendent of schools.

W. J. Andrews, president, Georgia Association of Superintendents; Miss Epsie Campbell, state supervisor of home economics; Mrs. Mary Lunday Soule, University of Georgia; President George King, of Abraham Baldwin College, Tifton; L. L. Perry, secretary of the Georgia Commission on Elementary Schools; Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the State College of Agriculture.

CLEMENCY IS OPPOSED FOR ALLEGED RIOTER

ROME, Ga., July 6.—Solicitor-General J. Fred Kelly, of the Rome circuit, superior court, has written the Georgia prison commission opposing clemency for E. J. Huggins, convicted last September in Chattooga county of assault with intent to murder in connection with the death of Deputy Sheriff W. M. Hix, killed in a textile strike disturbance at Trion.

Solicitor-General Kelley received notice Tuesday that Huggins had filed a petition for executive clemency. Huggins and several other defendants were convicted of assault with intent to murder and Huggins was sentenced to 12 months when the jury recommended that he be punished for a misdemeanor. His appeal was dismissed by the court of appeals.

Charlie McClain, of Bartow county, was convicted of murder in connection with Deputy Sheriff Hix' death and was given a life sentence. An appeal is pending in his case, Kelly said.

COTTON CROP GROUP NAMED AT TENNILLE

TENNILLE, Ga., July 6.—Appointment of a group to take the cotton acreage measurements of Washington county have been appointed by J. K. West, farm agent. The group includes J. R. Andrews, W. H. Barksdale, C. C. Cobb, J. L. Clayton, W. T. Dudley, W. E. Doolittle, J. S. Garner, H. C. Gilbert, Roy Hodges, H. G. Harrison, C. J. Hodges, G. R. Harrison, R. A. Mathis, S. P. McAfee, C. C. Newsome, B. E. Layton, J. E. Shurling, Luther Sheppard, S. E. Smith, J. W. Wommack and J. S. Williamson.

The work will get under way Monday.

Status of Roosevelt Highway Work To Be Studied at Florida Meeting

Group Will Meet at Jacksonville To Map Plans for Completion of "Missing Links" on Route Running Washington to St. Petersburg Through Warm Springs.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., July 6.—Formulation of plans to complete the "missing links" of the Franklin D. Roosevelt highway, which is routed through Warm Springs, the Georgia home of the president, will be undertaken at a meeting here sometime this month.

The highway, when completed, will run from Washington to St. Petersburg, through Warm Springs, Ga.; Tallahassee, and down the west coast of Florida.

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway Association was organized here more than a year ago.

Its officers are W. H. Haley, president, of Albany, Ga.; Hattie Hardy, secretary, Albany, and W. T. Edwards, vice president, Jacksonville.

State directors are: Georgia, L. W. McPherson, Columbus; Florida, Dr. C. M. Ausley; Alabama, Henry J. Kittrell, Mobile; North Carolina, A. Max Gardner, Washington; Virginia, John Garland Pollard, Washington; Louisiana, L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans, and South Carolina, Charles O. Hearon, Spartanburg.

Conference Date Not Set.

The exact date for the conference here has not been arranged.

While several attempts have been made to organize other Roosevelt memorial highways in recent months, this organization early received recognition from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, from the National Park Commission, and from the National Forest Service.

President Roosevelt, it is understood, has given his approval to the highway in conversation with various senators and representatives through whose states the road would travel.

Through a special act of the Georgia legislature, the highway was routed through Warm Springs, where President Roosevelt visits often.

The uncompleted parts of the highway in Georgia are being completed rapidly and a celebration will be held later this month at Columbus and a motorcade will proceed from there over the new road to Tallahassee, Wakulla Springs and the gulf coast.

Florida now plans to complete a short stretch south of Tallahassee, via Wakulla Springs and when the lower part of the Gulf Coast highway has been completed in Taylor, Dixie and Levy counties, a through coastal highway will have been provided to the Everglades National park and Miami.

The western branch of the Roosevelt highway is directed over the Gulf Coast highway in Florida.

The route of the Franklin D. Roosevelt highway includes the use of many existing roads.

Scenic Route.

Out of Washington the road will run to the Shenandoah National park at Panorama, then over the Skyland drive to Lexington, Va., then to Roanoke, on to Bristol, then to Asheville, N. C., passing through the Great Smokies and following as far as possible the national parks and national forests' scenic route into Toccoa, Ga.

The road then connects with Atlanta, Warm Springs, Columbus, Albany, Thomasville and to Tallahassee over established federal roads. From Tallahassee the road will run to Wakulla Springs, then to St. Petersburg, over the Gulf Coast highway and then over the Tamiami Trail to the Everglades National park and Miami.

A western branch follows the Gulf Coast highway through Apalachicola, St. Joe, Panama City, Pensacola, Mobile and to New Orleans.

GOODRICH WITHHOLDS PLEA IN GIRL'S DEATH

Slayer of 11-Year-Old Child Declares Wife Innocent in Killing.

DETROIT, July 6.—(AP)—Merton W. Goodrich, at the end of the long flight that began last September after the brutal slaying of 11-year-old Lillian Gallaher, said today he was "ready to get it over with" but would not plead until he knew the fate of his wife.

"I don't want to make any more trouble," said the thin-faced confessed slayer. "I know I don't need a trial, but if they file charges against my wife I'll plead not guilty.

"I don't want her bothered. She is innocent."

Goodrich, and the wife who said she stayed with her husband after he told her of the assault and murder "because he begged me not to leave him," were confronted by Frank Gallaher, father of the former trap drummer's victim.

Gallaher hurried to police headquarters a few minutes after the train arrived from New York, where the former inmate of the Lima State Hospital for the Insane was picked up when a patrolman saw him attempting to attract the attention of children in a Central park wading pool.

"I want to have a look at that fellow," Gallaher said, and was led into the room where Goodrich waited nervously.

The sallow musician groaned and hid his haggard face in his hands as Gallaher stared searchingly at him. The visitor ended the silent, accusing scrutiny abruptly, muttered "crazy-looking guy" almost inaudibly, and went to another room to view Mrs. Goodrich.

The drummer's wife returned Gallaher's stare momentarily, then wept.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said he planned to arraign Goodrich Monday but that he would not decide what action to take against Mrs. Goodrich pending further questioning.

Goodrich identified the hammer with which he killed the girl, the rope with which he trussed her up, and the trunk into which he stuffed the body before fleeing from his one-room apartment.

Preparations to forestall a demonstration against Goodrich upon his arrival proved unnecessary. He was hurried from the train, through the station baggage room and into a police car. Few spectators were aware of his identity.

U. S. POSTAL EMPLOYE QUITS AFTER 31 YEARS

DALTON, Ga., July 6.—After 31 years in the postal service here, Phil B. Sapp voluntarily retired Saturday. Prior to his connection with the postoffice here Mr. Sapp resided at Broad Acre in this county, where he was born and reared. Later he was postmaster at Fillmore, in Whitfield county, and when the office was discontinued he became connected with the postoffice here.

BOY GAMBLERS PLUNG WITH 1 1-2-MILL COINS

QUINCY, Ill., July 6.—(AP)—Gambling reached a new low level today.

Newsboys and bootblacks were pitching the new 1 1-2 mill sales tax tokens at cracks in the sidewalk, safe from prosecution, since the "coins" were not legal tender.

Rome Postal Receipts Fall.

ROME, Ga., July 6.—Postal receipts here for the month of June totaled $12,086.81 as compared with $12,995.81 for May, Postmaster W. E. Wimberly announced today.

SHOWERS BRING RELIEF TO SULTRY MIDWEST

Score of Deaths Laid to Heat as Temperatures Near 100-Degree Mark.

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—The sun relented today after the first general demonstration of its summer power which caused, directly or indirectly, a score of deaths.

Temperatures were in or near the 90's and as high as 100 degrees over wide areas, but discomfort was lessened by cooling showers and winds and a forecast for more moderate weather over most of the nation.

Though Kansas continued to bake, its maximum of 100 degrees at Dodge City, was four degrees under the previous day's high of 104.

Henry Roebuck, a farmer, died after a sunstroke in a wheat field near Clarence, Mo. Three heat deaths in Ohio and another in Indiana brought the total directly attributable to this cause in the past two days to 13. Seven other persons were drowned.

The first real taste of summer was not entirely unwelcomed. While city residents suffered, farmers especially in the corn belt rejoiced. It was just what they have been ordering for weeks. A report from Humboldt county, Iowa, said corn had responded by growing two inches daily during the past three days of sunshine.

Retailers too said they had encountered this week the first strong demand for vacation supplies. As a result gains for their business over the same period last year were reported from Washington as "noteworthy."

High temperatures for the day included: 95 at Kansas City, 90 at Cleveland, 88 at Detroit, 86 in Washington, 85 in Chicago, and around 90 in Indiana. The mercury dropped 8 degrees to 80 in Portland, Maine, and "normal" weather prevailed on the Pacific coast. It was 91 at Louisville.

AIR PILOT 'PROVES' RIDER KILLED SELF

Pilot Shows Person Cannot Fall From Plane in Vertical Bank.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 6.—(AP)—Pilot Herschel Clark teaches strange lessons in flying.

To a dubious coroner's jury, Clark demonstrated—with one of the jurors—that a passenger could not have fallen from his plane while it was in a vertical bank.

LeRoy Turner, 30-year-old Greenwood, S. C., man, plunged to his death from Clark's plane into the ocean at Jacksonville Beach Monday. The jury investigated the death yesterday.

Pilot Clark explained to the jurors that Turner hired the plane for a flight to the beach and over the ocean. The passenger tried to step out of the plane, Clark said, when they were about 800 feet over the water.

Describing his efforts to prevent the man from jumping out, Pilot Clark said he sent the plane into a vertical bank. The man leaped anyhow, he said.

Still a bit doubtful, the jurors watched Clark "re-enact" the grim drama. Roy Garrett, one of the jurors, volunteered to be the "passenger."

Pilot Clark and the lone juror went aloft in the same plane from which the passenger fell to his death. At a height plainly visible to the jurors—and a crowd of some 400 persons—Clark took the plane through a series of vertical banks. Garrett held his hands aloft as the plane banked. Garrett told the coroner later he "couldn't have fallen out while the plane was banked.

Convinced by the queer aero demonstration, the jury returned a verdict that Turner "came to his death by his own hand during a period of temporary insanity by jumping from an airplane at a height of about 800 feet."

WOMAN JUDGE UTTERS AN 'I DO' FOR HERSELF

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 6.—(AP) Justice of the Peace Gertrude Lanigan, cementer of 1,000 romances, surrendered herself today to Cupid with a weakly spoken "I do."

She was married this afternoon to James Nicholas Speed in the First Christian church by Rev. Dr. J. S. Bennett, having resigned as "J. P." and agreed to take up housewife duties.

Mrs. Speed served as justice of the peace in her community for three years, averaging almost one marriage ceremony a day.

BUILDING ACTIVITY IN SAVANNAH AREA SHOWS BIG RISE

Proposed $4,000,000 Plant of Union Bag and Paper Corporation Will Give Employment to Many.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 6.—Construction figures for 1935 have taken a rapid upswing, with construction in Georgia and the southern states leading. Building has always been considered an index of prosperity and its advancement naturally carries expansion in other lines along with it.

A survey shows that $235,563,000 in contracts have been let in the south during the first six months of 1935, with $322,081,000 to be awarded soon.

For the state, south Georgia appears to have an edge in advancement of construction, with the Savannah area taking a prominent part in building leadership.

The largest single contract, of course, is the $4,000,000 plant of the Union Bag & Paper Corporation to be located on the Hermitage tract at Savannah, which promises work for hundreds of people. Award of this development to Savannah is a fine example of concerted co-operation on the part of a community.

Nearly every business agency and prominent citizen played some part in bringing the Union Bag and Paper Corporation here. Many conferences were held at the Hotel Savannah in the formative stages of the plans.

Another Big Development.

Another big development in the Savannah area is the $1,500,000 Savannah Bluff lock and dam, now being constructed under supervision of the office of the United States District Engineer here.

Construction of the new Georgia State Penitentiary near Reidsville in Tattnall county, also calls for the expenditure of $1,500,000, and work there is progressing rapidly. The prison will be a model penal plant when completed.

A small item, but indicative of the trend, is the recent expansion at the Savannah Sugar Refinery, where $185,000 was expended in installation of a huge boiler which replaced six older boilers in use since 1917, and three bulk granulated sugar installations which have a storage capacity of 18,000,000 pounds.

Modern Equipment.

This work was completed with workmen on the job on a 24-hour a day basis and gives the refinery the most modern equipment possible. The storage bins are air conditioned, so that the sugar can be kept at an even temperature and free from moisture at all times.

Of the whole outlook, the highlight is the fact that private construction, particularly home building in the south, is the factor which has carried construction figures on the upswing, while federal public works figures show a decline. This is a certain indication of restored confidence and that money is now available for construction from private purses.

GOVERNOR TO TALK AT CRAWFORDVILLE

Talmadge Will Participate in Dedication of Alexander Stephens Memorial Park.

ATHENS, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Governor Eugene Talmadge will deliver the principal address at the dedication of the Alexander H. Stephens Memorial park at Crawfordville, Ga., on July 18, Mrs. T. W. Reed, president of the Georgia division, U. D. C., announced here today.

The exercises have been arranged by the U. D. C. in conjunction with the state forestry department.

Liberty Hall, the old home of Stephens, has been restored as it was in the days of its owner. The grounds have been beautified, walks and trails have been laid out and a small lake constructed. This work was done by the forestry department and the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The state U. D. C. has arranged a pilgrimage of its members to Liberty Hall on the day of the dedication.

SCHOOL BUILDING BURNS AT DULUTH

$25,000 Structure Razed Presumably by Lightning During Electrical Storm.

DULUTH, Ga., July 6.—The Duluth High school building today was destroyed by fire originating presumably from lightning during an electrical storm.

The $25,000 structure was one of the finest public buildings in the city. It was built in 1925.

Officials said that the loss was covered by insurance and that plans would be formulated immediately to rebuild.

LUMBER GROUP BACKS FOREST BANK MEASURE

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association said today the legislation proposed by Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, to establish a $40,000,000 forest credit bank "is intended to be an extension of the type of productive credit which the farm credit act so successfully applies to agriculture."

President Roosevelt yesterday indorsed the principle of the proposal in a conference with Fletcher.

Fletcher's bill, soon to be introduced, would set up a forest credit commissioner in the Farm Credit Administration, and loans would be made for general forestry purposes, including the utilization of forest products, payment of debts incurred for forestry purposes, purchase of forest lands and for building of transportation facilities.

Representative Parsons, democrat, Illinois, chairman of a congressional group seeking more money for national forest development, said he was advised President Roosevelt had allotted $5,000,000 more for purchase of forestry land.

This, he said, brought the total allotted from work funds to $8,000,000, but fell "disappointingly short" of the $60,000,000 asked by Parsons and his colleagues.

LEADERS PREDICT SUPPORT FOR PLAN TO 'SELL GEORGIA'

Editors Back Proposal and Foresee State-wide Co-operation of Business Executives and Citizens

Pledging their own support in strong editorials, many editors of both daily and weekly newspapers have predicted state-wide co-operation of businesses and leading citizens in promotional activities in connection with the "See Georgia First" movement. The editorials followed appointment by Milton L. Fleetwood, president of the Georgia Press Association, of a "See Georgia First" Commission, in keeping with resolutions endorsing the movement which were recently adopted by the Press Association at its annual convention.

The commission, composed of editors from many sections of Georgia, is headed by W. Kirkland Sutlive, editor of the Blackshear Times, and newly-elected president of the Georgia Press Association, with Jere Moore, of the Milledgeville Union Recorder, and newly-elected vice president of the Georgia Press Association, as vice chairman. It will co-operate with similar "See Georgia First" commissions appointed by the Georgia Hotel Association and other organizations.

Numerous Papers Give Views.

Numerous newspapers in all sections of Georgia have carried news stories declaring that a "revival of business, enrichment of the state through tourist trade, and a far-reaching awakening of state pride are being foreseen as a result of the Georgia Press Association's adoption of resolutions endorsing the "See Georgia First" movement." The movement was originated some months ago by Charles G. Day, vice president and manager of the Hotel DeSoto in Savannah.

"The idea is a very practical one and should result in a great deal of visiting between different points in Georgia," declared Mrs. Royal Daniel, of the Quitman Free Press.

John L. Herring, editor of the Tifton Gazette, declared in an editorial that, "It is hoped to induce Georgians to see Georgia and spend their vacations in Georgia. Then, after Georgians become acquainted with the state's advantages from the mountains to the sea, they will tell visitors about them, and many people from outside Georgia may be induced to see Georgia too. It will mean much to Georgia if Georgians become Georgia conscious."

The Tifton Gazette has been one of the leading advocates of the "See Georgia First" movement and Editor Herring has proposed a tour of the state which is meeting with enthusiastic approval in many sections.

"Opportunities Slighted."

The Athens Banner-Herald, in an editorial on the "Importance of Seeing Georgia," states that "The people of Georgia, like those in other states, slight opportunities for seeing their own state, and spend money freely to visit sections of the country that are not as beautiful in scenery nor equal in climate."

The Banner-Herald predicts that with the co-operation and active support of the Georgia Press Association and Georgia Hotel Association the success of the "See Georgia First" movement is assured.

Enthusiastically endorsing the movement and particularly the plan to "Sell Georgia to Georgians," the Atlanta Constitution commends the efforts to bolster Georgia business by keeping at home much of the money now being spent elsewhere by Georgians during the vacation period.

"No state in the Union has more widely varied attractions for the tourist and vacationist than Georgia. . . The movement is in every way praiseworthy and should receive the support of Georgia's governments, civic associations and the people generally."

FINAL BEER VOTE

Colquitt County Ballots 931 forLicensing, 648 Against.

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Final vote in Colquitt county's straw ballot on licensing of beer in the county was 931 for licensing; 648 against.

Cliff Jenkins was named county commissioner to succeed the late J. P. Williams. Jenkins polled 855 votes; his nearest of three rival candidates, Leon Hobby, 422.

In the May 15 referendum, Colquitt county voted against beer. The straw vote is expected to govern county officials in licensing sale of the brew in the future.

GEN. HARRIS IS NAMED 'OUTSTANDING CITIZEN'

MACON, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—A committee of nine announced today it had selected General Walter A. Harris, president of the Macon Historical Society, attorney and retired army officer, as this city's leading citizen in 1934.

The committee cited as his major accomplishment the effort toward establishing a national park in old Ocmulgee fields filled with Indian relics. General Harris was a pioneer in investigating the Indian mounds and exploiting them.

The Smithsonian Institution later made surveys and excavations, uncovering valuable data on the lives and customs of early American tribes.

The committee which made the selection included three members each of the senior and junior chambers of commerce, and three other citizens named by this group.

ATLANTAN IS CALLED TO ROME PASTORATE

ROME, Ga., July 6.—Rev. John W. Melton Jr., of Atlanta, has been called by First Presbyterian church here to succeed Dr. E. R. Leyburn, who has resigned, effective October 1. Mr. Melton, a native of Opelika, Ala., is at present studying at the University of Chicago.

He has served as pastor's aid at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, of Atlanta, and has served a group of churches in the Atlanta Presbytery. He is a graduate of Davidson College and received his theological training at Columbia seminary, Decatur.

STATE DEATHS

MISS PAULINE DANIEL.

AMERICUS, Ga., July 6.—Funeral services were held at Concord church, near Americus, for Miss Pauline Daniel, 18, who was killed in an automobile Thursday night at Bear Branch, 10 miles south of here. The Rev. M. B. Brown conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. E. J. Dupree, and interment was in the church cemetery.

Move To Appoint County Manager Stirs Muscogee Board Controversy

Proposal To Place Roads Superintendent in Office Ruled on Adversely as Definite Action Is Postponed by Commissioners for Month.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—A controverted proposal for creating the office of county manager is under consideration by the Muscogee county board of commissioners.

The proposal involves the question of whether any person already a county official can be named as county manager without changing the present form of county government.

In the last board meeting, County Attorney E. C. Britton reiterated an opinion that the superintendent of roads, who has been proposed, could not serve as manager.

Elaborates on Opinion.

Elaborating on his opinion, Britton said that under an existing law a county manager could not be provided without reorganization of the government. Under the reorganization, an election could be called by the ordinary on petition by a certain percentage of the voters. The plan would call for five commissioners, their compensation to be recommended by the grand jury.

The county manager plan was recommended by a Muscogee grand jury a year ago. In bringing the matter up again, Chairman of the Board T. G. Reeves maintained he had no intention of changing the form of county government.

Instead, Reeves said he advocated a change in the system to permit C. L. Rhodes, superintendent of roads, warden and county engineer, to serve as head of several county departments operated directly under the board of commissioners. He would be accountable to the board, the subheads of the departments to be accountable to him, Reeves explained.

Britton said Rhodes could be named as supervisor of county departments, with the delegation of recommending authority, but that he could not serve otherwise legally except under the county manager plan calling for reorganization.

Vice Chairman Sam D. Snellings and Commissioner L. R. Aldridge stated that they already look to Rhodes in such capacity and for such assistance and co-operation as if he were county supervisor of departments.

Upon suggestion of Chairman Reeves, the matter was carried over to the August meeting of the board.

GEORGIANS TO INSPECT TVA POWER PROJECTS

Nine Georgia Counties Will Send Representatives to Knoxville Next Week.

ELLIJAY, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Nine Georgia counties in the Tennessee Valley Authority territory will send representatives to Knoxville, Tenn., next week to inspect TVA projects in that area.

County Farm Agents W. R. O'Dell and C. E. Bell, of Gilmer county, will accompany the representatives from this county. The trip will be made next Tuesday.

Upon arrival in Knoxville they will follow a well-planned inspection tour of the best farms in that area for the purpose of observing progress made in the TVA soil improvement program. They will also visit the town of Norris, where the hydro-electric development is now under way on Clinch river. Gilmer is one of nine counties in the TVA area. The others are Rabun, Union, Towns, Fannin, Whitfield, Catoosa, Walker and Dade.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION NAMES COTTON MILLS

ROME, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in United States district court today against the Summerville Cotton Mills, Summerville, Ga., John L. Harris, deputy clerk of the court, announced.

The deputy clerk said the mills filed an acknowledgement of service, and consented to adjudication. He said the petitioners were Mills & Lupton Supply Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., Southern States Printing Co., Griffin, Ga., and Walter Bledsoe & Co., Knoxville, Tenn. Harris said the petition contained no specific allegations as to the amount of assets and liabilities of the mills.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., July 6.—Sixteen Confederate veterans and veterans' widows received pension checks for May and June through Luther Butler, ordinary of Lamar county, this week. Those who received the checks were Gillie H. Aiken, Mrs. W. H. H. Bush, Mrs. Martha E. Capps, Mrs. Sallie Crawley, Mrs. E. B. Darden, Mrs. H. V. English, Mrs. Frances McFall, Mrs. E. F. Owen, Mrs. E. B. Taylor, Mrs. A. J. Wellmaker, Mrs. W. H. Willis, Mrs. S. E. Johnson, A. O. Bennett, G. W. Hightower, H. F. Willis, W. C. Yarbrough.

INCREASED PRICES FOR LEAF IS SEEN THROUGHOUT BELT

Buyers and Warehousemen Confident Better Quality Will Result in Greater Cash Return.

TIFTON, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Encouraged by official predictions that tobacco will bring higher prices this year than at any time since 1929, Georgia tobacco growers are preparing for opening of markets in the state on August 1.

W. L. Stone, director of the State Bureau of Markets, said in Atlanta today that the outlook for the Georgia crop is "very promising" and that most of the tobacco in Georgia is in "exceedingly fine" condition.

Stone, who has made several trips through the Georgia tobacco belt in recent weeks, said buyers and warehousemen told him that the anticipated better quality of the leaf should result in increased prices over those of years immediately past.

The average price last year was $18.73 per hundred pounds. Planters sold 33,613,474 pounds for a total of $6,299,761.96.

The market bureau director said estimates placed the 1935 crop to be auctioned at 35,000,000 pounds.

Prices for Last Three Years.

Average prices for the three years preceding last year were given by Stone as follows: 1931, $6.41; 1932, $10.41; 1933, $11.30.

About 40 warehouses are expected to be in operation this year in 15 Georgia cities. Thirty-nine warehouses held auctions last year, but Stone said he understood one or two more had been established.

In number of pounds sold last year and total amount of money paid to growers, the seven leading Georgia markets, in the order named, were: Tifton, Moultrie, Valdosta, Nashville, Douglas, Vidalia and Blackshear.

Two million pounds or more were sold at each of the seven markets, the value of the Tifton sales exceeding $1,000,000.

The four leading markets in point of average price were: Valdosta, $20.94; Moultrie, $20.15; Hazlehurst, $19.72, and Tifton, $19.36.

In Tifton, 5,511,706 pounds were sold for $1,077,022.77; in Moultrie, $4,834,838 pounds for $974,91.12. and in Valdosta, 4,712,378 pounds for $946,956.26.

Last year, the first in which the agricultural adjustment program was in effect, 51,000 acres of tobacco were harvested in Georgia and the income, including rentals and benefits, was $7,361,000.

16,000 Sign AAA Contracts.

Approximately 16,000 tobacco growers have signed AAA contracts this year as compared with 12,427 in 1934.

Stone said acreage figures for this year are not yet available.

All tobacco sold in Georgia is of the flue-cured type, Stone said. Upon being picked, the leaves are placed in barns or sheds and cured or dried by heat. This process, said the director, takes about five weeks.

The tobacco sold to manufacturers is not used for about seven years, Stone said. More than 90 per cent of the Georgia crop, he said, is used to make cigarets.

Curing began about June 1 and the leaves are now being picked and dried in all parts of the belt, said Stone. Most of the tobacco will be harvested within three weeks, he said.

Late tobacco has been somewhat damaged by hot weather, said the market director, but the early crop, planted in late March and early April, is in splendid condition.

TAMMANY HALL MOVE DEFEATED IN SEMINOLE

'Deserters of Party' Assailed; Cox Defended at Donalsonville Meeting.

DONALSONVILLE, Ga., July 6.—Assailing "deserters of the party" and defending Congressman E. E. Cox against an asserted movement to defeat him at the polls next year, a delegation headed by J. L. Haralson, secretary of the Donalsonville Chamber of Commerce, defeated a proposal to form a chapter of Tammany Hall in Seminole county at an organization meeting here.

In his fight against organization of the chapter, Haralson said:

"We resent the type of political advice Tammany Hall endeavors to give our people. How many people in Decatur county are interested in organizing a Tammany Hall in this county, and who voted for Mr. Hoover? Is this the body that disseminates democratic principles? If 'gourds and red suspenders' are to be introduced in Seminole county, we don't want a Tammany Hall chapter. If our people are going to be advised that it is to their best interests to vote for any man who has deserted the democratic party, we don't want a Tammany Hall chapter. If it is Tammany Hall's intention to try to influence our people to vote for a man who has deserted the party and who advocates secession, then we don't want a Tammany Hall chapter. If it is Tammany Hall's intention to get Talmadge backing to defeat our splendid congressman, the Hon. E. E. Cox, who has stood behind President Roosevelt and the democratic party, then we do not wish a Tammany Hall.

"Now if the people of Donalsonville and Seminole county want to be held up to ridicule, and be made a part of the laughing stock of the balance of the state, organize a Tammany Hall chapter. Let's tell the world that we are citizens capable of telling the difference between a democrat and a republican, or a deserter of the party, and if I can get a second, I move that we do not organize a Tammany Hall chapter in this county, and that we go on record now asserting our deep appreciation, love and respect and highest confidence in our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

UTILITIES IN DALTON SHOW PROFIT OF $9,999

DALTON, Ga., July 6.—Dalton's municipally-operated utilities showed a net profit of $9,999.69 for the first six months of 1935, according to the report of the water, light and sinking fund commission submitted to mayor and council by Chairman W. C. Bowen.

The report showed gross receipts of $66,866.09, with operating expenses of $40,530.22, leaving a gross profit of $26,335.87. However, a total of $16,336.18 was spent for improvement and extensions, leaving a net profit of $9,999.69.

The commission turned over to the city treasurer a check for the earnings, also reported that $10,000 worth of city bonds due July 1 had been retired.

It is largely due to the earnings of the city utilities that the local tax rate is kept at $1 per hundred.

FLOYD SUPERIOR COURT TO CONVENE MONDAY

ROME, Ga., July 5.—Only one murder case is scheduled for trial at the July term of Floyd superior court, which opens here Monday. Ed Harris, negro, will be tried for fatally shooting Clarence Porter, negro, Solictor-General J. Fred Kelly said.

A heavy docket of both criminal and civil cases is in prospect. The civil docket will require two weeks and the criminal docket may run into the second week, Kelly said.

COMMUNITY CANNERY OPENS AT YATESVILLE

YATESVILLE, Ga., July 6.—A large community cannery was opened here with E. N. Bridgeman in charge.

Mrs. E. S. Hicks, Mrs. F. L. Chatfield and J. M. Lyon are the directors. A large quantity of fruits, vegetables and meats will be canned for home use and for sale. Miss Katherine Lanier, of the home extension department at Athens, will begin a two-day series of lectures Monday.

RUN OVER BY TRAIN, MAN DIES IN TOCCOA

TOCCOA, Ga., July 6.—Orville R. Jones, 48, died here last night from injuries received when he was run over by Southern train No. 30. From papers found in his pocket, it appears that he is a World War veteran of Chattanooga, Tenn. Efforts to locate his relatives have been unsuccessful.

40-YEAR-OLD GEORGIAN MISSING FROM BUFORD

BUFORD, Ga., July 6.—Fred I. Sears, 40, of Buford, has been missing from his home for three weeks, members of his family have revealed.

In an appeal for information concerning his whereabouts, Mrs. Sears said that her husband was last seen in the vicinity of Lula, Ga., and Burton's lake looking for work.

DR. CHARLES C. RAINEY JOINS BERRY SCHOOLS

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., July 6.—Dr. Charles C. Rainey, of Atlanta, graduate of Emory University and now on the staff of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, where he received his Ph. D. degree, has been elected as head of the department of chemistry at Berry College, replacing Dr. Thomas L. Gresham, who has been appointed to a position as research professor on the staff of Harvard University, Boston.

Dr. Gresham formerly was on the staff of Emory University, where he also received his master's degree. His doctor's degree is from John Hopkins, where he is doing research work this summer. Dr. Rainey who succeeds him at Berry, was an honor student at Emory, and won a $4,000 competitive scholarship to Johns Hopkins.

Dr. G. Leland Gree, president of Berry College, says that Dr. Rainey comes with the highest recommendations, both of Emory and Johns Hopkins, that is possible to have. Dr. Rainey is a young man, only a little more than 25 years old.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER PLANS QUIET BIRTHDAY

Aged Multimillionaire Will Observe 96th Anniversary Monday.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., July 6.—(AP) John D. Rockefeller will be 96 years old Monday, but there will be no special celebration of the event, nor is it expected that he will even issue a birthday statement.

The frail little man who once possessed one of the world's great fortunes will rest quietly at his estate, Golf House, sitting in the sun if the day is warm his servants will wish him many happy returns, there will be the customary telegrams and letters of congratulation. And perhaps a visit from his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The days of Rockefeller birthday statements and interviews seem definitely to have passed. The custom was suspended last year and though it was done without explanation, it was generally felt that Rockefeller's health has grown too delicate in his advancing years to subject him to even moderate excitement.

Last year, too, Rockefeller stayed at Lakewood for his birthday, rather than risk a setback—he was slightly ill—by a trip to his home at Tarrytown, N. Y.

When he arrived here on June 14 after eight months in Ormond Beach, Fla., he looked in fine health. But his attendants showed unusual solicitude in shielding him from photographers, and in the three weeks he has been here he has stayed close to home.

He hasn't gone to church in Lakewood this year. The fact is he has gone only infrequently in the past two years, and his distribution of shiny new dimes seems to be something of the past, like his birthday statements.

He seems content now to sit on his sun porch, careful to guard against colds—he carries an oxygen tent with him when he travels—and enjoys the smell of the pine wood and the crisp air.

ATTACK BY M'BRAYER ANSWERED BY LAPRADE

tions for the sale; becoming a bondsman for any person as a condition for obtaining a license; acting as a dispenser under a dispensary law of any state, county, or municipality; renting property to be used for such sale. One guilty of any one of these acts is to be admonished privately, then in the presence of witnesses, and if there is no amendment he may be dealt with as in a case of immorality.

"Rev. H. E. McBrayer was charged with immorality, this paragraph being cited, the indictment reading, 'In that he aided and abetted the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in speeches and statements made at various places in Georgia during April and May, 1935.'

Technical Innocence.

"The trial committee held that since the evidence did not show that he had aided and abetted in any of the four ways specifically forbidden, he could not be convicted under this paragraph, since it is the function of a trial committee to apply law as it is, and not to make law. Even if it is alleged that other ways of aiding and abetting the sale of liquor are the moral equivalent of the ways enumerated under the law, only a general conference has the right to so declare and give it the force of law.

"But the law of the church, in paragraph 304 of the discipline, provides that when a minister is tried for immorality of any character and the evidence does not sustain such a charge, but that it has been shown that he is guilty of gross imprudence and high unministerial conduct, the trial committee may so declare and sentence him to reproof, suspension, or deprive him of his ministerial office and credentials. In the course of this trial evidence was presented that in the unanimous judgment of the committee made it necessary for them to convict the accused of gross imprudence and high unministerial conduct.

"The claim that freedom of speech and of the press gives to every man the right to say whatever he pleases is utterly fallacious. The manual of the discipline, which is the official interpretation of Methodist law, sets forth the position of the church on this question in the following clear statement: 'Our ministers and members are entitled to full liberty of speech and of the press equally with all citizens, subject only to the restrictions and responsibilities imposed by the laws of the land, by the obligations of Christianity and by the existing regulations by which we are voluntarily associated as Methodists and Methodist ministers.' A citizen has no right to say some things forbidden by the law of the land; a citizen who is a Christian is restricted from saying some other things by the law of God; a Christian citizen who is a Methodist minister has further limited his freedom to speak by vows he has voluntarily assumed. The trial committee carefully considered: Did the accused in his speeches and published statements violate any vows he had taken as a member and minister of the Methodist church

Church for Prohibition.

"It cannot be denied that all the force of the Methodist church as an organization has been thrown on the side of prohibition. Repeated resolutions by general conferences and annual conferences, statements by the college of bishops and by well-nigh all the official groups of our church have uniformly favored and fostered prohibition, so that it may certainly be asserted that measured by official pronouncements, the Methodist church stands for prohibition.

"But it is also true that so far as the law in the discipline is concerned, there is no statute requiring any member or minister to favor prohibition. (It is worthy of note, however, that in discussing the 'great evil of intemperance' the word used in the discipline is not regulation but 'extirpation.') The church does not claim infallibility for her utterances, and has made no effort through any law to deny the right of any member or minister to think or say that the church has made a mistake in its attitude toward prohibition. But in dissenting from the position of the church in official pronouncements and in opposing that for which it stands, it is possible for a minister to go to such lengths as to violate ministerial ethics or even to be guilty of gross imprudence and high unministerial conduct.

Stood by Statements.

"In discussing the position of the church on prohibition, Mr. McBrayer repeatedly used language that in the judgment of the trial committee was in the highest degree reprehensible, and altogether unworthy of a minister who has vowed his loyalty, obedience and devotion to the church. When asked to retract or modify these statements, he replied that there was enough truth in what he had said to make it proper to stand by all his utterances, and when during the trial his brethren asked him if he would not even then modify these public statements, he made the same reply.

"Mr. McBrayer placed himself between the horns of this dilemma. If he honestly believed that the church was playing the coward in that he charged that it knew that it had led the people astray and lacked the courage to confess it; that the church was a hypocrite in that it now knew that prohibition was a curse and continued to advocate it; that the church should be classed with Al Capone and Dillinger and the like for favoring public enemy No. 1, as he branded prohibition; if he had honestly and deliberately reached this estimate of the moral character of the church, how could he justify his statement, made even in the trial, that he desired to remain in the church? Surely he should have repudiated such a degenerate organization.

"If on the other hand he realized that these extreme statements, made in the heat of controversy, were not justified and that in the interest of fairness and truth they should be withdrawn or greatly modified, how could he plume himself upon his sincerity and his moral courage if he allowed his pride to hinder him from making the manly confession that he had gone beyond proper bounds?

"What sane man can afford to take the position that a minister should be permitted to use his place in the bosom of the church to defame it and slander it, and that the church should be denied the right to administer discipline?"

McBrayer Statement.

The statement of Mr. McBrayer follows:

"Dr. LaPrade and I are not so far apart on some of his statements in the press today. He says the church does not claim infallibility; so we are together on this. He says that any member or minister has a right to say that the church has made a mistake in advocating prohibition. All my trouble grew out of the fact that I used the right which Dr. LaPrade says I had. I said the church made a mistake in advocating prohibition. Dr. LaPrade puts himself in the confusing position of saying that I had a right to say the church had made a mistake and then approves my suspension as a punishment for saying the thing which he says any member or minister has a right to say.

"Such positions as this are responsible for the misunderstanding and misrepresentation of the law and procedure of the church to which Dr. LaPrade refers. Dr. LaPrade's statement which seeks to justify the church in her action which she took through the trial committee is considerably weakened by false assumptions that he uses. 'He says the claim that freedom of speech and the press gives to every man the right to say whatever he pleases is utterly falacious.' I suppose Dr. LaPrade meant to leave the impression that somebody had made this claim for freedom of speech and press. Personally I have not heard of anybody who has made such a claim. The only right to freedom of speech and press which I have claimed is the right to oppose prohibition and advocate the alcoholic beverage control act. I don't think freedom of speech should be taken to mean that one has the right to use profanity.

Not Law of Church.

"Dr. La Prade said all he could for prohibition, and I am sure he would have been glad to say that prohibition was the law of the church, but he could not, for he knows, as well as I know, that thet word prohibition is not in our discipline. Dr. LaPrade suggests that if a person is connected with an organization and discovers something in that organization of which he does not approve, that person should leave the organization.

"This suggestion is without reason. If a person find something in his organization that he does not approve, it is my opinion that he should not quit unless he is practically forced out, but he should try to stay in and help correct the mistakes that have been made. We would not advise a man to quit his job because there was something about it he did not like. We would not advise a woman to quit her husband because there was something about him which she did not approve. It is my opinion that Dr. LaPrade knows a few things about the church that he does not approve and I imagine he plans to stay in the church and attempt to improve conditions.

"Never From Pulpit."

"Other ministers used their positions to advocate prohibition, and I used mine to advocate the alcoholic beverage control act. Other ministers advocated prohibition from their pulpits. I advocated the alcoholic beverage control act through the press, over the radio and from the public platform, but never from my pulpit.

"I still claim I had a right to do this on the basis of the following law, which is written in section 9 of our discipline, and is as follows:

"'We stand with our brethren represented in the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America for recognition and maintenance of the rights and responsibilities of free speech, free assembly and free press, the encouragement of free communication of mind with mind as essential to the discovery of truth'."

Seaboard Sponsors Stream-Lined Train Exhibit Here

The south's first stream-lined and air-conditioned train, The Rebel, of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railway, is coming to Atlanta next Sunday for a two-day showing. The Rebel is shown above. In the inset is I. B. Tigrett, of Jackson, Tenn., president of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern. The train will be placed in regular service between Jackson and New Orleans.

Stream-Lined Train Expected Soon For Atlanta-to-Washington Run

Reports current here for more than a month that the receivers for the Seaboard Air Line were contemplating inauguration of a new streamlined air-conditioned train between Atlanta and Washington were given credence yesterday by the announcement that the Seaboard is sponsoring the showing here next Sunday of the first streamlined train used in the south, that of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern railroad.

The reports in circulation are that the Seaboard receivers already are in negotiations with the builders of the streamlined trains.

The Gulf, Mobile & Northern's "The Rebel" is being brought here for a two-day showing, next Sunday and Monday.

The train will be on exhibition at the Terminal station from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m., on Sunday for a private showing, admittance by card only. On Monday the train will be open to the public from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m., and an open invitation is extended to the people of Atlanta to view the train on this date.

The train is en route from Berwick, Pa., where it was built by the American Car and Foundry Company, to its home rails and is being exhibited at Washington and Richmond, before coming to the Seaboard, where its itinerary calls for exhibitions at Durham, Hamlet, Monroe, Chester, Clinton, Greenwood, Abbeville, Elberton, Athens, Winder, Lawrenceville, Atlanta, Rockmart, Cedartown, Piedmont and Birmingham.

It will be accompanied by officials of the Seaboard and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern and by representatives of the builders and equipment manufacturers.

Least Wind Resistance.

The train is highly streamlined. When the railroad decided to build a train of this type the services of a trained aeronautical engineer were obtained and exhaustive tests were made in the wind tunnel of New York University. The front is so designed as to afford least wind resistance and the tail is shaped to spill the air in the smoothest fashion. No bolts or rivets mar steel sides, a new process of inside welding giving a smooth surface from front to back. The cars are built of Cor-ten steel, which combines comparatively light weight with high tensile strength. The weight of the entire train is about one-third that of the steam train which it replaces.

While the train is capable of high speed—engineers having placed its cruising speed at above 90 miles an hour—the railroad does not propose to operate on unusually fast schedules, its president, I. B. Tigrett, of Jackson, Tenn., has previously announced. Reduction in the present steam train schedule, he said, will be effected through more rapid acceleration and deceleration at station stops.

Three-Car Train.

The three-car train which shows here will be divided as follows: The first car will be the power car, housing the 660-horsepower Diesel electric motor and containing mail and baggage compartments. The second car is a day coach and contains, in addition, the buffet. Seats in this coach are adjustable and the coach is divided into two compartments.

The third car is the observation-sleeper. It has sleeping sections and a stateroom. All coaches of the train are decorated in different colors, entrance vestibules are in the center and steps fold into the train when it is in motion.

CONGRESSMEN UNABLE TO AGREE ON TAX PLAN

son's committee that the treasury had in mind a tax program along those lines which could bring in $300,000,000 to $600,000,000 annually.

"So far," Hill said, "I haven't heard of any such plan; and I don't believe the treasury has any definite plan. Those $300,000,00 and $340,000,000 and $600,000,000 figures were held out to the country as to what could be done, and I don't see how we can stop at a small figure.

"But the money just isn't there unless we cut more deeply into the middle brackets."

The ways and means committee starts its hearings Monday.

Senator McNary said his belief was that congress either would pass a small bill hitting the high incomes and adjourn soon or prepare for more detailed study of a broad tax program and put of fits passage.

WEALTHY REPORTED FORMING OWN LOBBY

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—The World-Telegram said today it learned that Charles H. Sabin Jr., was forming a committee of wealthy persons to lobby for lower income tax rates, a federal sales tax, abolition of nuisance taxes and drastic cuts in governmental expenditures.

The paper quoted a fund-soliciting letter which it said had been sent out over Sabin's name saying of the committee "the Wrigleys, Armours, McCormicks, Mayers, Mortons, of the west, are on it, and in the east we have the usual Pells, Whitneys, Taylors, Watsons, Vanderlips, etc."

The organization is called the Committee of Americans, the World-Telegram said, and claims to be nation-wide. Its eastern headquarters address was given as the offices of the Hamilton Gas Company, where only an elderly man opening the day's mail could be found today.

One of the letters sent out was quoted as stating:

"The President's recently announced billion-dollar tax program, as outlined, is sufficient reason in itself that thinking people of the country should act together and concentrate on some definitely constructive program that would successfully balance the budget. We believe our program will do this.

"We are now laying out a schedule of developments that has for its purpose a petition to the President and congress for the enactment of a federal sales tax and a complete overhauling of our budget expenditures, and thus balance the budget."

The letter said the petition would have more than a million signatures.

benefit and for that of the grand jury.

His letter to the clerk asked for a list of employes and their salaries as of December 1, 1934, and a list of present employes and their salaries. He likewise wanted to know the names of all new employes and if they succeeded anybody or were placed on the pay roll in a created job. He requested the names of the persons any new employe succeeded, also.

The fight now being waged between the majority and minority factions of the board flared into headlines when Longino praised the May-June grand jury for its presentments and charged that "parasites" were being placed on the county pay rolls and the business affairs of Fulton being conducted by the majority faction in a wasteful and extravagant manner.

FEDERAL ROAD WORK RULES ARE PONDERED

Georgia Problem Causes U. S. Authorities to Formulate General Plan.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—Promulgation of rules for expenditure of $400,000,000 for roads was delayed today while administration aides apparently were deep in study of means to deal legally with perplexing problems such as Georgia has presented.

Attorney-General Cummings was examining a draft of proposed rules submitted by Thomas H. MacDonald, roads bureau chief.

The delay in final approval was understood to have been caused by a minute study of one regulation which would emphasize the authority to Secretary Wallace, with jurisdiction over the roads bureau, to determine whether state highway bodies are properly manned to handle the federal road work.

Where no satisfactory arrangement can be made between the federal bureau and a state body, one source said, the rules as now drafted would give Wallace power to deal directly with recognized county and city authorities in building roads.

Led by Senator George, several Georgians strongly advised the President against use of the state's allotted $19,000,000 except through the state board.

President Roosevelt subsequently turned the general rules over to Cummings before proclaiming them. It was not known whether the attorney-general has made any revisions. Mr. Roosevelt left the capital over the week-end without taking final action.

EXHIBITION OF PAINTING TO BE CONTINUED HERE

The exhibition, sponsored by the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., of "The Huntsman's Door," nineteenth century painting, in Atlanta at 21 Peachtree street, will be continued, it was announced yesterday.

The painting portrays a string of game birds hung on a door. It has been identified as the work of R. La-Barre Goodwin, and is said to have lain unnoticed in an attic in Chattanooga for 40 years. Gilman Low, who is sponsoring the exhibition, values the painting at $100,000.

The lighting effects add to the realism of the painting, and it is said to afford a remarkable study in depth and realism achieved in masterly fashion.

TRANS-FLORIDA CANAL MAY BE PUSHED SOON

Emergency Council, However, Denies It Has Been Approved as Yet.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The proposed gulf-Atlantic ship canal across northern Florida is under consideration "in a preliminary manner," but "it is a mistake to say the canal has received either preliminary or tentative approval," an attache in the offices of the National Emergency Council said today.

No application for funds from the $4,880,000,000 work relief appropriation has been filed with the NEC, this spokesman said, but the project is in such shape that a formal application may be filed at any time. The proposed waterway has been estimated to cost between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000.

"The canal is not formally in the shape of a project yet," the spokesman for the NEC said. "The proposed channel is one of several hundred projects being examined in a preliminary manner. It is in the same stage it has been from the beginning and there is nothing definite whatsoever."

Present plans call for a sea-level waterway extending from Yankeetown, of the Florida west coast, to Jacksonville, on the east coast. The canal would shorten the distance between gulf and Atlantic ports and its supporters claim it would pay for itself in time.

These supporters also say it would provide work for about 25,000 men for from four to six years.

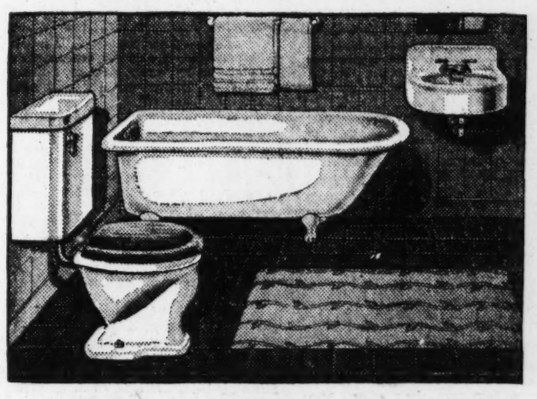

Opponents of the proposed waterway declare it would endanger Florida's fresh water supply and the state's agricultural industry.

TRAVEL AND RESORT NEWS

Wise Travelers Sail for Europe During Latter Part of Summer

From May 15 until July 15 every Europe-bound liner leaving American and Canadian ports is booked full. After the dull season of winter, summer provides about nine weeks when the steamship companies wish they had fleets twice the size, to accomodate the hosts of passengers.

At the end of this rush period comes, in the estimation of many, the best season for travel. With the crowds already overseas, there is a greater choice of cabins and more chance for those who love select company to attain the royal standard of being "the observed of all observers." Best of all, the temptation to travel first class is greater after the middle of July, on account of the 10 per cent reduction in fares in favor of passengers in that group.

The traveler who knows the ropes knows that the best attractions of the European season will not be over, even though he postpones his departure until after July 15. The famous festival plays of Munich, for instance, do not open till July 24. The most famous of the Pardons in France, that Auray, Brittany, is not held until July 25, while Ireland has numerous colorful patterns during July and August, and Spain has bullfights, festivals and gala seasons at Santander and Elche and in Valencia puts on its great fete, "The Moors and the Christians," August 25.

English Attractions.

In England the great Malvern Dramatic Festival does not open until July 29, and the Goodwood races are not run till the thirty-first. Navy Week with its processions of British battleships at Plymouth, Portsmouth and Southampton occurs August 3, and the royal regatta is held at Cowes in the Isle of Wight August 5, which this year is also England's great bank holiday.

On the same day at Carnarvon the Welsh will hold their national Eisteddfod, when thousands of singers contend for honors. During August Scots will go in thousands to their town country to see the annual Highland games at Nairn, Crieff, Braemar, Fort William and other towns. August, in fact, is the greatest month of the year in Scotland, for then the grouse season opens. It is not unusual for travelers to come from as far away as South Africa and Australia, as well as the American continent, for grouse-shooting.

In Scandinavian countries the attractions during July and August are the finest. The Royal Swedish Yacht Club has its cup races at Sandhamm on July 27, while the international regatta is scheduled for July 31 to August 4. The Royal Opera season of Stockholm opens early in August, and is almost the only one in Europe at that time of year. From July 28 till August 4 Norway has its National Industries Fair at Trondheim, and on the 29th the entire country celebrates St. Olav's Day with enthusiastic festivities.

Festivals in Italy.

In Italy on July 21 travelers flock in hundreds to see the old world festivals of St. Rosalie at Palermo, and to Venice for the Festival of the Redeemer with its famous night fete on the Grand canal. On August 16 the second great Palio race at Siena is run, with all its medieval pageantry.

The wise traveler who delayed his crossing of the Atlantic and saved money on his fare finds a glorious array of events all over Europe. Ascension Day processions of thousands of Polish peasants in costumes, or at the end of August the quaint sausage market fete at Regensburg in Germany and the historic shepherds' dance in Swabia compete in interest with the Brueckner Music Festivals at Linz and the world-famous Music Festival which opens at Salzburg, Austria, and lasts till September 1. Throughout the summer travelers who have never seen an old world passion play can see one of the greatest at Kirschlag in Austria, or one of the oldest at Horice in Czechoslovakia, and those who want to see folk dances in unforgettable costumes should go to Budapest for St. Stephan's Festival Week, from August 14 to 22.

MOTORCADE TO TOUR BATTLEFIELDS OF CITY

A motorcade to the Civil War battlefields in the eleventh ward, on the south side, will meet at the cyclorama at Grant park at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, according to W. T. Harrison, president of the South Side Civic Federation. The trip will last several hours.

Practically all points where military action took place, including the Murphy Junior High school grounds and Leggett's hill on Moreland avenue, will be covered by the motorcade. The fortifications at Grant park will be studied first, the sight-seers going from there to other battlefields by way of Confederate avenue. This is the third motorcade sponsored by Mr. Harrison. Approximately 25 persons attended the last one, he said.

Travel Jottings

Charm of Finland.

The great charm of Finland for the visitor from abroad lies in a certain subtle effect of the country and climate on his whole being; he feels himself younger, as though he had suddenly been transported back to a long-forgotten carefree condition of mind and ease of body that were his in childhood.

Partly, this rejuvenating influence of Finnish nature on the visitor may be due to the tonic effect of the air, so exquisitely pure and clear that every detail of a landscape stands out until diminished by distance alone into invisibility, partly to the fresh quality of northern nature.

In this part of the world the summer has to crowd the work of six months into four and, as the sun acts like magic on the soil, calling forth a teeming wealth of plant life, one can imagine that it would bestow something of the same vitality on human beings.

Majestic Derby Ship.

The Cunard White Star liner Majestic, sailing May 24, will be the principal Derby ship this year. She will arrive in England a week before the race.

Shakespeare Country.

To reach the country where Shakespeare dwelt requires a railroad journey from London to Leamington, which is a celebrated health resort about 100 miles to the northwest.

When the train deposits you at Leamington it lands you in the heart of a matchless territory. Stratford is a short drive. Warwick castle is a stone's throw away. The stately ruins of Kenilworth are at hand. Rugby is a neighboring town. Just north is the great industrial city of Birmingham. And close by is Banbury where, if you are interested, there is the slim chance of seeing a fine lady ride a white horse.

Tomb of Homer.

What is generally considered as the last resting place of the poet Homer is at Ios, or Nio, in the Isles of Greece. The tomb stands on the northern side of the island in a district described as "The Garden."

Specter Chariot.

There is a story of a Spanish galleon carrying gold which is said to have been buried during a fearful storm in a bay called Rhossili, in the south of Wales. It was supposed to have been carrying the dowry of a Spanish princess. This tale was not a myth, for gold doubloons and moidores have been recovered from the sand by industrious diggers. The disaster took place about 200 years ago. The greater part of the money was found by a man named Mansel, whose right to it was disputed by the lord of the manor, but Mansel managed to escape from the country with a great portion. The legend of the "Specter Chariot of Rhossili" arose from this event. Tradition has it that Mansel is condemned to search eternally for the rest of the wealth which he wrongfully seized; driving back and forth over the sands in a chariot drawn by four gray horses.

Speedy Queen Mary.

Such will be the speed of the new Cunard White Star superliner Queen Mary she will be able to make the round trip between New York and England in nine days, with ample time for loading fuel oil, fresh water and food.

Icelandic Beauties.

The percentage of beauties in faraway Iceland is as large as that of any other country in the world. Americans who sailed on the Carinthia cruise to the Land of the Midnight Sun this year spent the Fourth of July in Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland.

Ancient Troy in Turkey.

Ancient Troy was situated to the south of the Dardanelles in Western Turkey. Almost the complete wall may now be traced. This was the scene of the world's greatest epic, the Iliad, by Homer.

No Alien Children.

One of the unusual regulations of the colony of Gibraltar is that no alien children must be born there. Parents who break these rules are heavily fined. The idea is to discourage the influx of those who wish their children to be born on British soil and so escape some of the duties of citizenship in another country.

Tons of Blossoms.

Grasse, France, is a little mountain town given up to the production of flowers for use in manufacturing perfume. It turns out annually a half-million pounds of roses and a million and a half pounds of orange blossoms.

Where Berengaria Married.

The little church wherein Berengaria was married to King Richard at Limasol in the island of Crete nearly eight centuries ago still stands and continues in use.

U. S. INCOME TAXES LARGER IN GEORGIA

Collections to Date Show $2,000,000 Increase Over 1934.

Further proof that prosperity is returning to Georgia was seen yesterday in the announcement that federal income tax collections this year are $2,000,000 above the 1934 figures.

Total collections of $32,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, were reported by W. Eugene Page, collector of internal revenue. Of that amount $12,000,000 was from income taxes and the balance from processing taxes.

Collections for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, amounted to $28,000,000, and the $4,000,000 gain for this year was evenly divided between income and processing taxes, Mr. Page said.

Not only did income taxes gain, but the number of those paying such taxes likewise increased. Income taxes were paid by 67,000 Georgians in 1934, while the number jumped to 87,000 this year, a gain of 20,000.

Processing and income taxes are the principal sources of revenue represented in the $32,000,000 collections, the collector stated. Liquor stamp taxes yielded only $87,500, and miscellaneous taxes were equally light.

TEN WINE LICENSES ISSUED BY ATLANTA

Sellers Warned of Prosecution If They Do Not Pay City License Fee.

Only 10 wine licenses have been issued by the city, J. Henson Tatum, city clerk, announced yesterday as he warned dealers they must pay up or face prosecution for doing business without a city license.

About 80 applications have been approved by the mayor and council and petitioners whose applications have been sanctioned can now get their licenses. Tatum asserted about 100 more have filed applications and they will go to the police committee for a recommendation at its meeting Thursday night.

Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, has announced that vigorous steps will be taken to force about 1,000 Atlanta dealers to comply with the wine license ordinances. He will join Tatum in the effort to enforce provisions of the ordinance if dealers do not voluntarily procure licenses.

Bridges estimates at least 1,000 are handling wine and insists they pay the city license, which is $60 a year, or $15 a quarter.

S. S. VOLENDAM FULL FOR ANNUAL CRUISE

Annual Midsummer Event Is Gaining Popularity Among Americans.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Filled to capacity, the Volendam of the Holland America Line departed Tuesday night with 450 passengers and not one unoccupied cabin on its 54-day cruise to the most interesting ports and places of the Mediterranean and Scandinavian countries.

More and more the Volendam's annual midsummer cruise becomes an institution among American summer vacations. This present sailing sets a record in passengers carried for the past two years.

The present low cost of travel and the benefits received by visiting so many places of historical and picturesque interest accounts for the hundreds who prefer the annual Volendam Mediterranean-Norway cruise as a way to spend their summer.

This is further evidenced by the unusually large number of family groups with children and relatives.

So great is the attraction of the Volendam cruise that over 10 passengers are making their third consecutive cruise on this steamer. More than 40 are coming from the Pacific coast, and far off Honolulu has sent four passengers.

Fifteen college girls from a North Carolina camp add their quota to the notable list.

GOLD, SILVER EMBARGO IS DECREED IN PERSIA

Kennesaw Battle Anniversary To Be Observed Next Sunday

The Battle of Kennesaw Mountain will have its 71st anniversary observed one week from today, it was announced by national park service officials yesterday.

Arrangements are being made to take care of traffic, and a speakers' rostrum is being constructed on a shady hillside in order to accommodate the crowd expected to come from all points near Atlanta, it was said.

The program commemorating the famous battle of the Civil War will be held at the battlefield site on the mountain, known popularly as Cheatham's hill, and four miles from Marietta. It will start at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Hugh Howell, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, and Major-General George Van Horn Mosley, of Atlanta, will be the chief speakers at the commemoration.

Songs famous during the war will be sung by the choir of the First Methodist church of Marietta. Music will be under the direction of Regina Rambo, director of the church choir.

A. L. Belle Isle, of Atlanta, will lend a sound truck equipped to transmit the music and the speeches to the crowd which will be seated on the hillside, officials said.

Colonel James Manning, a member of the state legislature, is chairman of the committee arranging for the commemoration. All arrangements will be completed by July 12, it was stated.

FORMER N. Y. JUDGE RELEASED FROM PEN

W. Bernard Vause, Paroled, Started Serving 6-Year Term Feb. 3, 1932.

Former Judge W. Bernard Vause, of King's county, Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday was paroled from the Atlanta federal penitentiary after serving nearly three and a half years of a six-year sentence for conspiracy and using the mails to defraud.

The federal parole board had announced several months ago the former Brooklyn judge would be paroled yesterday. He left the prison immediately after his release.

The charges for which Vause was convicted and sentenced July 30, 1930, in the southern district of New York grew out of the operation of the Columbia Finance Company.

He began serving his term on February 3, 1932, after appeals had been carried to the circuit and supreme courts and an appeal for executive clemency to President Roosevelt.

Vause, who has been eligible for parole since February 2, 1934, will be allowed to return to his home under rigid parole supervision. His sentence, with allowances for good behavior, will expire July 6, 1936. The parole board termed him an exemplary prisoner.

Two state charges against Vause in New York, based on the Columbia corporation losses, have been dropped. The former judge is 55 and was a member of the Kings county judiciary for seven years.

LIBERAL PROBERS BACK FROM HAVANA

Odets and Companions Assail "Inhuman Treatment" in Cuba.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Fifteen American liberals who went to Cuba to investigate what they called "the destruction of civil liberties" returned today from a fast round-trip on the Ward liner Oriente, brimming with indignation over alleged "inhuman treatment."

To newsmen who boarded the boat at Quarantine, Clifford Odets, liberal playwright and chairman of the delegation, asserted in a prepared statement: "This delegation has been honored by deportation by the present Cuban dictatorship."

The delegation, which included two negroes and four women, dwelled at length upon their incarceration by Cuban authorities and their being held for 17 hours incommunicado. Odets said neither the men nor the women were given mattresses and that the springs of the beds at Tiscornia detention camp made their backs look like waffles. Other members of the party said that none of the windows had screens and they were bitten aplenty by mosquitoes.

QUEENLESS CAROL ENLARGES PALACE

Madam Lupesca Aids King, Evidently Confident of Lengthy Reign.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 6.—(AP)—Apparently believing he will be on the Rumanian throne for many years more, King Carol is spending millions of lei on the enlargement of the already extensive and sumptuous royal palace here.

Although he has no queen to share the throne with him, the Rumanian sovereign has ordered the addition of a huge new wing of white marble to the palace, as well as the enrichment of the two royal thrones in the great gilded reception hall of the palace.

The king has also directed that whole blocks of business and residential buildings in the neighborhood of the present palace be torn down in order to make way for the laying out of a fine new park around the royal palace.

In all his planning the king has the advice and suggestion of Madam Helena Lupescu, his morganatic consort, who is said to possess remarkably good judgment and taste in such matters.

When King Carol completes his alterations and extensions, it is expected that the royal palace will rival any on the continent. The Rumanian sovereign now has half a dozen palaces in different parts of Rumania. The largest of these are at Bucharest, Cotroceni and Sinaia. There are special accommodations in all of them for Madam Lupescu.

WEED PRODUCERS VOTE 98.2 FOR AAA PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The Farm Administration announced today practically complete returns from the referendum held last month to determine whether there will be a flue-cured tobacco adjustment program to follow the one which expires with the current season show that 98.2 per cent of eligible voters participating favored extension of the program.

Of the number of eligible voters, 188,163 or 83.3 per cent cast ballots. Of this number 184,755 or 98.2 per cent voted for another program while 3,408 or 1.8 per cent voted against the program.

Flue-cured tobacco is produced chiefly in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Florida. The AAA said there were 225,880 eligible voters and 37,717 did not vote.

SLEEPING BOY KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLT

SPRINGFIELD, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—A driving wind and electrical storm struck Robertson county today, killing a 17-year-old farm boy as he slept in bed, and wreaking property damage.

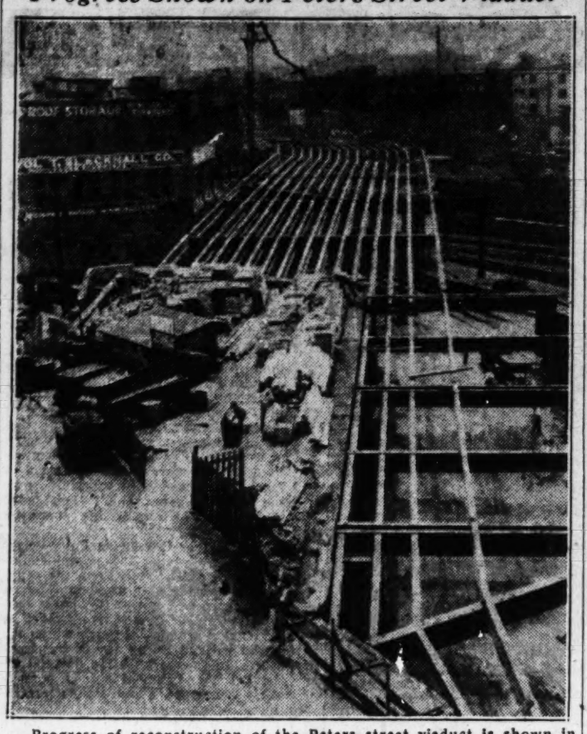

The boy, Fred Shoulders, was killed instantly when a stroke of lightning whipped down a chimney and struck him as he lay sleeping in a nearby bed. Phil Jenkins, 13, a half-brother also in the bed, was knocked out upon the floor and seriously bruised, shocked and burned. He was expected to recover.

MADISON, Fla., July 6.—(AP)—Fred Ellas Jr., 23, who came here from Howard, Ala., was killed last night when lightning struck a barracks building of number two camp at Cherry Lake Farms, federal subsistance homestead project near here.

The lightning apparently struck Ellis in the face when he attempted to close a window during the rainstorm. He was killed instantly.

Progress Shown on Peters Street Viaduct

Progress of reconstruction of the Peters street viaduct is shown in the above picture. The work is being done from federal highway and road funds supplied to Georgia at a cost of approximately $250,000. The roadway will be widened and the off-set eliminated in the new bridge. The steel beams can be seen traversing the railway canyon, which the viaduct will span. It will be an important artery when completed. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Appeal To Save Wesley Church Results in Nation-Wide Response

The nation will join with Atlanta and Georgia in "saving Wesley Memorial church," Dr. Felton Williams, pastor, said yesterday, following receipt of checks and cash from various sections of the country. Efforts to raise the $42,000 emergency fund, he said, are being made in California, Maine, many states of the midwest and particularly in New York state, where the united committee for law enforcement headquarters is stationed.

Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the committee, appealed last week for funds to carry on the work of Wesley Memorial, which he has described as "a church with a real purpose in view."

"I have no doubt," Dr. Williams said, "that when the people of Atlanta learn other sections of the United States are coming to our rescue that they will contribute wholeheartedly to this campaign. We belong to Atlanta and I am happy to say leading ministers of other denominations are as anxious as we are to save this church."

It was pointed out that the $42,000 indebtedness is only a fraction of the material value of the church. Estimates by real estate dealers place the value between $300,000 and a half-million dollars.

Radio Broadcast Given.

A radio broadcast last night, appealing for funds, featured the FERA band, testimonials from many civic and religious leaders and an elaborate radio hookup over WGST. It was said to be the most elaborate undertaking in Atlanta radio history.

"We feel Atlanta people will rally to the cause when they realize our church is important to the economic as well as the religious life of the community," Dr. Williams said.

Dr. Williams pointed out that Wesley Memorial church, in addition to its religious fellowship, is conducting a mission, a children's home and daily caring for many "derelicts who, without the care of Christian people, will be lost in the ravages of our present economic disorder."

The church, he said, specializes in helping those who are not reached by various relief agencies.

Widespread Appeal Made.

The appeal from Clinton N. Howard was sent to hundreds of editors in the nation, from headquarters of the United Committee for Law Enforcement at Rochester, N. Y.

Many publications in the country have featured the appeal by Mr. Howard and reprints are received daily at the Wesley church.

Ministers of all denominations in this area have united in issuing appeals for the fund to save the Wesley church. Included among those asking the public for donations are Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor Druid Hills Baptist church; Bishop Warren A. Candler, retired bishop of the Methodist Church, South; Dr. R. L. Russell, presiding elder of the North Georgia Conference, Methodists; Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, and many others.

Plans to raise $10,000 immediately and at least $32,000 later will continue, Dr. Williams said. It is expected that the emergency fund of $10,000 will be secured by August 1.

Wesley Memorial is the only downtown Atlanta church which conducts a mission along with religious activities, the pastor said.

RUTH DEAN TO START SENTENCE THIS WEEK

JACKSON, Miss., July 6.—(AP)—Unless Governor Sennett Conner again intercedes, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, of Greenwood, Miss., prominent socially and professionally, must begin next week serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary.

The Greenwood woman doctor, convicted of the "poison whiskey highball" death of her clinical associate, Dr. John Preston Kennedy, must begin serving her sentence Tuesday unless Governor Conner, who left the capitol today for an unannounced destination, extends a 30-day order of suspension of sentence, or grants the woman a full pardon.

A suspension of sentence granted by the governor June 8 will expire Monday.

FATHER SHOOTS SON AND ENDS OWN LIFE

CENTREVILLE, Md., July 6.—(AP)—Joseph Greiner, 75-year-old German farmer, shot and killed himself after seriously wounding his 19-year-old son and a neighbor, Sheriff T. Herbert Everett, of Queen Anne's county, said today.

Greiner, who lived 15 miles east of here, pumped "dum-dum" bullets into August Greiner, 19, and Joseph Davis, 35, after an altercation at the Greiner home last night, Everett said.

Davis was taken to the Easton Emergency hospital in a serious condition. He was wounded at the base of the skull.

The aged man then turned his high-powered German rifle on himself and pulled the trigger. The soft lead pellets tore off the top of Greiner's head.

50,000 CHURCH YOUTHS PARADE FOR PEACE

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(UP) Fifty thousand Sunday school and church workers, attending the 35th convention of the International Christian Endeavor Union, marched through the city to Independence Square today "to show America that its youth wants peace."

The "young soldiers of Christianity—not of war" were inspired by a message from David Lloyd George, former English prime minister, who advised them that the Christian youth of today must take the lead in the struggle for world peace.

Similar appeals for the youth of the world to rally for world peace were read from Arthur Henderson and Lord Cecil, the present and former chairmen of disarmament conference.

AIR LINE CONSIDERING TRANSFERRING OFFICE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Chicago and Southern airlines officials said today they are considering moving headquarters of the line to St. Louis.

Carlton Putnam, president, said new high speed equipment was being purchased and that "St. Louis appears to be the logical basing point, although we have taken no definite steps toward locating our headquarters there." "Between St. Louis and Chicago," he said, "we expect our heaviest traffic. We will be able to serve the line more efficiently if our reserve planes are in St. Louis."

Chicago and Southern, with about 50 employes in Memphis at present, began operations from Chicago to New Orleans in June, 1934. The line moved here from the Pacific coast.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY 40 ET 8 SOCIETY

Officers of Voiture 27 of the 40 et 8 Society, "the shrine to the American Legion," were installed Friday night at the 40 et 8 Society hall.

Installed as chef de gare for the coming year was Al R. Rousey. Other officers are: M. L. Boswell, chef de traine; F. J. McMullin, commissaire intendant; J. W. Stephens, correspondant; W. A. Dodge Jr., commiss voyageur; Clyde Thomason, conducteur; W. J. Redfern, garde le porte, and Franklin Chalmers, J. Fowler and Standish Thompson, cheminots. Henry H. Green, retiring chef de gare was indorsed as Georgia grande chef de gare. Delegates to a state meeting in Macon, August 22, were instructed to vote for Green, who is chief deputy United States marshal and a national vice commander of the Shrine Legion of Honor.

UNIQUE POLICE CALL GETS QUICK RESULTS

John Tyler, of 345 Tyler street, was an accident victim yesterday and employed a unique method of summoning the police. His pushcart was struck at the corner of Marietta and Simpson streets by an automobile driven by M. V. Lee, of 116 Whitefoord avenue, N. E. Within a few seconds a police radio car arrived at the scene.

"We got a burglar alarm call, not an accident call," the patrolmen said. But they went ahead investigating the accident and shortly discovered the reason for the mistake. A piece of wood from the cart had splintered off and smashed a window of a grocery store on the corner, setting off the burglar alarm. Result: A small window broken, small damage to car or cart and no cases made.

COVINGTON MAN HURT WHEN CAR SNAPS POLE

John Almond, of Covington, was in Grady hospital in a serious condition last night from injuries received when an automobile in which he was riding collided with a telephone pole.

Marie Sheridan, of Jonesboro road, who was charged with reckless and drunken driving, paid a $27 fine in recorder's court in connection with the accident, which occurred yesterday morning at South Boulevard and Ormewood avenue. The car knocked down the pole.

Almond suffered a fractured ankle and was in a weakened condition from loss of blood, the result of a deep laceration of his arm. Miss Sheridan, Martha Jennings, of Lakewood Heights, and Carlton Hooper, of Covington, were slightly injured in the wreck.

CONGRESSMAN BROWN SEEKS HIGHWAY PEACE

Congressman Paul Brown, of Elberton, yesterday joined other members of the Georgia delegation in congress in their effort to straighten out the controversy between the State Highway Board and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace over the administration of Georgia's $19,000,000 share of the federal aid highway fund.

In a letter to Senate President Charles D. Redwine, Congressman Brown said he was doing everything possible to bring about settlement of the dispute.

There were no new developments in the controversy yesterday.

1935 CROPS BRING $130 TO FARMER OF GEORGIA

Market Chief Announces Per Capita Income for Farm Population.

An estimate that 1935 crops in Georgia will give a $130 per capita gross income to the state's farm population was made yesterday by W. L. Stone, director of the Bureau of Markets, a division of the Department of Agriculture.

The gross income to the 255,692 one-horse farms, he predicted, will average $860 per farm.

Stone said his estimate was based on the probable gross income for all crops, which he placed at more than $200,000,000.

"We are pleased with the outlook at the present for the production of the farms in Georgia," Stone added, although he said a "severe drouth" had retarded the corn crop and will likely have an adverse effect on potatoes, peanuts, sugar cane, peas and other fall crops.

Thomas M. Linder, commissioner of agriculture, said Georgia farmers would "be able to take care of themselves, if they were let alone and allowed to have their own way in making and growing their products, and with all processing taxes eliminated."

Commenting on Stone's estimates, Linder said chief money crops had decreased in the past three years under the national crop control program.

"Other less important crops, such as hay, oats and some other grain, have increased, but we find now we have no market for them because the government is importing too much stuff from foreign ports," Linder said.

MAINE MAKES LIFE KIDNAPING PENALTY

AUGUSTA, Maine, July 6.—(UP) Statutes carrying a mandatory life sentence for kidnaping became effective in Maine today.

STRAWN WARNS DEAL BARS 'DUE' RECOVERY

Former Chamber Chief Declares 1935 Should Bring Prosperity.

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—Silas H. Strawn, noted lawyer and financier, said in an interview today that, except for what he called governmental "experiments," the nation now would be well into the recovery he forecast in 1930 when he predicted the depression would last five years.

Strawn was one of the few business observers then who realized at once the national business and industrial slump had moved in for a long engagement.

A past president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, he incurred strong criticism when he said soon after the market break of October, 1929, that universal "economic maladjustments" made a lengthy economic recession inevitable. He set five years as the minimum corrective period required.

"I am convinced," he said today, "that if we had carried on in a way which has always been consistent with our history and had applied ourselves persistently and courageously to working out of the depression, we would now be well on the way to a normal condition.

"In my judgment, the greatest deterrent to a return to normalcy has been the fear and apprehension resultant upon the continuous experiments in agriculture, industry and finance which have been imposed upon our people by the present administration.

Strawn said he could not undertake, under present conditions, to predict when "true normalcy" would be reached.

TRANSIENT CAMPS TO BE ESTABLISHED

Roaming Men To Be Turned Over to U. S. Forest Service Here.

Homeless and jobless men who have been roaming the country during the past two years stopping at federal transient camps will be turned over to the United States Forest Service, which will put them to work in the national forests, according to Miss Gay B. Shepperson, FERA administrator for Georgia.

There are approximately 3,000 transients in Georgia transient camps at present, and these will be placed under the jurisdiction of the forest service. Those physically able to do so, will work in the Cherokee and Nantahala forests, building roads, fire breaks and other manual labor.

Regional forest service officials declined to discuss the impending change, saying they had not been fully informed as to just how they should care for the transients.

It is understood, however, that the ablebodied transients will be placed in camps similar to those of the Civilian Conservation Corps and will be paid a regular salary in addition to maintenance.

Just what will be done with the transients not able to work has not been announced, Miss Shepperson said.

A large percentage of the transients are not physically fit. It is possible that they may be returned to their home cities and that the counties and municipalities will be called upon to support them.

Assuming that even half of the transients are able to work, this would call for the operation of approximately 10 camps to house them, it was pointed out, inasmuch as 175 men are assigned to each camp.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

Rialto Has Real College Story In "Bachelor of Arts" by Erskine

Tom Brown is the freshman and Anita Louise is the fair co-ed in the remarkable picture of true college life which is to be seen at the Rialto theater this week. "Bachelor of Arts" is its title, taken from the best selling novel of the same name by John Erskine, the distinguished author and professor at Columbia University.

It is probably due to the fact that Erskine is himself a university professor and a close student of student life that the picture refrains from any of those inanities which have spoiled so many films of undergraduate life. For this one is absolutely real and will be recognized as such by any student of today or college graduate of recent years.

In addition to the two leads, the cast is filled with the names of popular and capable players, including Henry B. Walthall, Arline Judge, Mae Marsh, Berton Churchill, George Meeker, Frank Albertson and Stepin Fetchit, the ultra deliberate colored man.

The story begins with the enrollment of a freshman, Tom Brown, who is cursed with too much spending money and a commplete indifference either to his studies or any other campus activity.

Manager Murray has added exceptional short subjects to his program this week, which runs through Thursday and which will be followed, next Friday, with the opening of Grace Moore's sensational new picture.

Atlanta's Own Child Performer, Jane Withers, in "Ginger" at Fox

Jane Withers, the kid who imitated a machine gun, told tales on Shirley Temple, tried to run her down with a doll carriage and proved herself a complete annoyance in "Bright Eyes," has the title role in the big comedy success, "Ginger," the current feature attraction now playing at the Fox theater.

Jane is an Atlanta product and many will remember her when she used to have minor parts in numerous Kiddie Reviews. Little 9-year-old Jane had great ambitions and probably the most important event of Jane Withers' life occurred on September 21, 1934, when she was signed for the role in "Bright Eyes," starring Shirley Temple. She worked very hard in "Bright Eyes" and as a result of her performance, was signed to a long-term contract by Fox Films on December 7, 1934.

Little Miss Withers sets a new style in comedy entertainment in "Ginger," which kept Hollywood and New York audiences in continual guffaws and caused the prediction that the film is a great beginning for what looks like a great career.

Little Jane registers a million dollars' worth of personality and talent in her new picture and Fox theater audiences are assured that they will love her as much in this story as they hated her in "Bright Eyes."

When Jane, the little, independent, self-reliant product of Ninth avenue, is taken into the Park avenue home of the pampered Jackie Searl, there's a swell clash with a world of comedy. O. P. Heggie gives an outstanding performance as Jane's foster uncle and Katherine Alexander and Walter King provide an unusual romance as Jackie Searl's parents.

The short features include old "Popeye" in his latest starring role, titled "For Better or Worser," a pictorial and Fox latest news.

Capitol Has "Four Hours To Kill" On Screen, New Show on Stage

Drama in a theater that takes place in front of the footlights, instead of behind, is the story told in the special production, "Four Hours To Kill," starring Richard Barthelmess, which opens a week's engagement at the Capitol theater today. Other well-known names in the large supporting cast include Helen Mack, Gertrude Michael, Joe Morrison and Roscoe Karns.

Another Broadway stage show has been booked for the Capitol as the flesh entertainment on the program with "Four Hours To Kill." The new unit show brings to Atlanta vaudeville fans Loretta Grey and her Collegians. Miss Grey, better known as the "four-foot girl with the ten-foot personality," played a season in George White's Scandals and is known on Broadway as a comedienne of note.

Other important personalities with the stage show, include Four Flying Comets, a sensational European novelty skating act, two beautiful girls and two young men; Clifford and Leslie, better known as "the two merry jesters," who will present loads of comedy throughout the whole show; Edythe Rogers, the "Camel Cigarette Girl," a beautiful blonde that is an artist when it comes to playing the violin; McGarry and Dawn, dancers de luxe; Guy Rockey, sensational trumpet player, and Joe Clauser and his Soldiers of Rhythm Band.

In the Capitol's feature, "Four Hours To Kill," Barthelmess plays an escaped convict, hiding in the theater and waiting for his chance to get even with the man who squealed on him. In the same audience are others whose life dramas are bound with his, a cloakroom boy who has stolen to get money, a rich woman planning to run away with her sweetheart, a handsome philanderer who preys on impressionable women.

While police frantically search for Barthelmess he makes a telephone call that lures his victim to the lobby of the theater. Then, just as the separate life dramas of the others are rising to their climaxes, he steps from his hiding place and shoots down the man before the eyes of an aghast audience.

How the criminal is caught and the tangled lives of the others straightened out, furnishes the climax to this thrilling drama.

Those who have planned to enter one of the Capitol amateur contests, which are conducted every Friday night, will be interested to know that an advance has been made in the prizes. First prize is now $10 or a week's engagement at the Capitol at a salary of $20. Second prize is $5, and third prize a month's pass to the theater, good for two persons.

All Sorts of Screen Attractions To Be Seen in Atlanta This Week

European Film Star, Luise Rainer, Charming in "Escapade" at Grand

Hollywood's newest importation is Luise Rainer, who makes her debut—and a highly impressive one—in "Escapade," now at Loew's Grand theater. She appears with a cast which includes William Powell, Virginia Bruce, Mady Christians, Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen in a lilting romance of prewar Vienna, when this city was one of the gayest, most romantic spots on earth. Under Robert Z. Leonard's direction the merriment and music of Vienna is evoked with especial charm and effectiveness, and "Escapade" promises to be among the summer's best film offerings.

Miss Rainer is seen as Poldi—companion for an aging and gossipy countess, a naive girl, lately from the country and considerably awed by Vienna. Coincidence and human weakness conspire to get her innocently involved in a Viennese scandal, through which she passes without losing any of her fresh charm, to emerge with the dashing artist all the Viennese women admire solely concerned about Poldi's attractions.

William Powell is the artist—an illustrator who makes impertinent and popular sketches. When the lovely wife of a famous Viennese doctor visits the artist's apartment he makes a risque sketch of her, clad in very little and by accident the sketch is sent to the newspaper. Its publication is practically a public admission of intrigue and, to make matters worse, the sister-in-law of the model is herself involved with the painter.

Thus we have a series of highly impertinent and provocative episodes threatening to produce serious results. But "Escapade" is a comedy and its tone never becomes very melodramatic, though there are many vigorous and moving moments in the course of the film. How Poldi, the provincial governess, rescues the artist from the predicament in which he finds himself and how she wins his love, provides a rightly appealing climax for a glittering and romantic story, light, fresh, and ingratiating. Miss Rainer and Powell, in principal parts, perform excellently and the remainder of the cast aids appreciably in making the entertainment sophisticated and delightful throughout.

"Oil For The Lamps of China" Hits Dramatic Motive at Paramount

"Oil for the Lamps of China," the Cosmopolitan production now playing at the Paramount theater, was started more than a year ago. The preliminary work began early in 1934 when arrangements were made for taking exterior shots in Manchuria, scene of events described by the author.

The story takes its name from an incident early in the picture when O'Brien invents a lamp which is given free to Chinese by the company, the purpose of the "donation" being to increase the sale of oil in China.

Wheaton Chambers, who has spent a number of years in China and who speaks the language, was employed as technical director. Others called upon to offer technical advice were Director Leroy, who had recently returned from China with his bride, the former Doris Warner; Irva Ross, the script girl, who also has lived in China; Talbot, said to be one of the best informed Americans on Chinese customs because of his associations in San Francisco's Chinatown, and the 26 Chinese players.

Tony Gaudio, one of Hollywood's best-known cameramen, had the important assignment of filming the picture.

"Oil for the Lamps of China" is a thrilling drama with a most unusual romance. The all-star cast includes Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson, Jean Muir, John Eldredge, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Byron, Henry O'Neill and Donald Crisp.

'GAMBLING' TO SHOW FOR BUCKHEAD FANS

Claudette Colbert in 'Imitation of Life' Monday and Tuesday.

"Gambling" is the attraction today at the Buckhead theater. George M. Cohan wrote the play and takes the lead in the picture. Dorothy Burgess, Wynne Gibson, Harold Healy and others are in the cast.

"Imitation of Life" with Claudette Colbert and Warren William will be seen on Monday and Tuesday. This is an intensely moving comedy-drama, centering mostly around mother love. The story is by Fannie Hurst. In the cast are Alan Hale, Baby Jane, Henry Armetta, Fredi Washington and others.

"The Great Hotel Murder" with Edmund Lowe, Victor McLaglen and Rosemary Ames is the picture for Wednesday and Thursday. The story has an unusual twist and the plot is skillfully and entertainingly worked out. Mary Carlisle, William Janney and others are in the cast.

"George White's Scandals" with George White, James Dunn and Alice Faye will play Friday and Saturday. This is a sprightly musical comedy. Cliff Edwards, Eleanor Powell, Ned Sparks, Lyda Roberti, Emma Dunn, Jack Mulhall and others make the cast one of the best of recent months.

Each day comedies, newsreels, cartoons and other good short subjects will be shown.

'Let's Live Tonight' Follows for Single Day's Showing Tuesday.

Today and Monday Ponce de Leon theater will offer Maurice Chevalier's latest picture, "Folies Bergere," in which he is assisted by Ann Sothern and Merle Oberon. It is one of the greatest of musical shows with dozens of beautiful girls and some of the season's most popular song hits.

Tuesday only the Ponce de Leon will present Lilian Harvey and Tullio Carminati in "Let's Live Tonight," a gay, sparkling musical comedy.

Wednesday only Victory Jory and Rosemary Ames will be in "Pursued," an action picture that unfolds a story packed with suspense and daring adventure.

Thursday and Friday "Clive of India," starring Ronald Colman and Loretta Young will be the featured attraction. It is an exciting adventure story with exotic India as a background.

Saturday only Conrad Nagel and Florence Rice will be featured in "Death Flies East," an unusual story of crime and mystery above the clouds.

Robeson in Coming Film

Paul Robeson, noted negro singer and actor as he appears in "Sanders of the River" coming to Loew's Grand next Friday.

Wheeler and Woolsey in "Nitwits" Play Detectives at the Georgia

Craig Kennedy! Philo Vance! Sherlock Holmes! Johnnie and Newton are here with a bag full of new sleuthing tricks to put you all to shame!

The crime-solving aces of fiction are now rivaled by Johnnie and Newton, who come on the scene in the persons of Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "The Nitwits," now showing at the Georgia theater.

"The Nitwits" combines amateur sleuthing, nonsensical hilarity and fast-stepping melody. The song and dance factors are appropriate to the locale, Tin Pan Alley, America's home of popular songs. Three new numbers are introduced: "Music in My Heart;" "You Opened My Eyes," and "The Black Widow Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out." Wheeler and Woolsey, former musical comedy stars and ex-vaudevillians, perform these numbers in specialties, Betty Grable, radio favorite, assisting Wheeler in a song-and-dance sequence of "Music in My Heart."

The mystery of the "Nitwits" arises from an extortion plot conducted by "The Black Widow," named after his symbol, the spider. A song publisher is victimized and slain and his secretary is accused. She is Wheeler's sweetheart, and the boys swing their gumshoe tactics into action to trail the real murderer.

A cast whose versatility enables it to enact gripping melodrama and hilarious comedy alike is entrusted with the supporting roles in "The Nitwits." Fred Keating, who played Clark Gable's role in the stage version of "Forsaking All Others," portrays a private detective. Miss Grable is Wheeler's feminine partner. Erik Rhodes, recently of "Gay Divorcee," and Evelyn Brent have other prominent parts.

'LADDIE' OFFERING AT EMPIRE THEATER

Gene Stratton-Porter Story To Be Shown Today and Monday.

American life, flavored with romance of international nature, provides the interest in "Laddie," picturization of the famous novel by Gene Stratton-Porter, the feature picture at the Empire theater, corner of Georgia avenue and Crew street, today and Monday. Featured in this picture are John Beal, Gloria Stuart, Virginia Weidler, Charlotte Henry and Donald Crisp.

Mirth, melody and pulchritude are delightfully blended in "Student Tour," sparkling musical that will be offered on Tuesday. Jimmy Durante, Charles Butterworth, Maxine Doyle, Phil Reagan and Monte Blue are seen.

Shirley Temple, co-starred with Lionel Barrymore in "The Little Colonel," will be the feature on Wednesday and Thursday. The stars are supported by a picked cast consisting of Evelyn Venable, John Ledge, Sidney Blackmer, Alden Chase and others. Bill Robinson, ace of tap dancers, does his marvelous stair-dance, alone with Shirley.

Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, together again and at each other's throats, should provide sparkling entertainment Friday in "The Great Hotel Murder."

Tim McCoy in a sizzling western talkie is billed for Saturday with the showing of "The Prescott Kid."

'Living on Velvet' Billed for Showing Today and Monday.

Today and Monday the Hilan theater will present Kay Francis in "Living on Velvet" in which she is assisted by Warren William and George Brent. It is a fascinating comedy-drama of a beautiful young woman who had two ardent suitors.

Tuesday only the Hilan will present Lee Tracy, Sally Eilers and Jimmy Durante in "Carnival." It is a fast-moving story of a fast-talking carnival sideshow operator. Jimmy Durante is funnier than ever.

Everyone who loves mystery stories will be delighted to see that "Menace," starring Paul Cavanagh and Gertrude Michael, will be offered at the Hilan Wednesday only. It is a picture filled with drama and mystery.

Barbara Stanwyck and Gene Raymond will be featured in "The Woman in Red" for Thursday and Friday. Miss Stanwyck has the role of a penniless but proud woman who married the son of a wealthy and blue-blooded family.

"Secret of the Chateau," the attraction for Saturday only features Claire Dodd, Alice White, Jack LaRue and George E. Stone. It is a treat full of action and excitement.

CHEVROLET IN JUNE HAS BIG PRODUCTION

More Than One Hundred Thousand Cars Are Turned Out.

DETROIT, July 6.—Chevrolet turned out more than 115,000 units in June, a month which ordinarily marks a slowing down of the industry as a whole. Because the demand for new Chevrolets continues to exceed the supply, the company announces a heavy production schedule has been set up for July, and likely will run into August.

M. E. Coyle, president and general manager, declared that July production will be at least as high as June, and may exceed it.

"We are going into July under obligation to keep up production at the maximum," Mr. Coyle said. "The orders we already have, plus those coming in during the month, are enough to assure continued peak activity. In other years we would be expecting a seasonal let-down, but the way I visualize the immediate future, I would say that our demand will continue well into August.

"Talk of a Chevrolet 'shortage' is to be expected, when the dealers can't get the cars in the quantities they want and need. It's a pleasant kind of shortage to face, however. It is a great tribute to our product, that buyers who want new cars are willing to await their arrival from the Chevrolet factories—at a season when motorists most need and enjoy their cars. That means that they didn't merely order a car, but were actually sold, in the full sense of the word, on the merits and value of our product.

"Our present situation is one that spells volume for factory and dealers, and indicates a great return of buying power and an improvement in morale among the people. Further, it promises steady employment for thousands throughout a period when, in normal 'no shortage' years, they would be idle.

"Dealers in various sections of the country report splendid business prospects at a season which usually brings a gradual tapering-off of sales. The sustained buying that is evidenced this summer is traceable, I believe, to the vastly improved conditions of the farmer over the country as a whole.

"Optimism is greater in the middle western states, predominantly agricultural areas. Iowa, Kansas and the Dakotas have had abundant rains, eliminating drouths as a factor to be feared, since crops are now so far advanced that a bumper yield is assured.

"Throughout the fertile areas around the Great Lakes—in fact everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains—much the same conditions are to be found. Farmer and city dweller alike are buying cars and trucks—and trucks make up a substantial part of the total. We are especially gratified over conditions in the commercial car field, because the improvement is so evident that they may be taken as an added indication that business will maintain its upward trend.

"No matter from what angle it is viewed, the outlook for the remainder of the season is bright. It will take our best efforts to keep pace with the demand."

RECORDS BROKEN

Packard Breaks Monthly, Weekly, Daily Records.

All records for car shipments in its history were broken by the Packard Motor Car Company in June, Monthly, weekly and daily records fell during the month.

M. M. Gilman, vice president and general manager, disclosed that June's shipments reached the high mark of 6,513. The best previous month was October, 1928, when 5,805 cars were shipped. The previous record of weekly shipments was established during the week of July 23, 1928, with 1,535 cars. In the week ending June 29 last, this all-time record was broken with 1,862 shipments.

"Packard's shipments since January 1," Mr. Gilman said, "were more than eight times as large as those during the first six months of 1934, despite the fact that production of the new One Twenty Packard was not completely under way until April of this year. Shipments since January 1 to date total 20,879 as compared with 2,565 during the first six months of 1934. Shipments for June were nearly 17 times those of June last year, 6,513 compared with 390.

"A fact important to us," said Mr. Gilman, "is that we have had an encouraging increase in business with our larger and more costly cars during the first six months of this year. Our big car shipments during the first half of this year exceeded those for the first six months of 1934 by 25 per cent. Outlook for still further increases in this division of our business is good.

"This half-year has been one of the most important periods in the history of our company. It was marked for us with the brilliantly successful launching of a completely new car that has opened a greatly broadened market for Packard. In all of the 36 years Packard has been building fine cars we have never brought out a car which won as great or as an immediate acceptance from the public.

"Our plans for the expansion of our business and for lifting Packard to an even more important position in the industry have progressed smoothly. We now have two great plants operating where before we had one, and since February 1 we have increased the number of our dealers from 514 to 1,104.

"More than 15,000 of our new cars are now in the hands of the public and are giving complete satisfaction. But that, after all, could be expected, for no new motor car was ever more carefully planned and tested, both in its engineering design and in the facilities and precision of its manufacture."

CHARTER IS ADOPTED BY DAHLIA SOCIETY

The Dahlia Society of Georgia adopted a state charter recently and made plans for a dahlia show at the Biltmore hotel on October 4, it was announced yesterday by B. E. Phillips, of Atlanta, president. Many prominent Atlantans are charter members of the society.

At their recent meeting dahlia growers elected officers, voted on the constitution, by-laws, rules and regulations of the society, in order to fulfill legal requirements. About 75 dahlia enthusiasts already were organized, staging a dahlia show in Atlanta last year.

Every officer of the uncharted society was re-elected at the recent meeting, according to Mr. Phillips. They were: Mr. Phillips, president; the Rev. G. F. Venable, of Decatur, first vice president; W. F. Jones, of Atlanta, second vice president; M. S. Brooks, of Atlanta, secretary, and B. L. Kennedy, of East Point, treasurer.

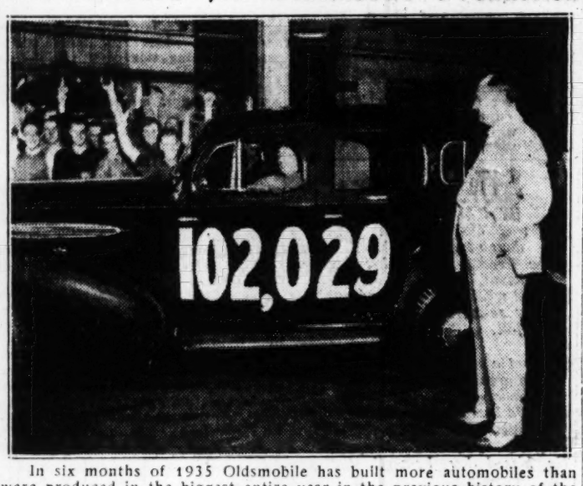

Mrs. John L. Harper, of Atlanta, is chairman of the committee making arrangements for the show in October.

New Record for Oldsmobile Production

In six months of 1935 Oldsmobile has built more automobiles than were produced in the biggest entire year in the previous history of the company. Last week, President C. L. McCuen drove from the final assembly line 1935 Oldsmobile No. 102,029. The previous record for one year's production was set in 1929 when 102,028 Oldsmobiles were built. President McCuen anticipates a total 1935 production of more than 150,000 cars. He is shown at the wheel of the record-breaking car with D. E. Ralston, Oldsmobile vice president and general sales manager, in the foreground. A group of enthusiastic Oldsmobile workmen cheer the new record.

STUDENT RACER

Pilots Willys 77 to Victory in Famed Briarcliff Races.

Pitted against a field of American and foreign cars, young Quinby flashed over the finish line in 2 hours and 3 minutes, beating his winning time of 1934 by 4 minutes.

He averaged a fraction less than 50 miles per hour for the 100 miles on a narrow, winding, bumpy course which spirals like ticker tape, fishhooks around right angle, unbanked turns, roller coasts along gravel or macadam roads and dives precipitously down grades which suggest a bobsled run.

"The tens of thousands of speed fans who lined every yard of the tortuous course," reported one New York sports writer, "got their fill of thrills as Langdon Quimby in his snow-white Willys 77 and Joel Thorne in a skyblue Ford V-8 locked wheels in a duel that recalled the gripping struggle between Wagner and Lancia on Long Island in 1906."

Mr. Thorne, a student at Rutgers, finished second, with a foreign entry, a Bugatti, third. Another Willys 77 entry finished so close among the leaders that the Willys drivers captured the team event as well as the major honor.

The race, referred to by the eastern press as the first modern Grand Prix of the United States, was staged a year ago for the first time since 1906 by the Automobile Racing Club of America.

Manufacturers of the Willys 77 and Evans Motors, southern distributors, located in Atlanta, were especially interested in the Briarcliff race inasmuch as the first four cars to finish in both the 1934 and 1933 Indianapolis 500-mile classic were also powered with four-cylinder motors.

GREENLAND AIR ROUTE UNDER CONSIDERATION

COPENHAGEN, July 6.—(AP)—American air authorities, it was indicated today, are making moves to discuss the possibility of a trans-Atlantic air route via Greenland.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, the United States minister to Denmark, was interrupted at a banquet at Aalborg, Jutland, last night, by a telephone call from Washington. She declined further comment than to say that air authorities weer "seeking information."

SUSTAIN FAST PACE

Chrysler, Plymouth Deliveries Continue at Peak.

Retail deliveries of Chrysler and Plymouth cars by Chrysler dealers in the week ending June 15 sustained the fast pace set by the first week in the month, according to figures released by J. W. Frazer, vice president of the Chrysler Sales Corporation. In the week 3,609 Plymouths and 1,155 Chryslers were placed in the hands of owners, a grand total of 4,764 units.

This is considerably ahead of the corresponding weeks of the last three years, Plymouth showing a gain of 10.1 per cent over the corresponding week of 1934, of 41.2 per cent over the corresponding week of 1933 and 142.9 per cent over the corresponding week of 1932. The Chrysler gains were respectively 44.9 per cent over 1934, 80.8 per cent over 1933 and 86 per cent over 1932. On the combined lines, the increases were respectively 16.9 per cent over 1934, 49.1 per cent over 1933 and 126.1 per cent over 1932.

In the 24 weeks, including June 15, Chrysler dealers delivered at retail 75,154 Plymouths and 21,216 Chryslers, a grand total of 96,370 units. This represents a gain for Plymouth of 39.2 per cent and for Chrysler of 97.2 per cent and for the combined lines of 48.9 per cent over the corresponding 24 weeks of 1934. It is 132.2 per cent higher on Plymouth, 106.4 per cent higher on Chrysler and 126 per cent higher on the combined lines than the corresponding period of 1933 and it is up 259.7 per cent on Plymouth, 41.4 per cent on Chrysler and 168.5 per cent on the combined lines over the same period of 1932.

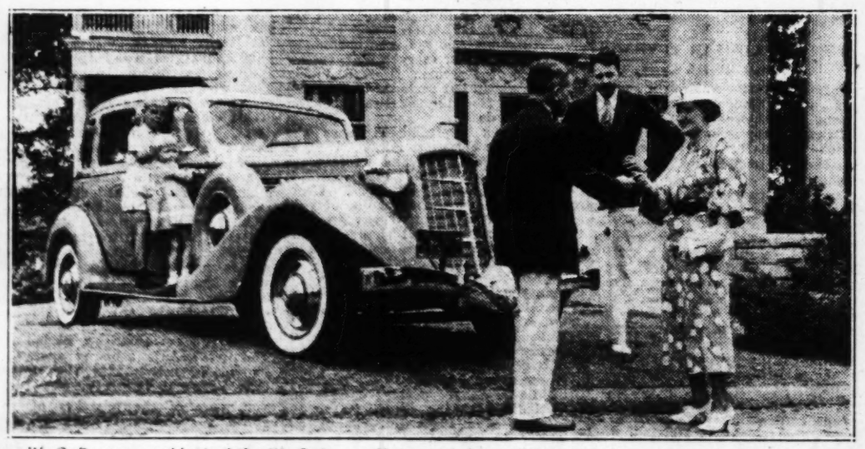

MOTOR VEHICLE BODY TO EXPAND SERVICES

The Motor Vehicle Association of Georgia will expand its services to the motor carriers of the state under the leadership of Hugh Chandler, Atlanta business executive, who recently assumed the presidency of the association, it was announced yesterday.

The association will develop co-operation and sponsor moves to benefit the entire industry. According to the latest census more than 64,000 trucks and trailers are in operation in the state. It will also work with the national association on the national program, it was said.

Mr. Chandler, an executive of the Gulf Refining Company, operators of large fleets of trucks, was named to fill the unexpired term of Jack P. Taylor, of Augusta. Sheriff L. C. Bittick, of Forsyth, was named vice president, and Robert N. Springfield, of Atlanta, was continued in office as secretary.

New Auburn Is Gift to Prominent Atlanta Woman

Goodyear Service Expands 50 Per Cent in Atlanta

Drawing, showing how the main Atlanta store of Goodyear Service will look when expansion program, now under way, is completed. The added area will give 50 per cent additional service facilities, made necessary by the heavy demand for the G3 tire, and the rapidly growing popularity of the six Goodyear Service Stores in Atlanta.

BAPTIST ASSOCIATION TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Ceremonies Will Take Place This Afternoon at Baptist Tabernacle.

Newly elected officers of the Atlanta Baptist Training Union Association will be installed at the Baptist Tabernacle at 3 o'clock this afternoon, according to Arthur O. Hayes, retiring president.

The annual rally of all departments of the Baptist Association will be held at the same time and representatives of every Atlanta union are expected to attend the services.

A special musical program has been arranged, Mr. Hayes said. Rev. J. M. Hendlye, pastor of the Colonial Hills Baptist church, will deliver the installation address.

The retiring president is particularly eager to meet all officers who have served under him while head of the association. Boyce L. Graham, newly elected president, has spent most of his extra time for 10 years on activities of the Baptist Young People's Union, Mr. Hayes said.

Officers, in addition to Graham, who will be installed, are:

General Officers—Troy Woodbury, vice president; Mary Walker, secretary; Lamar Hutchinson, publicity director; Marguerite Sowell, reporter; Jeanette Brooks, associate reporter; Rev. J. M. Hendlye, pastor.

Adult Officers—Franklin Beasley, president; LeRoy Butler, secretary; district vice presidents, H. F. Mewborn, B. M. Mayson and Derry L. Stockbridge.

Senior Officers—Clarence Sessions, president; J. W. Eberhardt, vice president; Lillian Thigpin, secretary; Gladstone Pursley, chorister; Mildred Keisler, pianist; district vice presidents Arnold G. Kennedy, Tilden Brooks and Lanier Tribble.

Intermediate Officers—Louise Fortson, leader; Alice Huling, associate leader; Hettie Pittman, secretary; Paschael Mehaffey, chorister; Mildred Sewell, pianist; district leaders, (1) Joe Huling, (2) Ray V. Hartwell, (4) Ovid Thrailkill, (5) Hazel Dennard, (6) Gladys Ingram.

Junior Officers—Marie Long, leader; Bill Brantley, associate leader; Frances Fortson, secretary; Ray Rowden, chorister; Gladys Lewis, pianist; district leaders, (1) Mrs. Frank McElvegn, (2) Jewel Hord, (3) Hubert Tatum, (4) Elizabeth Martin, (5) Elverta Sedgwick, (6) Frances Moultrie.

FEDERAL DETAINER FOR LEA DROPPED

Parole Commissioner Bares Letter 'Very Favorable' to Ex-Publisher.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 6.—(AP)—A federal detainer lodged at State's Prison here for Luke Lea, former United States senator from Tennessee, was formally withdrawn today. Shortly before, Edwin M. Gill, state parole commissioner, had revealed that L. P. McLendon, who assisted in the prosecution of Lea in Asheville, had written a letter "very favorable to the cause" of Lea in his petition for a pardon.

The offices of Marshal Ford S. Worthy were notified by letter by J. O. Carr, district attorney at Wilmington, that the federal charges against Lea in Knoxville, Tenn., had been dropped the State Prison Department was notified to withdraw the detainer.

Lea was freed of the federal charges of aiding and abetting in the alleged misapplication of funds of the Holston-Union National Bank of Knoxville by District Judge George Taylor here about 10 days ago.

DOGS BITE THREE

Police War on Stray Canines Halted by Court.

Three persons were bitten by dogs and were forced to start the anti-rabies treatment yesterday as the police war against stray dogs was held in abeyance pending a hearing Monday on the temporary injunction restraining Chief T. O. Sturdivant and his officers from shooting canines on sight.

The hearing will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in Judge Hugh M. Dorsey's court. Those bitten yesterday were Vernon Pybus, 5, of 715 McDonald street, and Jackson W. Lipscomb, of 1043 Gordon street, and both were treated at Grady hospital for injuries about the face.

Mrs. Asbury J. Cavender, 54, of 675 Kolt street, was the latest victim of a dog bite. She was bitten last night on the knee and treated at Grady hospital.

Walter A. Jennings, a lawyer, got the order restraining the police from killing unlicensed stray dogs Friday because he said the law provides that such dogs shall be impounded for a period of five days before being executed.

MOON WILL HIDE

Total Shadowing of Lunar Orb on July 15.

Stay-up-lates will glimpse a total eclipse of the moon Sunday night, July 15, if moonshine hasn't eclipsed them by 11:09 p. m., daylight saving time.

Judge John D. Humphries, senior judge of the Fulton superior court, a widely known amateur astrologist, said the eclipse will begin at 10:12 and the face of the moon will be covered at 11:09. The total shadow will pass at 12:50 a. m., July 15, and it will all be over at 1:47 a. m.

CROSS-EYED CARS CREATE ACCIDENTS

"Cross-eyed cars," automobiles with their headlights out of line, create a constant menace to safety on American streets and highways and cause a great many accidents which might be prevented.

Edmond Webb, automotive electrical engineer, called attention to this menace to safety this week in explaining how motorists can make certain that they are obtaining maximum lighting, without causing trouble for others on the road.

"Proper aiming of headlamps is an important, yet often overlooked safety measure," he said. "Thousands of motorists are driving cars with the headlamp beams crossing each other or aimed too high or too low. They are unaware of this condition.

"Automobile headlights should be aimed perfectly straight ahead. The beams should be horizontal with the 'hot-spot' or brightest portion of the lamp. They should not be permitted to rise or fall after leaving the lamp."

As an electrical expert, Webb supervises tests and development work on headlights for Plymouth motor cars. He is in charge of the photometric or light laboratory at the Chrysler Motors Engineering Laboratories.

"Adjusting the lights of a modern automobile requires only a few minutes and may save hours of time and thousands of dollars in hospital and repair bills," he said. "Competent automobile dealers and service stations are equipped to aim the lights properly, but the average motorists can do it himself with the aid of a wrench and a piece of white paper tacked on his garage wall.

"Headlamp styles have changed along with everything else in automotive design. Naturally, the trend is toward further streamlining. The lights on modern American cars have been reduced in size to cut down wind resistance and at the same time have been increased in power to the maximum permitted under the law."

Jaycees Volunteer Co-operation With Baptist Hospital Campaign

Active participation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in the campaign to enlarge the field of service of the Georgia Baptist hospital was announced yesterday by Wiley L. Moore, general chairman.

Everett P. Jackson, president of the junior chamber, notified Mr. Moore the organization had made the hospital campaign fund one of its major projects for the next few weeks.

The junior chamber will put a large committee of workers in the field during the period of active solicitation for gifts in this area, which begins soon, and also created a special advance gift committee to work directly with Mr. Moore and a group of leaders in the campaign.

Jake Crouch Chairman.

In announcing the decision of the junior chamber to take part in the hospital campaign, Mr. Jackson said Jake Crouch was chairman and Forest Fowler vice chairman.

Mr. Jackson said:

"The Georgia Baptist hospital is an institution of great importance to Atlanta and the state. Success of the campaign that is being undertaken to widen its field of service will mean a great deal to the people of this state.

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce feels it can aid in no more important undertaking than this.

"We are actuated also by a desire to give full co-operation to a project headed by Wiley L. Moore. Mr. Moore is a man who has done much for his city and state, being always willing to give his time and resources lavishly.

"Under his guiding hand we feel we can further the work of a great institution and we are happy to have a part in this campaign."

Expressing gratitude to the junior chamber for their help, Mr. Moore said:

"The junior chamber has always been ready to co-operate in worthwhile civic projects and their help will be a major factor in the success of the present campaign.

"The Georgia Baptist hospital is an institution with a particular appeal. Its charity work benefits a class that can obtain hospitalization in no other way. Persons from all parts of the state are cared for here.

"The immediate objects of the campaign are to increase the facilities and pay off the bonded debt. In this way we will be able to care for more charity cases and lower the cost of service to pay patients."

Members of Committee.

Members of the committee of the junior chamber include, in addition to Mr. Crouch and Mr. Fowler:

Everett G. Jackson, Allen I. Barr, Dade Kelley, Allen Littlefield, Leon Carter, Ivan Allen Jr., George B. Yancey, Thomas L. Hodges, Frank Richards, James C. Wilson, Herbert Squires, Johnnie Phillips, Vernon Brown, William D. Manes, Roy Harwell, John L. Parks, Bob Schilling, C. L. Wood, Dr. Rayford W. Tharpe, Herbert B. Hayes, Sam Rumph, Troy D. Woodbury, Austin Abbott, William M. Gordon, M. Tom Bryan, B. C. Schoen, Thomas A. Moye, William A. Horne Jr., David Gwinn, John D. Simpson, E. McIver Evans, Ted McAteer, Jack Ferguson, Tom Holland, W. E. Beaudry, Charles A. Johnson, Clifford Hendrix and Duncan G. Peek.

Members of the advance gift committee are Everett G. Jackson, Allen I. Barr, Clifford Hendrix, Dr. Rayford W. Tharpe, Duncan G. Peek and George B. Yancey.

BURGLAR ELUDES DOGS IN ALL-NIGHT CHASE

A burglar who entered the home of E. C. Russell, at 847 Cascade avenue, S. W., yesterday morning was believed to have escaped after an all-night chase by city and county police.

Russell, awakened after the burglar had rifled his home and taken clothes and money, and was starting his automobile, called police. Radio cars manned by City Policemen Henshaw and Austin and County Policeman Fitzgerald and Davis chased the fleeing burglar until he turned into Gaston street and abandoned the car in this blind street.

The burglar escaped on foot. The officers obtained bloodhounds from the river convict camp and tracked the man for several miles, finally losing the trail.

Later, police cruising in the Hunter street section, picked up Cary Hunter, negro, on charges of suspicion. Hunter, police later said, claimed he had been on his way to work when nabbed by the officers.

CALLAWAY TO CONDUCT EAST POINT REVIVAL

Dr. T. F. Callaway, president of the Georgia Baptist Convention and pastor of the First Baptist church, of Thomasville, will conduct a revival for two weeks at the First Baptist church of East Point, it was announced yesterday by Dr. W. A. Duncan, pastor.

The Baptist leader will preach for the first time tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and will continue his sermons at that hour and at 11 o'clock every day for two weeks. Rev. Duncan opens the revival today, preaching at both the morning and evening service.

Revival music will be under the direction of Colonel W. E. Harclerode, music director of the church. Mrs. M. O. Hemperley will play the piano.

W. B. KELLEY OF DEKALB DIES AT FAMILY HOME

W. B. Kelly, prominent DeKalb farmer living on Decatur Route No. 2, died yesterday at the family home at the age of 65. His father was the founder of the community in which he lived and organized Kelly's chapel.

Mr. Kelly is survived by his wife, a son, W. B. Kelly Jr.; two daughters, Mrs. T. T. Clarke and Mrs. R. E. Houseworth; two brothers, Dr. O. G. Kelly and J. Frank Kelly, and five sisters, Mrs. T. O. Poole, Mrs. C. H. Hewey, Mrs. C. T. Cobb, Mrs. C. E. Brantley and Miss Estelle Kelly.

Funeral services will be conducted by A. S. Turner at 3 o'clock today at Kelly's chapel and burial will take place in the churchyard.

10,000 BUSHELS OF OATS HARVESTED AT BERRY

MOUNT BERRY, July 6.—The old-fashioned college student who sowed his wild oats has nothing on the Berry College student here, where boys have just harvested some 10,000 bushels of oats valued at more than $6,000, according to market prices. Most of the oats will be fed to the dairy cattle, mules, poultry, horses and other stock at Berry schools, which has more than 3,000 acres of its 35,000-acre campus in cultivation.

GAME, FISH DIVISION SHOWS $54,102 GAIN

Sale of Fishing Licenses Responsible for $30,582 of Increase in 1934.

The State Game and Fish Department received $100,207.64 from the sale of fishing licenses in 1934, showing an increase of $30,582.08 over the year previous. The 1933 license sales amounted to $69,625.56.

These figures were shown in a department audit filed with Governor Talmadge yesterday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom.

The department's total receipts last year exceeded 1933 receipts by $54,102.36, the total for 1934 being $219,327.89 as against $165,225.53 for the year previous.

Total receipts included $14,419.07 from the sale of business licenses for boats and selling fish, and $97,977.79 from non-revenue soures, $75,705.74 of the latter coming from the state treasury. Money from non-revenue sources exceeded that for 1933 by $22,927.87.

Actual expense of the department last year totaled $90,690.20, the chief item being $47,939.39 for regular salaries. Other salaries and commissions amounted to $2,485.07. Travel cost was $13,940.

Maintenance of the main office in the capitol cost $68,140 last year and maintenance of the Tidewater division at Brunswick was $10,500.

The audit shows the sale of 19,387 resident state fishing licenses for the current seasons at $3.25 each and 48,086 resident county licenses at $1 each.

Commenting on conditions of the department, Auditor Wisdom said at the Tidewater office "it was found that numerous boat owners had been sold fishing licenses for their crews with no license issued."

As to the main office in Atlanta, he said:

"Petty cash fund had not been deposited at the end of the period. Vouchers were not filed according to instructions, making it difficult to locate vouchers to support payments. Payments were made for travel expense without mileage slips as required by law. These were passed without detail as men were on limited expense accounts and had other vouchers sufficient and mention is made here as this is contrary to law."

Wisdom criticized methods of keeping accounts of fishing license sales, but commended the department for the increase in sales.

TWO HORSE BUYERS ROBBED IN MISSOURI

KANSAS CITY, July 6.—(AP)—Two Florida horse buyers, Edwin Hague of Alachua, and Rufus Goff of Live Oak, Fla., were held up in their downtown hotel room here early today by three bandits.

Goff tossed a bill fold containing $770 under a dresser but the men took his diamond ring valued at $2,600 and $120 cash and also robbed the hotel cash drawer of $159.

Police said the Floridians, who were enroute to Wyoming, went riding with two women last night and displayed considerable money. The robbery occurred after Hague and Goff retired.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 7, 1935.

FOUR DOLLARS FOR ONE

The inclusion in the $7,350,000 list of WPA projects for Atlanta of the sum of $5,978,000 for the expansion and modernization of the city's sewage disposal and storm sewer systems removes all doubt of the general approval of the million-dollar bond issue authorized by council to secure the city's part of the cost of this vitally needed improvement.

The total cost of the new sewers will be $5,978,000, of which the city will furnish $1,000,000, the county $379,000 and the federal government $4,600,000. Thus, for every dollar paid by the city and county they will obtain nearly four dollars as a direct grant, none of which will ever have to be returned. It will be a straight gift.

The city has never had such an opportunity to obtain for approximately one-fifth of the total cost an urgently necessary improvement that if not constructed now must be built eventually with the taxpayers paying every dollar of the nearly $6,000,000 cost.

Out of the last city bond authorization, $500,000 was allotted for the preparation of a geodetic and topographical sanitary sewage survey of the entire metropolitan area. This survey, prepared by a noted firm of engineers, was completed several years ago, and makes it possible for work to start immediately on the program of expansion as soon as the city and county governments make available the $1,379,000 necessary to secure the federal funds nearly four times as large.

Every mayor for the past 20 years, the Fulton County Medical Society and various civic organizations have time and again warned of the dangerous conditions resulting from the inadequacy of the city's sewer system.

Every section of the city is affected. Most of the present sewer system of the city was constructed for a city of 50,000. It is now serving a community of about 400,000.

Tons of untreated sewage is being dumped daily in every stream flowing from the city. Several injunction suits have been filed, which are being held in abeyance by the courts in the expectation that the city will take steps to correct a condition that has become intolerable.

If the present opportunity is not taken advantage of these suits will be called for final hearing, the courts will have no other alternative than to grant permanent injunctions, and that means a tax increase to do the work that must be done.

The only doubt as to the approval of the bond issue is that involved in the failure to get out a full vote. The law requires that a bond issue must be approved by a majority of two-thirds of those voting, and that this two-thirds must be a majority of the registered vote.

Often vitally needed and overwhelmingly approved bonds issues have failed by lack of a full vote.

If Atlanta fails to avail herself of the unprecedented opportunity now faced the people will have lost the civic spirit that has characterized the city for all these years.

All of the projects included in the first list announced for Atlanta by the WPA are work that must be done sooner or later if public service is to be properly maintained, the health of the community protected and existing structures kept from deteriorating.

Most of the projects call for the appropriation by the city of part of the construction costs but in several of them the ratio is as high as ten to one, with the government on the long end, as in the case of Candler Field allocation of $344,654, of which the city will be called to pay only $17,064. For this insignificant sum Atlanta will be able to secure improvements that will make her airport one of the finest and most extensive in the country.

But the work of organization should be begun at once.

The mayor and council have no more important work to do than this.

THE TAXATION PITFALLS

Congress must go about the readjustment of the federal tax program with wisdom and foresight if the security and prosperity of the country for years to come is to be preserved.

If the tax program becomes a punitive measure, its framers actuated with a destructive desire to "soak the rich," instead of the desire to make the tax burden as light as possible on every citizen and every class of business, not only will the country fail to progress but much of the advances achieved during the past two years will be lost.

The utmost care must be exercised in the framing of the new tax program not to permit to creep in the ideas of government that have deprived the people of Russia, Italy and Germany of their economic liberty and, to a large extent, confiscated their property.

It must be borne in mind that the great individual fortunes of the country will not be reached through heavy taxation of the profits of the large corporations. Instead, such taxes would fall on the great army of small investors, men and women of moderate means, who hold most of the stock of such corporations.

The small corporation, with but few stockholders, is largely owned by single individuals.

If, as is suggested in some of the radical tax proposals that have been advanced, heavy taxes are put on large corporations merely because their capital is large and their profits correspondingly large, while smaller corporations are let off with lower taxation, the public and not the few rich will be "soaked."

If punitive taxes ranging from 15 to 20 per cent on incomes are placed on large corporations, having untold thousands of small stockholders throughout the country, most of these corporations will be forced to reduce their dividends. Thus the tax lash will fall on the backs of small investors, but the wealthy owners of the small corporations will escape with a minimum tax.

The United States has grown rich and powerful, and the standard of living in America become the highest in the world, under the sane and sound principles of taxation that have been followed by the federal government.

Only disaster can follow if these policies are abandoned at the urgency of radical theorists who know little of the practical necessities of American business.

There are inequalities in our tax system that must be eliminated and adjustments must be made to meet modern conditions and the need for larger governmental revenues, but we will be stepping out of the frying pan into the fire if we abandon now the basic principles of taxation under which the country has prospered and turn to radical ideas that not only will fail of their purpose but will be destructive of the sources from which the great bulk of the taxes must come.

The only sound system of taxation is one under which every business and every person bears a fair and just share of the burden, and congress must act wisely in the creation of a new tax program to avoid the pitfalls of radicalism and confiscation.

COTTON IN LATIN AMERICA

The serious nature of the threat to American domination of world cotton markets as a result of the increased production of the fleecy staple in South America is emphasized in the movement now under way to transplant large numbers of Oklahoma farmers to the Argentine Chaco territory.

Already Brazilian production has jumped from less than a hundred thousand bales a few years ago to a half million bales in 1934 with the prospect of a still greater increase during the 1935 season, and Paraguay is also rapidly increasing its acreage in cotton.

In announcing that he will come to the United States in the near future, Governor Castells, of the Argentine Chaco, points out that there are seven million acres of good cotton land awaiting colonization in that region, and that Argentine production costs are the lowest in the world, even lower than Brazil.

Argentina's production only a few years ago was negligible but this year the crop will be in the neighborhood of 250,000 bales, while Paraguay is laying plans to materially increase its recent average of 40,000 bales a year.

Brazil claims to have 2,000,000,000 acres suitable for cotton production which need only be cleared of their present jungle growth to produce upwards of a bale to the acre without the use of fertilizer.

Governor Castells announces that grants of land amounting to 120 acres will be made to each American cotton growing family who will come to the Argentine and that if the first group to be transferred is successful and contented a program of steady immigration will be launched with the ultimate object of placing every acre of cotton land in the Chaco region under cultivation.

That the scheme is not an idle pipe dream is attested by the statement of former Governor William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, who has spent much time in South America, that "the Argentine Chaco region will grow cotton and if they take people who decide they are going down there and make good regardless of the type of country they live in, the colony will succeed."

Paul Sanders, able commentator on Latin-American affairs, points out in a recent article that the campaigns in Brazil, Argentina and Paraguay to increase cotton production "derive primarily from the cotton restriction program in the United States and lower South American production costs."

With American cotton pegged at 12 cents a pound and the staple growing in other countries bringing from 8 to 9 cents on the Liverpool and other great foreign markets, a premium is placed on foreign grown cotton that is certain to end American domination unless the disparity in prices is brought to an end.

At no time in the history of the American cotton industry has it faced a more serious problem. What the solution will be is still to be determined, but it must be found before long if the ranking position of cotton in American economics is to be preserved.

ANOTHER LAWRENCE

In the same week that Colonel T. E. Lawrence, world-famous "uncrowned king of Arabia," died from injuries received in a motorcycle accident, the British foreign office summoned another "Lawrence" to London for a confidential report on conditions in inner Arabia.

Whenever there is anything stirring in Arabia, in the oil districts of Asia Minor, in the Kurdish uplands of Irak or in Persia, Andrew St. John Philby is called home to explain and to advise.

This man, who is no less enigmatic and mysterious than his illustrious predecessor, likes nothing better than to vanish in the desert. When he emerges he makes for the nearest telegraph office and sends off a message in code to the colonial office. Where he has been is soon revealed because it is there that things begin to happen.

Philby appeared suddenly in London 13 years ago for the purpose of drawing Lord Curzon's attention to a young tribal chief named Ibn Saud, of whom nobody in London had ever heard. Within a few months of that visit, Ibn Saud was raging through the wilderness and eventually chased both King Hussein and his son, Ali, who were Britain's allies, from the throne of Mecca.

The world then first realized that there was another "Lawrence of Arabia" in the making—a man with the faculty of looking far into the future and foretelling the course of the stars in the Arabic firmament.

Following his report at that time, certain pacts were concluded, certain deals arranged, some thrones set up, others split into kindling wood. All the official documents bearing on these events bore as signature the two letters "Ph." Yet Philby represented nobody—officially.

Ibn Saud, who does not like Britain, liked Philby well enough to offer him the post of grand vizir of the Wahabi kingdom,—tantamount to a combination of prime minister, chancellor of the exchequer and foreign secretary. He refused.

In his latest visit to London, Abdul Philby Bay, the name by which the Arab sheiks call him, had a three-hour conference with the foreign office, the subject of that conference being Mussolini's activities in Arabia.

The Italian dictator has made Ibn Saud his ally, and Saud has undertaken to furnish troops for the conquest of Abyssinia if war should come. Furthermore, Saud is supplying a sort of labor corps of native Arabs to construct roads and do other heavy work in East Africa, where it is too hot for the Italian soldiers to work.

What Saud expects to get in return, how many Arabs have crossed the Red Sea, what military equipment they took with them, whether Italian officers are drilling the Saudian warriors, what the Imam of Yemen thinks of it all—such were the topics discussed at the foreign office.

Now the foreign office knows, for it is said of Philby, as it was said of Lawrence, that he knows everything—and Philby is back in Djedda, watching.

AMERICAN WILD CONQUERED

Exploration of one of the few remaining "blind spots" on the map of North America has been completed by the Yukon expedition of the National Geographic Society, according to a statement issued from the society's offices in Washington.

The area, comprising some 2,000 square miles, is a region of lofty mountain ranges and deep glacier-filled valleys and gorges in southwestern Yukon territory.

After four months of effort the expedition, which was headed by Bradford Washburn, discovered several unknown mountain ranges, explored for the first time the whole course of the Alsek river, and photographed from an airplane 10,000 square miles of what is termed the most rugged region in America.

While the expedition completed its work without disaster, it encountered climatic handicaps that made it almost continuously hazardous to move afoot and impossible to fly. Blinding blizzards and terrific gales were combined with 15-degree temperatures. The expedition was forced to camp on ice for more than 80 days, which, it is claimed, is longer than any North American expedition has ever endured the hardships of such a camping ground. In May a blizzard that lasted for 57 hours piled snow six feet high, practically burying the camp of the explorers.

During the trek across the area the St. Elias range was crossed afoot by man for the first time known to history, and names given to several newly discovered peaks. A 40-mile-long glacier, one of the longest in America, was named after former President Lowell, of Harvard.

Next to General Hugh Johnson's rest periods, perhaps the shortest thing in the way of vacations is a naval building holiday.

The last month has seen some interesting changes in geography. When recently surveyed, the ambling Alp, Carnera, turned out to be a plateau.

You could say this for the much-maligned parole boards and their judgment of criminals: They are turning out some wonderful career men.

Judges of track form expect Japan to do well in the '36 Olympics. Going over the Great Wall of China is marvelous practice for a low hurdler.

A western opera house has been converted into a garage. Old subscribers must be told, as it is dangerous to doze off in a garage.

Instead of the farm tools promised, Alaskan pioneers received ten tons of paper towels. Possibly a typographical blunder, for trowels.

Ethiopia declines Il Duce's thoughtful offer to instill culture in the country. If it means Verdi on the piano accordion, we can understand.

Huey thinks if he had been at Gettysburg he could have told Lee how to win. The big thing is not to get ambushed in a washroom.

A part of our gold bullion hoard is being buried in a federal cache in Kentucky. However, this is for safety's sake—not to remove the fusel oil.

Fall styles, says an arbiter, will swing definitely back to the gay nineties. It is the latest of many efforts to liven up the sour thirties.

Production Costs Will Lessen the Use Of Berries by New Georgia Wine Industry

By MILLER THOMPSON,
Widely Known Authority on Southern Viticulture.

Since the ratification of the Georgia products wine act several groups of individuals have become interested in the establishment of local wineries, and, sensing the scarcity of home-grown grapes, have looked upon blackberries and dewberries as a possible starting point for the new industry. Their reasoning, as far as it goes, is entirely sound.

There are, however, certain factors which limit the use of berries for wine. And while they offer an opportunity for the development of a profitable sideline, berries cannot be expected to wholly support a wine plant. Their utilization would permit the winery to operate over a longer season each year than would be possible if only grapes were fermented, but the high cost of handling a berry plantation presents a problem that is not easily overcome.

Intensive care and cultivation are required. Yields are in direct proportion to the amount of attention given the plants, and the time necessary to trellis and prune the canes is much greater than that required for grapes. Blackberry pruning is a specialized task, requiring intelligent labor.

Some varieties of blackberries, and all dewberries, have long trailing canes that must be trained on wires in order to keep the fruit clean and facilitate harvesting. The prickly spines, inherent in brambles, make this a delicate and expensive task.

While thornless berry varieties have been developed, they are not of sufficient value to justify their use in place of the thorny types. They are not only unproductive, but winter-kill severely even in mild climates and the flowers of most of them are partially infertile. Any grower contemplating a planting of thornless berries should study, in full production, the strain he desires to plant, and pass for himself on its merits before investing his money.

Labor Costs High.

Berry picking requires an enormous amount of labor. More careful selection of the fruit is desirable when it is to be made into wine because it should be allowed to attain a greater degree of ripeness than is necessary when the berries are destined for market consumption.

The fruit is extremely perishable and decays very quickly when improperly handled. If the tender skin of a few berries is broken so that the juice runs out, molds and rot infect them and spread so rapidly that in a single day a whole batch may be rendered unfit for wine or anything else.

Minute insects, some so small as to be almost invisable, inhabit the tiny spaces among the drupelets and no practical method of washing can insure their removal. Eggs of various flys and moths are often deposited upon the fruit, which, if made into wine, might cause it to become contaminated with maggots or other larva. Expensive sterilization methods are therefore essential.

Wine yeast is deficient in all berry musts (crushed fruit) and may be entirely lacking in many. This necessitates the use of pure yeast cultures in the manufacture of berry wines.

The Young Dewberry.

Of all the numerous varieties of berries in existence, the Young dewberry, or Youngberry, has the highest quality and probably offers the greatest opportunity to the winemaker. It is a vigorous, hardy sort that has been found to be more suited to Georgia's climate than any other kind. The fruit is very large, averaging up to 1 1-4 inches in length and 3-4 of an inch in diameter.

The plants are very productive. When placed in suitable soil, and properly attended, they produce around a gallon to the vine with close spacing. In commercial plantings where they are spaced up to 10 feet apart, a much larger yield is possible.

The ripening season of the Young dewberry is very early, beginning about the middle of May in the southern part of the state, and extending through the middle of June in sections north of Atlanta. The color of the juice is dark wine red. It is highly flavored, sub-acid and aromatic.

Wild Berries Not Practical.

Wild blackberries and dewberries grow under nearly all climatic conditions in Georgia, but are not practical as a source of wine material because they are so scattered and so meagerly productive that pickers cannot afford to dispose of them at the low price that wineries must maintain in order to make a profit. Furthermore, the organisms that cause decay are more plentiful in the damp places along creek banks and in neglected pastures where berries thrive, and fruit gathered from such places is sure to depreciate considerably before reaching the sterilization plant.

It is also doubtful if enough wild berries could be obtained in any one district to warrant the consideration of the winemaker.

(Another article by Mr. Thompson bearing on the new Georgia wine industry will appear in next Sunday's Constitution.)

July 7, 1814—Waverly, first of Sir Walter Scott's enduring novels, appeared under a pseudonymn. He concealed his authorship of this and succeeding works for 13 years!

July 7, 1853—Commodore Matthew C. Perry, 57, took his squadron into the harbor of Yeddo, Japan, upon a mission that was destined to open Japan to the world and begin its rise to one of the three foremost powers.

But you're wrong if you believe that Americans were the first foreigners to be admitted to Japan. Dutch and Portguese traders had been established in certain ports for many years.

July 7, 1865—A woman whose guilt is a matter of doubt, went to the gallows for participation in President Lincoln's assassination. Put gallantry was not absent. As Mrs. Mary E. Surratt sat upon the scaffold, waiting her turn, one of the executioners thoughtfully held an umbrella over her condemned head, "to shield her from the sun!"

July 7, 1880—The nation became "reducing conscious" for the first time, as Dr. Henry S. Tanner, physician, of Minneapolis, swung into a 40-day fast which became the sensation of the day. The inducement was a $1,000 prize offered by a promoter inspired by the claims of one Mollie Fancher, of Brooklyn, that she had lived without food for 14 years. Tanner drank only water, lost most of his hair and 10 1-2 pounds. The publicity given his feat made reducing a fad, and dieting and the weather have been neck-and-neck conversation topics ever since.

THE WORLD WAR 20 YEARS AGO TODAY.

July 6-7, 1915—A Zeppelin proved itself more than a match for airplanes, and showed again that while Britannia unquestionably ruled the waves of the North sea, the Zeppelins likewise unquestionably ruled the atmosphere.

On the morning of the 6th, several British mothership—for this was before the day of the airplane carriers—were engaged in hoisting seaplanes overboard near Terschelling, off the Dutch coast when a Zeppelin espied the operation. It came down like an avalanche, dropped bombs on the mother ships and opened fire. The ships steamed hastily away. One seaplane overboard sought salvation in flight. Its plucky pilot, appropriately named Bird, rose and streaked for Holland. A wireless from the Zeppelin informed the German base of his escape. Airplanes pursued him and forced him to land in Holland, where he was interned.

WRITING WRONGS.

You're wrong if you believe—
That there are many animals which have a natural span of life longer than man's.
The giant tortoise is perhaps the only creature with an extreme life span greater than the human animal. The elephant, popularly supposed to enjoy great longevity, has an age cycle that corresponds to that of man.
That poison gas and liquid fire were first used in the World War.
They weren't. Liquid fire was used as early as 668 A. D., and poison gas in the 16th century.

Received a fascinating sort of communication from William J. Seas, who reveals that I have a strange namesake. In fact, Mr. Seas says my inclinations, as revealed in this column, convince him I am the Ralph T. Jones he knew about 25 years ago in Scranton, Pa., living at the Y. M. C. A.

The truth must be told. I was never in Scranton, never lived at a Y. M. C. A. and, to deny a third gentle impeachment in Mr. Seas' letter, I never wrote plays in spare time and never pestered newspapermen to read 'em. As a matter of fact, I don't have spare time, couldn't write a play if I tried and am on the other end of the "pestered newspaperman" habit.

Mr. Seas, who gives his address as "In the Shadow of Lookout Mountain at the far end of R. F. D. No. 3, Summerville, Ga.," writes in response to a request, published here last Sunday, for information on unusual Sunday occupations.

Where's That Other Jones Today?

"Anent your invitation: 'What Do You Do Sunday Afternoons?'

"All summer it has been customary for me to think, every Sunday afternoon, of the sermon I heard during the forenoon, but yesterday I deviated somewhat from the usual routine. You made me do it.

"Are you the Ralph T. Jones who lived at the Scranton, Pa., Y. M. C. A. about 25 years ago and wrote plays in your spare time; then pestered newspapermen to read them? If so, you will remember me as one of your victims. And again, if you are that man, confess it and I shall do something I have not done since—look in on you one of these days.

"For the third time, if you are the man your name and apparent inclination leads me to believe you may be, do not labor under any misapprehension about me in connection with the sermons I mention. Like a quarter of a century ago when the crowd called me queer, I believe in the teachings of the Jewish carpenter; observe the Catholic Sabbath; contribute to the support of a Protestant church, but prefer to attend the services where Jack-in-the-pulpit holds forth.

Breeze Plays Interlude, Birds Sing Solos.

"The mossy pews are the same as I pictured them to you then; members of the other kingdom, the trees, those living, breathing attendants that too few of the human kingdom take the time or have the patience to understand, continue to be the backbone of the congregation; they still support the organ at their very tops; as formerly, I bow my head in reverence when the breeze plays the interlude on the twigs and the leaves; the bees are present to do their chore as choir boys and hum the anthems; the birds have not forgotten to come and sing the solos and that chattering sexton, the squirrel, feels his increasing responsibilities as more and more of the human kingdom come there to worship.

"Be a good Welshman and turn Scotch in your answer to this letter. Do not use a stamp to reply; using what I have told you for the hundredth time, in your column, would not make me any younger, older, or feel better. Merely use a line or so of your space and tell me you are, or are not, the Ralph T. Jones who used to argue with me on the slightest pretext. I hope you are, so I may point out to you more of the mistakes of your youth."

So sorry, Mr. Seas, I'm not.

No Accounting During Vacations.

Workers on the rolls of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration get vacations, even as you and I. Last week, however, the Fulton county welfare board learned this fact to its sorrow. The board had a group of relief workers in its accounting department.

The FERA decided these workers needed a vacation and so ordered. So the entire department is away on holiday at the same time and the county welfare board is wondering how it will look after the necessary accounting until the two weeks are at an end.

Southern Civilization.

Whether the southern people could have evolved their very beautiful and attractive social life before the Civil War, without the slave, is a debatable question, but that the slave was interwoven with its very existence is certain. Ownership of land and slaves, passing from generation to generation, gave a certain stability to society, making possible the growth of social standards and customs, traditions and sentiments, which were also handed down from father to son. This gave that consciousness of noblesse oblige, so essential to a true aristocracy. We must note, too, that the very abundance of labor relieved the ruling class from much of the drudgery of work and left them free to develop the amenities and cultural pursuits of life. This will, perhaps, account for the fact, that for the first three-quarters of a century of our history, the south made by far the greatest contribution to the leadership of the nation.

There was a grace and courtesy, a chivalry and charm, in that ante-bellum civilization, which still commands our admiration. Standing today beneath the pillared portico of one of those old colonial homes, shadowed by its ancient oaks and lovingly encircled by the bending blue of the sky, one can but dream of the matchless charm of that social life, which has passed away like fairyland, banished by the wand of a modern magician. And yet one's eyes must be veiled by a too sensitive sentiment, or clouded by a prejudiced passion for the past, not to be able to see that the very nature of this social system condemned its votaries to a life of isolation from the rest of the country. The very uniqueness of their life, with its continuity of families, customs, and traditions, inevitably bred a self-conscious pride, which made group and sectional distinctions. But still more potent was the rising tide of world opinion in condemnation of slavery. This put the southern people on the defensive, and did most to create that conscious sense of difference from the rest of the country, and even from the rest of the world.

The Difference.

But there was a real difference. Something distinctive in the mode, or the quality, of life, which the adjective "southern," described then, and describes today. It has been generally recognized, and yet there has been no generally acceptable definition of just what it is. Unsympathetic critics have been fond of sneering at the "slowness" of the south, describing the people as "slothful," accounting for it in terms of slaves and climate. Such commentators emphasize the southern "drawl" in speech, languid manners, and waste of time. Such easy generalizations are obviously superficial, and yet the time element in living is significant, and may be the best approach in a study of the quality of any civilization. How people use their time, must inevitably reveal their sense of values.

It was characteristic of the "old south," and true of the south of today, that life is slow. There is an expressive phrase, "take time" to do whatever you are doing. Would it not be fair to say that it was characteristic of the life of the old south, that the people "took time" to live? They took time for hospitality. Hospitality requires time. They took time for the expression of the courtesies of life, which means "manners." How early "ole mammy" began to admonish "her chillun," "mine yo manners." They took time to tell a story. They did not know the vaudeville tempo. They took time to eat. In the southern dining room the satisfaction of the primitive animal appetite for food, was transformed into an expression of grace and wit, sentiment and fellowship, which made it the rendezvous of much that is most beautiful and worthwhile in life.

A Contribution.

This does not mean that they "took time off" from business. Social life in the south was not a thing of "holidays," "special occasions," and "company manners." Play and work, recreation and business, were all interwoven with a social consciousness of human relations and values. Of course, there were gross and fantastic exaggerations, as there are today, of "southern manners, and chivalry." Nor is it necessary to claim that these social relations were always on the higher levels. But nevertheless, this kind of life does reveal a sense of values, which is not quoted on the stock exchange. Time was not calculated in terms of money, and the worth of a person was not estimated by his material wealth. In searching for that which is essential and best in "southern," one is driven to that overworked word, "spiritual"—a sensitive response to the invisible and imponderable values of life.

But was southern civilization dependent upon slavery, and did this spirit pass away with the emancipation proclamation? That slavery did help to make possible its life, and add to its charm and picturesqueness, is apparent. But that it was not essential, is proven by the fact that it still lives today. In New Orleans, Savannah, Charleston, and Richmond, for examples, life still has the southern tempo. And so far from machinery, facilities for transportation and communication, and gadgets for convenience, threatening the perpetuity of such a life, they offer, by taking the place of the slave under the old regime, to make life even fuller and richer. With the well-nigh limitless multiplication of mechanical productive power, there is offered the promise of the "release of the captive" from the prisons, for the pursuit of spiritual values. Do we not find here the contribution which the south may make to the nation? As the rest of the nation taught the south how to use the machine, is it too much to hope that the south may teach the rest of the nation how to use the hours of freedom made possible by the machine?

Gypsy Clans of Today Are Descended From Abraham, Writes Georgia Woman

Editor Constitution: Having observed the interest you evidenced in a recent article in your paper regarding the origin of the Gypsy, I'd like to offer my own conclusions.

We go back to Abraham, great-grandfather of the Israelites who were chosen by Jehovah for the great task of teaching all peoples.

Abraham was already an old man when he was promised an heir in whose seed all the earth should be blessed. But before Isaac, this son of promise, came Abraham had a son by his concubine, Hagar, named Ishmael, who was 12 years old at this time.

At the age of 14 he was sent away with his mother and directed of God to the wilderness of Paran. He was promised that he should become the father of 12 nations, and did. They were mostly wild, semi-savage and warlike, and dwelt from Havilah unto Shur that is before Egypt. Adjacent to this region were descendants of Cush, son of Ham, particularly Dedan, and that Sheba about which there has been so much argument. This Sheba dwelt between Egypt and Abyssinia.

There was some intermingling of the people of Sheba and Ishmaelites and these became known as Hagarenes; while some of the tribes drifted into Arabia, others were roving and became what we know best as Bedouins. The quieter tribes lived in tents and they became the founders of the Mohammedan religion.

Now Abraham, after Sarah's death, took unto himself another wife, Keturah, who bore six other sons, Zimron, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak and Shuah. "And Jokshan begat Sheba and Dedan." And Abraham shut them away from his son, Isaac, eastward, to the east country. That was the eastern portion of Arabia on the Persian gulf and just south of his old homeland, Ur of the Chaldees. No doubt his purpose was to have them among his kindred.

Of these sons, some descendants migrated to Syria where there were other kinsmen; Midian drifted back to the region south of Palestine in the vicinity of Mount Sinai. Jokshan or his son, Sheba, settled in the south, southeast Arabia, became a very prosperous nation. This is the Sheba whose queen (of the south) visited Solomon.

Of Shuah the only record I have found is the allusion in Job to his friend (distant relative), Bildad (the Shuhite, and is showing again how Providence brings into view certain instruments for the accomplishment of His purposes. Job's homeland was between Ur and Uz, another Shemite nation, and was bordered on the west by the lands of Edom, Mt. Seir and Idumea, with whom the Ishmaelites had also intermingled, and also the land of Ammon and Moab.

The children of Ishbak do not seem to have attached themselves but became wanderers. These are the really true Gypsy and are direct descendants from Abraham. Although there may be among them many of the rougher sort, or Bedouins, due largely to intermingling, these can generally be identified by the fact that they embraced the Mohammedan religion or its skeleton, if any.

So this brings us to the conjecture as to Gipsy Smith's real position from a genealogical standpoint.

The fact that his people never embraced the Pagan religion, together with the other habits of life, leads me to think that he's most likely a descendant of Abraham through Keturah, but not an Israelite.

We are told that toward the time of the end shall be many messengers, and could we conceive a more powerful, more fitting, than this descendant of Abraham, no doubt?

Makes Protest Against Dangerous Bureaucracy In Federal Government

Editor Constitution: There are those to whom the American people have delegated their powers of government, who have forgotten. Playing upon mass fear and the pitiful needs of a vast population that had for many years been exploited and pauperized by a greedy, government-protected plutocracy; there has grown up in Washington and in every county seat in the United States a dangerous bureaucracy. Aroused public opinion is the hand poised, even now, ready to blot out those who have become a menace to the safety of this republic.

Tugwell, Wallace and hundreds of lesser lights have grown insolent in authority. In their imagined security, those bureaucrats presume to punish those who oppose or criticize their mandates by withholding privileges and denying rights that are inherent to individuals and states by virtue of the constitution of the United States.

Fortunately, "whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad." It is sheer madness for those egotists to advocate revolutionary changes in the constitution of this republic. They have forgotten the sturdy character of American citizens. Half-baked socialism, despotism and regimentation are possible to European peasants, but impossible in the land of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. Why, those very officials took a solemn oath to uphold that very constitution that they are now trying to evade. To the American people such treason to their basic law is as arousing as the waving of a red cloak before the eyes of an angry bull.

Can pin-headed bureaucrats disregard the constitution and criticise its guardian tribunal with impunity? Never, both have survived wars, panics and designing officials and since they rest on principles of righteousness in government, they will endure forever.

We need to and will get back on the beaten path blazed for us by our pioneer fathers. We need and will have in office everywhere men old-fashioned enough to respect their oaths, believers in genuine Americanism. We have a great president, a man of far-flung vision and courage, but his great heart will bleed from a thousand stabs inflicted by selfish men ambitiously scheming to gain wealth and power by virtue of his greatness. Franklin D. Roosevelt is being crucified on a cross made by his advisers.

States West of Mississippi River Now Lead in Production of Cotton

Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas Are Planting More Cotton Than All the States in Eastern Belt.

By HARVIE JORDAN.

The month of August is generally the period of "laying by" field crops and farmers usually take a rest from the arduous energetic campaign of labor devoted to cultivation in the preceding spring and summer months.

Under this condition of semi-labor with more hours of rest and recreation it is a good time to give thought to an analysis of the cotton growing industry as affecting the southeastern cotton states for the past 100 years.

In connection therewith will be shown the rapid advance in cotton culture in the three states of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, known as the southwestern cotton states since 1879.

Accurate official data on cotton production compiled by the United States Census Bureau begins with the year 1839. In that year the total production of lint cotton in the United States, confined principally to the states east of the Mississippi river, was 2,064,000 bales of an average weight of 383 pounds per bale.

No cotton was grown in Texas or Oklahoma at that period and only 15,700 bales were produced in Arkansas that year. Georgia produced 427,000 bales, Mississippi 505,000 bales, Alabama 306,000 bales, South Carolina 161,000 bales, North Carolina 136,000 bales, Louisiana 398,000 bales, Tennessee 72,000 bales, Florida 32,000 bales and the balance of 11,300 bales produced in all other states.

From 1850 to 1869 the bales were averaged at 400 pounds each, as the facilities for packing were crude and largely done by handpower.

Between the years 1839 and 1884 the lead in annual production of cotton crops fluctuated between Georgia and Mississippi, with both states planting from two to three million acres a year and averaging around one-third of a bale per acre.

Texas first began planting cotton in 1849 with a yield that year of 58,000 bales, but by 1879 her acreage had increased to 2,200,000 acres and by 1884 to over 3,000,000 acres, thereby establishing her first year of leadership in acreage and production which has since been maintained.

Georgia held her leadership since 1884 as the second largest cotton state to Texas until 1921, when the spread of the boll weevil, with its destructive ravages, very seriously impaired the cotton growing industry in that state for the past 14 years.

The largest cotton acreage ever planted in Georgia and the maximum yield of lint cotton ever produced in the state was in 1911, with a total acreage of 5,505,000 acres which harvested a crop of 2,795,000 bales averaging 500 pounds and with an average acre yield of 254 pounds of lint.

All Records Broken.

The year of 1911 saw all records of crop yields in lint cotton production broken so far as heavy maximum average acre yields are concerned.

In that year North Carolina planted 1,624,00 acres and produced 1,126,000 bales; South Carolina planted 2,800,000 acres and harvested 1,692,000 bales, and Alabama with an acreage of 4,107,000 acres planted produced 1,695,000 bales. Texas with 11,000,000 acres planted harvested 4,107,000 bales. The other states did equally as well.

The records show that North Carolina farmers have annually produced the largest yields of lint cotton per acre planted, while Texas farmers each year harvest the smallest acre yield of lint.

The unauthorized statements so often made by people not posted, that cotton farmers in the old southeastern cotton states cannot successfully compete with Texas and Oklahoma cotton growers are not borne out by the facts when applied to the average acre yields of the staple in the two sections.

Southwest Marching Ahead.

Oklahoma farmers first turned their attention to growing cotton on a limited acreage in 1879, producing 17,000 bales that year, but by 1904 were planting 1,500,000 acres in cotton and producing 800,000 bales.

Within the past 30 years the expansion in cotton acreage and production in the southwestern states of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas has gone forward by leaps and bounds.

In 1926 Texas alone planted 18,374,000 acres in cotton, while all of the eight cotton states east of the Mississippi river planted a combined acreage of only 19,228,000 acres.

The largest cotton acreage ever planted in the United States was in 1926, which amounted to 47,087,000 acres, of which the three southwestern states planted 26,840,000 acres and all of the old cotton states east of the Mississippi river planted 10,228,000 acres.

The total yield of lint cotton that year was 17,555,000 bales, making the maximum yield ever produced in this country in any one year. The far western states are not included in these estimates on the acreage planted.

Since 1920 after the spread of the cotton boll weevil over the eastern cotton states the Texas farmers have annually produced about one-third of the total cotton production each year in the United States.

As the cotton planting area in the southeastern states began to decline after 1920 on account of boll weevil invasion the area of cotton acreage expansion has steadily increased in the southwestern states.

Old States Decreasing.

To show the steady annual decrease in cotton acreage in the southeastern states since 1920 to 1935, the following comparative statistical data are presented:

North Carolina planted in 1920 1,587,000 acres and in 1934 977,000 acres; South Carolina 1920, 2,904,000 acres and in 1934 1,286,000 acres; Georgia 1920, 4,900,000 acres and in 1934 2,141,000 acres; Alabama 1920, 2,858,000 acres and in 1934 2,215,000 acres.

It will be noted that in the last 15 years Georgia farmers have decreased their cotton acreage about 56 per cent from 1920; North Carolina within that period has decreased her acreage approximately 38 per cent, and South Carolina had made a decrease of about 56 per cent, equal to that of Georgia.

The Georgia and South Carolina farmers stand at the head as leaders in cotton acreage reduction since 1920, with North Carolina third, and the other states, including Alabama, making only slight decreases, with Texas planting about the same area in 1934, 11,000,000 acres, which she planted in 1920, although it must be said to the credit of Texas that the cotton acreage in that state last year was 7,340,000 acres less than she planted in 1926, as already shown above.

As final comparative statistics showing the cotton acreage of the three southwestern states with that of the eight cotton states east of the Mississippi river for the year 1934, the following figures from the United States Census Bureau are presented:

Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, three southwestern states, planted in 1934 an area of 15,859,000 acres in cotton. For the same year the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee planted 11,340,000 acres, or 4,519,000 acres less than the combined total of the three southwestern states.

It is quite clear, therefore, that expansion of the cotton growing area has rapidly shifted to the states west of the Mississippi river, while the southeastern cotton states have been steadily falling back to the areas planted in cotton in 1879. The cotton acreage now planted in Georgia, the Carolinas and Alabama is approximately the same acreage planted in 1879, 56 years ago.

Holds Solution of Time Problem Can Be Found in Experience of Other Cities

Editor Constitution: I was living in Cincinnati when eastern time was adopted there in 1926, and the reasons advanced on both sides were almost identical with those we have recently been reading in our daily papers. Most of them are based on wild theories which disappear into thin air when reduced to actual facts.

Atlanta and Cincinnati and Detroit are all in about the same position geographically with respect to the 83d meridian of longitude west from Greenwich. Consequently they should all have within a few seconds the same "sun" time. Atlanta has central time; Cincinnati and Detroit eastern time. If you get up at 7 a. m., eat your evening meal at 7 p. m. and retire at 11 p. m., the chances are you will follow this routine whether you live in Atlanta or Cincinnati or Detroit, and regardless of whether the city officially has eastern, central or "sun" time.

If this hypothesis is acceptable to both sides then the actual conditions of "daylight" or "darkness" can easily be established for any given "time" common to the three cities by communicating with the weather bureaus, or the Chambers of Commerce, or the municipal governments, or the labor unions in Cincinnati and Detroit. In other words, why not ask someone who actually lives in the same conditions that would prevail in Atlanta under eastern time, "Would I be arising in the dark at 7 a. m. in January?" or "Would my children be going to school in the dark at 8 a. m. in December?" or "Would I be coming home from work in daylight at 5:30 p. m. during the winter months?"

It seems to me that the answers to these questions will provide the basis for us to decide whether we want eastern or central time in Atlanta without influence by those with particular "axes to grind."

Sides With Long in His Contest With Walmsley

Editor Constitution: Mayor Walmsley has done nothing for New Orleans, while at the same time Huey Long has constructed a free bridge into New Orleans over Lake Pontchartrain, thereby saving the citizens about $2.50 toll for each automobile filled with passengers crossing the old bridge. He has constructed in New Orleans the finest airport in the world, together with seven miles of sea wall and beach for the free use and enjoyment of the citizens of New Orleans. He has constructed one of the finest medical buildings in the south as an addition to the Municipal hospital and is now constructing an additional $8,000,000 unit to the Municipal hospital. He has almost completed a $14,000,000 bridge across the Mississippi at New Orleans, thereby saving the people the expense and inconvenience of ferrying across the river going to and from New Orleans. Also, Senator Long has furnished free textbooks to all the children of Louisiana, giving the citizens a two-year moratorium of debts and exempted small homes and farms from taxation, together with poll tax. All the employes of every city department under his control are being paid promptly. These are just some of the things Senator Long has done for New Orleans, while Walmsley has done nothing for that great city, nor has any mayor preceding Walmsley for a period of 50 years done anything that could equal either one of the improvements above mentioned constructed by Senator Long.

Says People of Georgia Should Unite in Protest On Wallace Ultimatum

Editor Constitution: I wish most heartily to congratulate you on your position relative to the ultimatum of Secretary Wallace as to the disposition of federal highway funds in the state of Georgia.

It seems to me that such a performance as this on the part of one of the high executives of the federal government should cause every thinking citizen to realize that the time has come when we must call a halt on such high-handed practices unless we are prepared and willing, as you have so aptly put it, "to call back our senators and representatives from Washington and turn over the administration of the affairs of the state to him (Wallace), and those who agree with him that the time has come when we should abolish all state lines and centralize all power in Washington."

You have also truly stated the case when you say that a principle is at stake which affects not only Georgia, but every other state in the Union. It is, therefore, most fervently to be hoped that the people of Georgia will let it be known to this administration in no uncertain terms that they will not submit to such high-handed and dictatorial methods.

I hope you will see fit to use the great medium of your paper as a means of waging a battle for the protection of rights for which our forbears so willingly shed their blood.

Holds Brain-Trusters Would Enter Where Angels Fear To Tread

Editor Constitution: It is encouraging to note in your news of today that the Federal Road Bureau will not for the time being, at least, attempt to set up its own organization in the state. While the interpolated phrase, "For the time being," can only be construed as a partial victory, it brings us, nevertheless, to the realization that our rights and very freedom depend upon a never-ceasing vigilance. Of which an alert newspaper like The Constitution with a conscientious obligation to its state and country as evidenced in recent editorials, is invaluable.

Once people realize the price entailed in the use of federal funds under any such provisio, paved roads would be as anathema to them. Threatened with a back-to-the-horse-and-buggy age, holds no terror compared to in the end plodding with the ox.

The thought brought out in Mr. J. K. Hadston's letter to The Constitution is certainly not unduly alarming. For once states' rights are overriden, God knows what the next step would be And you just bet those omnipotent, all-wise braintrusters in Washington would think nothing of solving the south's racial question in their own way. For have they not evidenced, all through this present administration, a strong trait for rushing in where angels fear to tread

With a deep gratitude to you for your timely editorial, I am,

Protests Law Barring Seining of Minnows

Editor Constitution—A notice from Zack D. Cravey, game commissioner, warns fishermen that under an act of 1931, it is unlawful to catch minnows with a minnow seine for fish bait.

Such a law as this will have a tendency to keep people from co-operating with the fish department. This species of fish are absolutely worthless to anyone except for bait. In fact it is the natural bait for game fish. There would be just as much reason in passing a law prohibiting fishing with earth worms as it is a natural bait for certain species of fish.

The people of Georgia should demand a repeal of such a regulation. There are thousands of anglers in Georgia who do not approve of this drastic act. C. H. LINDLEY,

Knowing Yourself

By JULIAN PENNINGTON.

This is one of a new series of articles in which Mr. Pennington will aid readers of The Constitution in deciding whether they are following the pursuit for which they are best qualified.

On one side of the street two children, a boy and a girl about seven years of age make their way home. She is a visitor—a stranger in the city.

A boy about their age calls out from the other side of the street: "Hey there, Bill. Who is that long-legged girl with you."

"She's my cousin," comes back the answer, whereupon the other boy says as a closing remark: "She certainly is a funny looking cousin."

There is nothing peculiar about this scene. It is one perfectly natural to childhood, since consideration for the feelings of others and diplomacy ripen later in life.

But as one passes out of the childhood stage the habit of saying exactly what comes to mind is a trait that is dropped off.

When we find a matured man or woman ignoring the feelings of others and doing perfectly tactless things we know that some part of his (or her) personality is still undeveloped—still not grown up.

A child is perfectly contented with the stick of candy it has until is sees another child with a stick that is larger and redder than his. He then proceeds to make a fuss over the matter, and, as a last resort, he may throw himself on the floor and go through a self-imposed fit or two in order to make his desires well known, and so that they may appear important.

Again we have a scene which is perfectly natural for a spoiled child of a certain mental level.

But when we find matured men and women throwing fits and being inconsiderate, it is another thing.

A man may become angry because his wife paid a little too much for a pair of shoes and make her life perfectly miserable during the entire season when she could be enjoying them, or a woman may throw a temper fit and pretend she does not want to live unless her husband takes her to Cuba or buys her the latest car, one which the neighbor can't afford to have.

In either of these cases we have good examples of childish traits cropping out in people who are old enough to know better.

If all of us could rid ourselves of "juvenile-itis" the world would be a better place in which to live. So here is a question to go over in your mind at least once a day for a while: Do you act as though you are matured, or do you still have some traits which should have been discarded when you put away childish things?

Holds Constitution Has Been Violated in Past

Editor Constitution: Strange things have happened in the past to and about the federal constitution. We seem to forget. Take the following clauses:

"No citizen can be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law:

"No private property shall be seized for public use without just compensation."

Abolition of slavery violated the first clause, and seizure of Arlington violated the second. The supreme court in the Dred Scott decision held slaves to be property.

All amendments to the constitution are supposed to be by overwhelming approval by the different states, yet there are amendments to the constitution on which about half the states were denied a vote.

Is, therefore, the constitution so inviolable if human needs dictate an opposite course?

The inconsistency—yet the ridiculous side of the whole thing is the party now howling so loud and holding grass root conventions is the same bunch who so flagrantly violated the above principles of the constitution.

In the Palace of Kemal

President Ataturk Talks on World Affairs.

BY GLADYS BAKER.

ISTANBUL.—Mustafa Kemal, newly-named Kamal Ataturk, was giving a dinner party at Dolma Bagtche, the white marble palace of the sultans, which curves its magnificent length along the green shores of the Bosphorus.

That morning his secretary had telephoned.

"The President of Turkey," said he in his clipped precise accents, "requests that you dine with him at the palace tonight. A car will be sent for you."

Promptly at the hour appointed, the huge limousine of the official fleet of 14 motors (and the President prefers American-made cars) arrived at the door of my hotel.

I was whirled through the crooked cobbled streets of Istanbul into the broad chestnut-bordered avenue which leads to the palace walls. After the manner of a medieval castle, all of Dolma Bagtche is inclosed by a frowning barricade of brick and concrete which conceals from the street all but its topmost turrets. Flanked by enormous gate posts, arched with stone filigree, the imposing entrance is a semi-circle of white marble.

Two guards in militaty uniform presented arms. The car swirled through the gate down the graveled drive, rounded the clipped green formal garden, and drew up smartly before the wide steps of the palace. Attendants sprang to open the door.

I was ushered into the vast reception hall, with its massive gilt furniture, priceless rugs and tapestries, glittering candelabra all as they had been in the days when Sultan Abdul Mejil held court under the Ottoman empire. Now Dolma Bagtche, with its white marble, old-world splendor, is only one of the various palaces reserved for the use of Kamal Ataturk—great soldier, great statesman, great reformer who directs the destiny of Turkey today.

Long vistas of rooms led away as far as the eye could reach. However, there was time for only a hurried glance before my escort bowed me through the arched doorway of the marble salon, the intimate apartment where the Sultan had been accustomed to receive special guests. Many kings and queens, whose portraits hang on the walls of the palace galleries, had crossed the threshold of this distinguished chamber.

I found myself in a rather small, high-ceilinged room, elaborately decorated with gold frescoes and deep red brocades, its gilt chairs satin upholstered, marble mantel exquisitely carved. Through classic draped windows the blue light of dusk glowed softly; inside, crystal chandeliers and colorful lamps cast their brilliance upon the circle of trimly uniformed officials and frock-coated diplomats.

My host rose to meet me. I saw a man of virogous carriage, strongly built, a little above average height. His tawny-gray hair, thinning a bit at the sides, was brushed smoothly back from an amazingly broad forehead. His cheekbones were rather high, and the face narrowed to a resolute, determined chin. There was not an ounce of superfluous flesh upon his wide-shouldered, robust frame.

But it was the Gazi's eyes which were his most compelling feature. In them lay the secret of his almost hypnotic power of leadership. Pale, and yet somehow vividly blue, set wide apart, they were focused with such concentration that I felt an X-ray quality in their gaze. His skin was clear and tanned, not swarthy.

He took my hand in a firm clasp. "Turkey is happy to welcome the representative of a great sister nation," he said courteously.

His speech was, as always, formal, carefully couched, but fused with a direct sincerity. He inquired concerning my impressions of Turkey, and seemed pleased with the enthusiasm of my responses, listhening attentively, and interrupting now and again as is his wont with a nod and a murmured word of affirmation. During the whole of the conversation no other person in the room spoke.

Dinner was announced. In the spacious dining salon, with its mother-of-pearl inlaid sideboards, its crimson and cream satin upholstered chairs, its towering candelabra, we took our places about the long table. It was covered with a fine damask cloth, and laid with the gold service of the sultans. Exquisitely wrought, and engraved with a delicately traced design, the plates were accompanied by an array of knives and forks of the same precious metal, ponderously heavy. Six cut crystal wine goblets were placed before each guest, and one of dark ruby glass. The center of the table was heaped with a profusion of flowers, the vivid roses which grow to such an extraordinary size in the palace gardens. Golden shells filled with strange exotic Turkish hors d'oeuvres were set at intervals the entire length of the board.

At one end of the room, tall damask-draped windows looked out over a marble terrace, lapped by the tranquil Bosphorus. Soft Turkish rugs of inestimable value covered the shining parquet floor.

A procession of waiters was in constant attendance . . . four especially delegated to the president, to see that his glass of raki (a native drink of which he is particularly fond) was kept filled, and to light the de-nicotinized gold-tipped and monogrammed cigarets which are seldom out of his hand.

I was seated on his right. As is his custom, he devoted most of the conversation to the guest at that place of honor. As he talks, it is easy to realize how his vibrant voice and vigorous gestures have held great crowds spellbound. Intensely interested in European affairs, over which his opinions and his policies wield considerable influence, the President of Turkey had much to say concerning the present chaotic situation of the world.

I asked him if he thought it likely that war would break out in the near future. He was silent a moment, his gaze wandering thoughtfully through the tall windows across the dark water to the flickering lights on the shore of Asia Minor.

"We must not talk of the near future," he said, gravely, "the danger of war lies in the present."

Asked if the political situation in Europe were more tense than it had been a few months ago, he replied: "It is worse—very much worse. Certain insincere leaders, who do not consider the seriousness of war, have become agents of aggression. They have deceived the nations they control by misrepresentation and abuse of nationality and tradition.

"In order to prevent chaos in these critical hours the time has come for the masses to make their own decisions and place the responsibility of leadership in the hands of conscientious persons of high character and morals. And this must be done without delay."

Then Realist Ataturk, military hero of Gallipoli and the recent war for Turkey's independence, who has allowed no obstacle to block his ascension to the most powerful dictatorship in the world, said: "If war should break out with the suddenness of a bomb explosion, nations must not hesitate to combine their armed resistance and resources against the aggressor. To prevent war, the most rapid and effective measure is to build up international organizations which will make clear to any prospective aggressor that he will not get away with it!"

He believes the ultimate value of regional pacts is the conclusion of a general pact to include all nations.

KEMAL ATATURK,
President of the Turkish Republic.

"The most urgent need at the present time, however," he said, "is for neighboring countries to come together to discuss each other's particular needs and problems. Moreover, regional pacts have already proved their worth towards maintaining the peace."

Talking or listening, the heavy brows were restless, lifhting to swift points, then drawing together to form a deep vertical line at the bridge of the rugged nose. He emphasized his statements with vigorous gestures of his fine, sensitive hands.

"In the event of war can America maintain her policy of neutrality?"

"Impossible. Impossible. If war breaks out the high place held by the United States will surely be affected. Whatever their geographical location, nations are bound to each other by many ties." After the manner of the east, he illustrated his point with metaphor. "Consider the nations of the world as dwellers in an apartment house, the United States occupying the most luxurious suite. If some of the tenants set it on fire, obviously it would be impossible for any to escape the effects of the conflagration. Just so with war. The United States could not possibly remain aloof.

"Moreover," he aded, "America, as a great and powerful nation of world interests, would never allow herself to sink politically and economically into a second rank position."

"In your opinion, should America have entered the World Court?"

The penetrative eyes held mine. "By joining the World Court the United States would undoubtedly have helpcd towards maintaining universal peace. It is not right for a nation of such influence and humanitarian ideals to refuse an active part in the settlement of international differences."

"You think, then," I asked, "that the League of Nations is an effective instrument for preserving peace?"

"The League of Nations has not yet proven itself a definite and effective instrument. On the other hand, it is the only organization today through which all nations can work toward the realization of a common goal."

Idealist Ataturk, whom 14,000,000 Turks regard as savior of their country, continued: "I believe if there is to be any enduring peace, international measures must also be taken to improve the conditions of the masses. Prosperity for the entire body of humanity must take the place of hunger and oppression. The citizens of the world must be educated away from jealousy and greed and hate."

I asked him if he feared the spread of bolshevism in Turkey. He replied: "There will be no bolshevism in Turkey because the first aim of the Turkish government is to give freedom and happiness to the people. We take as good care of our civilian population as we do of our soldiers. There is no unemployment in Turkey, and they are given the means of wholesome relaxation during their leisure."

"Why does Turkey want to fortify the Dardanelles?"

He sat silent a moment, fingers beating a little tattoo on the white table cloth. Then he said: "The world situation and certain conditions have changed since the Lausanne treaty, when Turkey agreed to leave the Straits open.

"These Straits divide the Turkish territory into two parts. Consequently, the fortification of this waterway is of great importance to the security and the defense of Turkey. It is also a vital factor in international relations. Such a key position cannot be left at the mercy of any adventurous aggressor. Turkey must prevent would-be breakers of the peace from passing through the Straits in order to make war on one another."

Under the impeccable tuxedo, broad shoulders straightened to military posture. The keen eyes flashed.

"Turkey will never allow that!"

I asked Kamal Ataturk why he disliked being called a dictator. He replied: "I am not a dictator. And yet I am the greatest dictator. They say that I have power, and I have. There is nothing I want to do that I cannot do. But I do not wish to be brutal. A dictator, to me, is one who imposes his will on others. I prefer to rule by winning hearts, not by breaking them."

Neither does he like the title of Gazi (The Conqueror), but prefers to be called simply Ataturk, the name bestowed upon him by his grateful people, meaning Father of Turks. And assuredly it is a fitting name for the man under whose leadership a new Turkey has been born.

In repose his face is stern-lipped and tragic. Even when he is merry his eyes retain their glint of steel. So stormy a career could not but leave its scars. Born in Salonika in 1882, the son of humble Turkish parents, at an early age he decided to become a soldier. Entering the military academy in Salonika, he distinguished himself by his aptitude for mathematics and military science. Graduating at 17, he was sent to the higher academy at Monastir, and thence to the Etat Major, where he received his commission as captain.

During all these years one passion dominated him—to free Turkey from the yoke of strangers and from the corrupt government of the sultans. He became an ardent revolutionist. Arrested with his companions, he was imprisoned, deported to Syria. His activities were not quenched, however, and he returned secretly to Salonika, where he took part in all the events leading up to the Turkish revolution in 1908.

Throughout those tumultuous days, and through the Turko-Italian war, he displayed his exceptional military ability. Then the great war, and Turkey's crushing defeat by the Allied armies.

Mustafa Kemal, loyal patriot, refused to see his country divided as spoils of war, almost obliterated from the map of Europe. He organized his ragged army. Knit them against overwhelming odds, and by one of the most magnificent strokes of military genius the world has known restored his country's independence, and as chief of state, proclaimed the new Turkish republic.

I asked him if he were happy.

"Yes," he replied. "I am happy because I am successful. And because I attained success through my own efforts. No single human being ever helped me, no power beyond myself. It was my own will, my own determination which made me achieve the goal I had set for myself."

The Happenings of The Church World

By HERMAN L. TURNER,
Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

The Southern Baptist Convention recently held its eightieth session in the ninetieth year of the convention's history in Memphis, Tenn.

HERMAN L. TURNER.

Despite the depression the relief and annuity board reported total assets increased by $196,026. The foreign missionary society received $220,000 more than in the previous year and was able to reduce its debt by over $440,000, through increased contributions and the sale of property in Italy. The Women's Missionary Union, which met at the same time and the same place, reported 571,702 members with 282,505 of these enrolled in 11,053 missionary societies and the rest in young people's societies. Contributions total $1,915,802.

The reports indicated to those present that southern Baptists have turned the corner toward recovery, not only financially but spiritually. For 15 years the southern Baptists averaged 204,551 baptisms annually, or a total of 3,068,270 for that period. The average annual gain in membership was 92,319 or a total net gain of 1,384,786, in 15 years. During the past four years 629 new churches have been organized and 1,393 new Sunday schools established.

Much interest was shown in the report on Baptist papers, indicating that there were 16 such in the south with a combined circulation of 142,000, or a subscription for every 29 members.

Honors were paid Dr. I. J. Van Ness, of Nashville, who retires from the Sunday school board after 35 years of service, 17 1-2 years as editorial secretary and 17 1-2 years as executive secretary and treasurer.

Seventeen years ago the southern Baptists had 18,394 Sunday schools and an enrollment of 1,784,992; today there are 21,874 schools with an enrollment of 3,069,484. Total gifts for southern Baptists last year were $24,653,276, a gain of $1,361,915. The present membership is 4,277,052, an increase of 103,124. Total gifts to missions were $4,251,000. The convention will meet next year at St. Louis, May 20, with Dr. John A. Huff, of First Baptist church, New Orleans, as convention preacher.

Dr. Arthur Burd McCormick in his page, "The World As I See It" asks this question, "Why Not a Synthesis?" This is what he says: "The air is full of 'plans,' evidence that the country is faced with the necessity of a planned economy and is heading toward it. The nation has become a forum. Epithets fly quick and fast and nasty. Is it not time to have done with calling one another names and get down to serious business? Every plan has elements of value in it—whether Sinclair's or Coughlin's or Long's or Townsend's or Roosevelt's. Why not pool the best and coolest intellects we have in a thorough study of the social credit plan of Major Douglas? To my mind it makes the strongest appeal. It is individualism—not too rugged. It is capitalism sufficiently social. It is nationalism without being provincial. Prosperity for us all and peace for the world are its slogans."

An editorial in the Presbyterian Banner speaks of the responsibility of ministers in "careless marriages:" "A large share of the responsibility for 'careless marriages and hasty divorces' was placed recently against clergymen whose attitude toward the marriage ceremony was described as 'too lax' in a report made public by Dr. Samuel McCrae Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. The report was based upon investigations made by the council's committee on marriage and the home, of which Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins, professor of pastoral theology at General Theological Seminary, is chairman. 'A considerable percentage of couples who appear before ministers for marriage,' the report said, 'could be discovered in the course of a serious interview to be acting hastily and unwisely and should be advised to wait for further light before taking an ill-considered step. There is little value in blaming the individual pastor who is merely following an unfortunate tradition and is often a victim of unfavorable circumstances for which he is not entirely responsible. But when we think of the ministry as a group, the conclusion is inescapable that most Protestant ministers in America are lending themselves to a careless type of marriage procedure. We are not here raising the question as to whether ministers should marry people who are divorced. Some refuse to marry all such persons. In any case, the minister is concerned both to help the people who come to him and to maintain Christian standards of marriage.'"

Revitalization of religion in the life of the nation was the purpose of a meeting of the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery held at Washington recently. Walter W. Head, of St. Louis, presided. This committee of 300 recognized leaders of national, religious and welfare organizations, includes 58 bishops, 45 pastors, priests and rabbis, 25 college presidents or other educators, and 143 national officers of church and benevolent boards—Catholics, Protestants and Jews. The highlight of the conference was a message from President Roosevelt stating that "To bring convincingly to the hearts and minds of our people their full responsibilities and opportunities in strengthening the spiritual forces of the nation is a task of major importance. It is not enough to work out trade agreements and confine our efforts to the solution of business problems alone. Franklin D. Roosevelt." One of the principal speakers at the closing session was Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

Last year 107,000 girls were placed in permanent or temporary positions by the Y. W. C. A. employment bureaus throughout the country—25,000 more than during the preceding year.

Basic Conditions Make Future of Mexico, Uncertain, Writes Well-Known Atlantan

The following comment by a well-posted Atlantan is made upon his return from a trip that carried him to a number of the most important cities of Mexico.

By CHARLES J. HADEN.

To most Americans Mexico is strangely foreign. We know more of the Danube states than of our neighbor fronting us 2,000 miles. It is very surprising how few people living east of the Mississippi have ever been down through the core of that nation.

The severely radical constitution of Mexico in 1917 has chilled the interest of outsiders. The policy of "Mexico for Mexicans" so restricts dealings with more progressive nations that it may seriously react against development. The crude implements of the past are still in use. The indifference and resistence to modern things restrict growth.

There has been in recent years a very marked increase in public education. In some of the states of Mexico illiteracy has been reduced to a point estimated at 50 per cent as compared to an approximate 90 per cent of years past. The friction between the church and the state in the matter of education is regrettable. There has been considerable emigration from Mexico of Catholics growing out of resistence to increased state control.

The low standard of public credit is a great handicap. National bonds of the federal government are selling for 15 cents on the dollar, and no interest has been paid on these securities for more than 15 years. In its campaign to nationalize the ownership of oil and minerals the forced compensation payment to private owners in depreciated government bonds is a constant source of irritation.

The immense national wealth of Mexico undeveloped was once expressed by the great Humboldt in these words, "Mexico is like a beggar sitting on a block of gold."

Whoever undertakes a reckoning of the probable future of this, the largest state of Latin America, must keep in mind that about one-half of its population is pure Indian blood and about 35 per cent mixed, and about 15 per cent of what are called "white Mexicans."

In Mexico practically all the railroads are either owned or controlled by the government and for some years past have been operated at a net loss. Taxation, unemployment and redistribution of wealth are the acute problems of Mexico.

Criticizes Talmadge For National Activities

Editor Constitution: If Talmadge would have the government to remain hands-off of affairs in Georgia, why doesn't he keep his nose out of national politics and devote his time to running the Governor's office to which he was elected by the people of this state? He doesn't want to do this. He wants to gallivant around the country, telling Washington what to do and attracting attention from the "big shots" like the manufacturers and republican press. I don't blame Wallace or anyone else in the cabinet objecting to turning over $25,000,000 to Talmadge and his subservient highway board to do with as he sees fit. And I did not blame Ickes in the PWA dispute.

I want to commend you for decrying Linder's effusions of "secession" which he tried to ram down the throats of our free thinking farmers in the Market Bulletin. At the same time I disagree with your editorial of June 27, trying to defend the Governor's actions on the highway controversy and blaming it all on Wallace.

The time indeed has come for a showdown on this altogether reprehensible and damaging-to-Georgia controversy between our Governor and Washington.

Prohibition Agitation Harming State, Church

Editor Constitution: It is time to end so much agitation and condemnation about prohibition. There is too much bickering, backbiting, whispering and devouring one another. The condition is alarming and means much to our great state and especially to our churches. Law and Christianity are being belittled by it.

Nothing lasting is gained when the forces of prohibition array themselves against the wet element in an attitude and spirit otherwise than that which Jesus Christ exemplified and taught. Divine love wrought through the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ saves men and women from the acts of any intemperance. If our preachers are to advance the cause of prohibition and Christ they must do it through the preaching of the gospel, prayer and song and not rely upon law. When our churches as a whole learn the safe and lasting way to have real prohibition is to win men and women in Christ, they will find their true mission. A regenerated heart makes temperate men and women and it is impossible to proselyte one intemperate person through law enforcement, criticism and condemnation and make him or her any better.

When preachers are arrayed against preachers, deacons against deacons, laity against laity over the prohibition question it's time to call a halt and pray.

How long will it take the prohibitionist to learn if the real cause of temperance is advanced it must be done through the preaching of the gospel and of regeneration and the preaching against it in the home and school and not legislation and law enforcement?

Preferred Way To Feed Your Garden

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

Like all other living things, plants need food, and will thrive only when well supplied with the necessary food elements. Amazing results have been obtained by scientists who determined just what plants needed, and just how to give it to them. Nnfortunately, the why and what of it is not as clear to most gardeners as it should be, and they are likely to get advice from so many sources and of such varying kinds, that they are often confused.

There is one method of plant feeding that is preferred by a majority of successful gardeners. It has several advantages over other methods, the most important of which are its simplicity and its positive results. The scientific way of feeding plants is gaining in preference steadily over the pet method of individuals, which call for a handful of this and a handful of that and a pinch of something else if conditions seem to warrant.

"Columbines Make Handsome Arrangements."

Just as cookery experts have abandoned the old guesswork method in favor of exact recipes which give known results, so gardeners are turning to scientific plant feeding with complete, balanced plant food. Today, anyone can be sure that they are supplying their garden friends with all of the plant food elements they need for greater beauty. No longer need the gardener worry that bacterial action in the soil will not be quick enough to make the organics (manure and bone meal) available when the plants need food most. Even more important, automatic release of large quantities of plant food at a time detrimental to plants is no longer a problem. The use of modern, complete plant food gives the gardener complete control of his feeding problem.

Here is a new way of feeding plants which gives sure results:

1. Don't overfeed plants. Four pounds of complete plant food for 100 square feet of lawn or garden area is the right amount to use in spring. More is wasteful and sometimes harmful.

2. In feeding established lawns, be sure the grass is dry, not damp from dew or rain. As soon as the grass is dry in the morning is the best time to apply plant food to the established lawn.

3. Always mix the plant food throughly with the top few inches of soil before seeding a lawn or garden. It is advisable, but not necessary, to wait a day before planting.

4. Keep the plant food off stalks and stems of established plants. If some gets on plants, just wash off with water.

5. Read the directions which manufacturers furnish. The finer results that you will get from your garden from proper use of plant food warrant the little time necessary for a careful reading.

Feeding and Care of Annuals.

Most anuals are in the ground and well started by this time and the tendency is to think the job well done, and practically complete. This is far from true, however, and the attention you give to your flowers from this point on is what will determine the floral beauty or lack of it, which will finally groom your garden.

It is a sad fact, but only too true, that weeds grow faster than flowers—and there are considerably more of them. To allow them to develop and flowers, taking the moisture and soil foods which they need, is a folly which only the hoe or the hand can remedy. In short, there is no roundabout way to a beautiful display of flowers. A constant vigilance is necessary, but if such action is taken immediately, and the soil is kept loose and clean, a weekly stirring will usually suffice, and the laborious job of trying to catch up with a garden overrun with weeds will not be felt.

Most annuals are sown from seed directly into the border or row, and this condition necessarily means an uneven, and usually thick, stand of seedlings. Do not let them remain for any length of time. Thinning out in the rows not only adds to appearance, but is essential to the well-being of the flowers themselves. Most annuals need considerable space in which to grow. This varies from a few inches for the small sorts to over a foot for the tall ones.

Make an effort to determine the fertility of your soil, and just what types a particular flower needs. Ofttimes, soil conditions can be changed by adding plant foods, humus or sand. If your flowers, or certain of them, are thriving, the chances are they need an addition to the soil.

Moisture is an important factor. Be sure there is no lack of it. The best way to assure a good supply is to give the whole garden a soaking once a week. Daily sprinklings make for shallow roots and weak plants, and are definitely harmful to plants in bloom. You should water so that the deepest root has sufficient moisture. A fine dust mulch will then retain this supply for a week or more.

Plant diseases are a bugaboo to most amateurs, although insects and other pests may be disposed of readily enough. When diseases appear, it is best to pull up the stalks and burn them; this will prevent spreading of the disease among surrounding plants, and to a great extent keep it from being retained by the soil.

Cut back portions of flowers that are growing out of proportion, and with the tall sorts, stakes should be constructed to protect them from the winds.

Spanish Exploration.

AFTER CORONADO: Spanish Exploration Northeast of New Mexico, 1696-1727. Documents from the Archives of Spain, Mexico and New Mexico. Translated and edited by Alfred Barnaby Thomas with a historical introduction. 308 pp. Norman: University of Oklahoma Press. $3.50.

"After Coronado" is the ninth volume of "The Civilization of the American Indian Series," published by the University of Oklahoma Press. The series is intended to present the aboriginal, historical and contemporary life of the American Indian. This volume by Professor Thomas is in the historical division and deals primarily with exploration and European-Indian contacts in the trans-Mississippi west. The author is unusually well-equipped to write such a work. He has studied not only at the University of California, a center of Hispanic American historical research, but has also studied in the archives of Spain and Mexico. He has already published "Forgotten Frontiers" and numerous historical articles dealing with the general field of Spanish activities in the southwest.

The main body of "After Coronado" consists of translated "hitherto unpublished diaries, proceedings of councils of war and judicial investigations, viceregal correspondence, church records and governors' reports." The book also contains a historical introduction in which the author gives the setting and evaluates the source documents. It has voluminous editorial notes and an extensive bibliography. The work is chiefly concerned with the activities of the Spanish explorers in the region to the northeast of New Mexico during the years from 1696 to 1727. But in addition it depicts the entrance of the Comanche Indians into the southwest and their bitter tribal wars with the Apaches. Furthermore, it tells of the punitive expeditions sent out by the Spanish governors against the Comanches and of the international rivalry of the French and Spanish in the southwest. One may learn also something of the Spaish colonial governmental system, the activities of Spanish missionaries, trade and economic rivalry of the French and Spanish, and much of Indian culture and civilization and the geography of the New Mexican region.

The author takes the view that the provincial interpretation of the history of the west in the mould of the "Westward Movement" is wholly out of joint with the three-century northward expansion into the region by Spain. During these three centuries the Spaniards founded towns, planted institutions, made important discoveries, and left valuable records of their activities. Professor Thomas belittles the work of Pike and magnifies that of the Spanish explorers; he also champions the Spanish Indian policy as one of kindness and humanitarianism rather than one of cruelty and oppression. He points out that there were two factors which motivated exploration: First, the disturbances among the Indians on the border which dislocated local New Mexican arrangements; and, second, the fact that New Mexican advance was but a part of the larger expansion movement of New Spain in the latter part of the 17th and early part of the 18th centuries. Speaking of the latter feature, the author says that "Spanish expansion northeast of New Mexico . . . has a distinctive international flavor. More, illuminating the principles of her border Indian policy and the development of her frontier defense in western North America, her activities in this salient contribute to an understanding of the history of exploration in the trans-Mississippi west."

Professor Thomas has added much to the understanding of the exploration of the Spanish borderlands of the southwest and his work is a challenge to the generally accepted interpretation of that subject. His work is too detailed and specialized to find a wide circulation among the general reading public; it will be of interest to scholars and specialists in the field and as such is a valuable and worthwhile contribution to the historical literature of the southwest.

Attractive Villain

DEATH IN THE AIR. By Agatha Christie. 304 pp. New York. Dodd, Meade & Co. $2.

Agatha Christie has given us better stories than "Death in the Air." The suspense element is well handled, the reader is given the same clues with which the police work, and the murderer remains free of suspicion until the conclusion. Yet the story somehow lacks the characteristic punch which hoisted Miss Christie to her prominent position as a mystery writer. Although the publishers give this book the red badge bestowed upon their first-rate detective fiction, it still remains a mildly interesting story.

Thirteen passengers board a plane at Le Bourget bound for Croydon airport. Just before the plane lands, Madame Giselle, a Frenchwoman whose business is private loans, is found dead in her seat. Near her, Hercule Poirot, French detective who has appeared in other Christie stories, discovers a poisoned dart belonging to a South American blowgun. Later the gun itself is found tucked behind a seat in the plane. This unusual weapon gives a sensational flavor to the crime. Obviously Mme. Giselle has been murdered by someone aboard the plane. But how? The passengers testify that nothing out of the ordinary occurred during the crossing. An investigation in the private lives of the plane's passengers naturally follows. A humorous element is introduced through the person of Mr. Clancy, British author of mediocre detective fiction, who incriminates himself by the possession of another blowpipe.

Although the mystery is finally explained logically and fully the end lacks zest. This may be because Miss Christie makes her murderer so attractive that his reader-friend will resent the author's heartlessness in making him commit such a cold-blooded crime!

Race for Repopulation.

RIPENESS IS ALL. By Eric Linklater. 333 pp., New York: Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.

In the words of Eric Linklater this book, "Ripeness Is All," is a small comedy. Although it is essentially humorous it has a sustained plot, the essence of which is contained in the will of Major Gander. He left 70,000 pounds to whichever of his father's progeny bore the greatest number of children five years after the signing of the will. It was specified in the will that the children must be born "in holy wedlock."

To the descendants of old Jonathan Gander this was a rather distasteful idea since they had little love for children. Nevertheless, in the absence of any treaties of limitation, a childbearing race was immediately launched.

This situation afforded opportunities for many humorous situations such as twins and the suggested use of prenatal suggestion to obtain quintuplets. But the sudden appearance of the prodigal George with a string of five half-caste children from India added a lot of new complications.

After George's claim to the money had been disposed of and the family had settled down to the expectation of having the most prolific of the respectable members of the family win the money, the curious use of the word "progeny" in the major's will caused a new series of developments. It was held that "progeny" included all offspring, official and otherwise.

Linklater seems to have planned this story along more conventional lines than some of his former successes such as "Juan in America" and "Magnus Merriman." The characters are an odd lot that would fit perfectly in to a P. G. Wodehouse novel.

In fact there are many points of similarity between Linklater and Wodehouse. One critic suggests that Linklater may yet achieve the feat of combining the best qualities of Wodehouse and G. B. Shaw. Even if this were a desirable combination this reviewer thinks that it is a bit too optimistic a view of Linklater's ability. —HAROLD HEMRICK.

Penetrating Portrayal.

THE ISLAND. By Claire Spencer. 441 pp. New York. Harrison Smith and Robert Haas, $2.50.

"The Island" is in the same manner as "Gallow's Orchard," Claire Spencer's first book, but shows a remarkable increase in strength. It is a deeper, more detailed study of Scotch fisher and farmer folk. If the plot of the story is simple, the characters are complex, and penetratingly portrayed. One feels that the author is concerned with fundamental emotions and has used her story to present a study of a group of characteristics rather than a group of persons. From this viewpoint each person in the story becomes the exponent of some one phase of character, but the whole action becomes the clash of elemental passions as typified by the different actors in the book.

Most obvious is the contrast between the twin brothers, Gavan and Duncan Muir. Gaven portrays the honest, responsible, strong intelligence which may even become at times a victim of its own reasonableness. Duncan, on the other hand, moves without thought or conscience along the path of his inclinations. He cannot be called good or evil any more than moral or immoral motives may be attributed to an animal. The second striking contrast is in the mothers, Mrs. Muir and Mrs. Morrissy. Mrs. Muir typifies the most beautiful qualities of love and service. She says of herself: "I am not clever, and I canna think very clear, but whenever I have tried my thoughts came to but one thing: that you are born and that you die; in between is this we call our life and it seemed to me it should be made as pleasant as possible."

Mrs. Morrissy is materialism, she is not a person but a force. In another contrast to her are her sons, John and Robin. They hurl the spiritual needs and forces against her unyielding and unrealizing bulk. Strong in themselves they are crushed in that unfair battle.

Ethereal dainty, lovely is the weak Lucy. She is a prey to Duncan, and arouses the protective strength and loyalty of Gavan. She cringes in fear, she is swept by unreasoning fits of conscience and she clings with the tenacity of the weak. Maria, the dark Spaniard, is passion and desire; Sarah, the buxom, realism and loyalty.

There are half-a-dozen others equally clearly defined sometimes seeming to overlap but each with a clearcut characteristics and each interestingly alive.

The novel is a smooth and well constructed story. Its conflicts sweep on gaining in momentum until they reach a tragic climax almost operatic. Certain minor inconsistencies become irrelevant. What is important is that certain spiritual characteristics were beaten down and discouraged in the face of rampant materialism.

Whether this view of the book is justified or not, "The Island" remains a novel of power and beauty. Its descriptions are beautiful, often magnificent. The manner of presentation is novel and the word picturization startlingly vivid.

Homily as Fiction

OUT OF THE WHIRLWIND. By William Thomas Walsh. 479 pp New York: Robert McBride & Co $2.50.

The publishers' blurb describes this book as an "epic novel." It isn't merely an average novel that attempts to show the regeneration of the protagonist, surely no heroic figure, and his final conversion to Christianity. "Out of the Whirlwind," which is the May selection of the Catholic Book of the Month Club, is built on the premise that the human soul finds itself through suffering, and that it does so spontaneously, urged on by some mysterious cosmic force. Mr. Walsh's technic is adequate to the job; there is little doubt in that regard. He adopts a course that is reasonable enough: In the early years of his imprisonment Stephen tires of his bitterness against the tactics of the rascally prosecuting attorneys and of the perfidy of his mistress, Nina, the real murderer. Realizing that he will go mad if he continues to brood on the false accusation and his imprisonment, Stephen begins to attend prison school, to read history, philosophy, ethics and classic literature, and to think as a result of his incessant reading. His whole character undergoes a profound change, and he becomes a devout Catholic, a balanced and an admirable man.

All very plausible in the light of his previously established normality and averageness. Nevertheless, in spite of Mr. Walsh's elaborate and painstaking attention to structural detail that would strengthen his point, the story lacks conviction because Mr. Walsh is so obviously a tractarian. The book is a religious homily, not successfully concealed under the false front of realistic fiction.

Evidence in favor of this criticism is abundant: The fine character (not characterization) of Father Burke; the too-goodness of Sister Benignus; the rascality of Scanlon, the prosecuting attorney; the opposing fineness of Kelly, the Irish Catholic defender of Stephen; Nina's final conversion to goodness after a life of weakness and self-gratification; worst of all, the incredible sublimation, at the close, of Stephen's powerful sexual feeling for Nina. It's all too good to be true.

A more mature writer would have done a less transparent and hence more artistic and delicate job.

Flags Reveal History.

FLAGS OF AMERICA. By Colonel W. H. Waldron, United States Army. 40 pp. Huntington, W. Va. Standard Printing & Publishing Co. 50 cents.

Here is a book about flags that is more than a collection of colored prints. Colonel W. H. Waldron tells in few words, but in most interesting fashion, the part that 49 flags have played in the history of America.

A study of the various flags under whose folds the New World was discovered, colonized and developed, reveals the history of America. Forty-eight flags, according to Colonel Waldron, have entered into the history and evolution of the American flag of today.

The Viking flag is given a place ahead of the Spanish. This is an arrangement in line with recent discoveries which indicate that Lief Ericson visited the American continent nearly 500 years before Columbus landed at San Salvador. It was under the Spanish banner that Balboa discovered the Pacific ocean, Ponce de Leon found Florida, and Magellan sailed for the first time around the world.

Interesting are the accounts of the various state flags, as well as the first flag under which the colonials went into battle against the British. It was called the Grand Union or Cambridge flag. Colonel Waldron's book, which is well printed, will be enjoyed by both young and old.

Although most young writers of fiction are not content until their stories have been rushed into print, Kittie Owen Lehman is a notable exception to the rule.

Mrs. Lehman, daughter of Ruth Bryan Owen, United States minister to Denmark, has been writing fiction ever since her childhood, but it was not until the present year that she was willing to submit any of her work for publication.

Her first book, currently appearing under the imprint of the Davidson Press, is "As the Wind Blows," a collection of short stories which furnishes ample proof that such a policy can be a very wise one. As a result of Mrs. Lehman's self-imposed discipline, book reviewers and critics are calling attention to the fact that the stories in this volume all bear the mark of an unusually mature talent.

Mrs. Lehman, who is the granddaughter of William Jennings Bryan, and the wife of Robert Lehman, of the New York banking house of Lehman Brothers, is known as a modest woman in her early thirties who has shunned literary limelight in order to perfect her narrative technique.

The three short stories which compose the contents of Mrs. Lehman's first published book are "Motif," "As the Wind Blows" and "The Last Leaf." Not only are these stories well able to stand on their own merits but they promise still more for the future.

It was sure to happen; indeed, it should take place oftener than it does. This reference is to the fact that in "Modern Feature Writing," just published by Harper & Brothers, there appears a story by Ralph McGill.

The story selected by the compilers of "Modern Feature Writing" was printed originally in The Constitution. It is no surprise to find a story by Ralph McGill reprinted, for even his news reports are marked by a flair for story-telling. Take, for instance, his story of the Indianapolis races, which was written staccato but underneath always was the steady roar of gasoline thunder. And his report of the July 4 races at Lakewood.

Few readers of The Constitution can forget McGill's "My Old Kentucky Home," written when he visited Bardstown, Ky. Or the old negro and the mule which had made 24 crops.

Charles Scribner's Sons announce for October publication "The Hoover Administration: A History," by Willam Starr Myers and Walter H. Newton. In this book will be chronicled the complete story of Mr. Hoover's four years in the White House, from beginning to end. In its preparation Mr. Myers and Mr. Newton, with the full co-operation of Mr. Hoover, have had access to diaries, memoranda, state papers and other original material not previously available to any writer.

The sweeping decision of the United States supreme court nullifying NRA codes, recently handed down, will be included in "Historic Opinions of the United States Supreme Court," to be issued by the Vanguard Press this summer. This book was originally scheduled for publication last fall, but was postponed in order that it might contain this notable decision. The work is edited by Ambrose Doskow a member of the New York bar.

How about a prize for yourself? Rand McNally has announced a prize story contest. The prize is $300 and the story will be published in Child Life. Each story submitted will be considered for publication at the usual rates, whether it wins the prize or not. Stories should be not less than 2,100 words nor more than 3,000. Since Child Life appeals to children between the ages of 6 and 12, stories should be written for children of this age range. Fairy tales are not barred, but preference will be given to realistic stories. Manuscripts, which must be typewritten, in double space, should be addressed to Child Life Prize Story Contest, 536 S. Clark street, Chicago, Ill.

Some of the wild projects that have been proposed to the Public Works Administration are described by Secretary Harold L. Ickes in his book, "Back to Work: The Story of PWA." There was a proposal that 10,000 men at $1,000 a year each be commissioned to eliminate snakes from the United States; a proposal that 100 million dollars be set aside to finance a round-trip passenger-carrying rocket to the moon; a request for funds for a graveyard, in a community every member of which must die within 17 years if the plan were to be liquidated. Mr. Ickes tells the story of the Public Works Administration from the beginning, and how it works today—a dramatic and impressive story, with humor thrown in. The publisher is MacMillan Co.

Two hundred and twenty-four universities and colleges throughout the United States competed in the second national short story contest, conducted by the magazine Story. The first prize of $100, was awarded to Elizabeth Hall for her manuscript, "Two Words Are a Story." Miss Hall is a senior at Barnard College and lives in New York. The second prize of $50 goes to Philip Bregy, an undergraduate at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., and a special extra third prize to Paul Monash, University of Wisconsin. Bregy's story is entitled "Who's Mr. Billings?," Monash's "The Rut."

$1,800 in Cash Prizes for Book Titles!

(C) 1935, By Associated Publishers, Inc.

By THE BOOK GAME EDITOR.

Visualize a huge pile of money with a sign above it reading, "Help Yourself." The $1,800 Book Game represents, in substance, your vision, with incomparable pleasure and inspiration in addition. Praised by noted literary figures and educators this unique contest has captured the hearts of booklovers and scaled the heights of popularity.

The Book Game's 35 prizes will be awarded to those who identify the most titles represented by Herbert Carter's series of pictures. No subscriptions have to be obtained to qualify for any of the prizes. Non-subscribers are eligible. There are no letters or essays to write, slogans to devise or brain-fagging puzzles to solve.

For the special convenience of late starters, the first 12 pictures of the series have been reprinted. They appear in an abridged publication with "The Romance of Books," by Belle Auwens, and can be had free by calling at The Constitution, or by mail, provided requests are accompanied by 3 cents in stamps to cover postage. Pictures beyond 12 are 5 cents each, the regular price of the issues in which they were published. An extra 3 cents should accompany orders for pictures by mail, to cover postage.

OPENS OFFICE HERE

New York Firm To Handle Laundry Supplies.

A large New York firm of manufacturing chemists, H. Kohnstamm & Company, which handles laundry and dry cleaning supplies, has opened a branch office and warehouse in Atlanta.

The company has leased a two-story building at 553 Whitehall street. The branch will be in charge of E. S. Talliaferro, who will continue to travel in Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina and Virginia, but expects to locate in Atlanta and spend considerable time here. P. J. Porche has been transferred from an another office and will be in active charge of the office and warehouse.

J. B. Keary, director of sales, said, "We look upon Atlanta as the most natural point in this section for the distribution of our merchandise. The railroad facilities here are excellent and the city is a very important commercial center.

ATLANTA PYTHIANS PLAN INSTALLATION

Lodges' Joint Ceremony Will Be Held Here Tuesday Night.

A joint public installation of officers of the Atlanta lodges, Knights of Pythias, will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the Pythian Castle hall, Peachtree building, corner of Peachtree and Baker streets.

Walter C. Fink, chancellor commander of Bell Lodge No. 302, will act as master of ceremonies, assisted by Charles S. Jarrell in charge of the musical program.

In addition to the installation ceremonies, which will be in charge of Deputy Chancellor Charles R. Perry, a program of entertainment with musical features by radio stars has been arranged. Talks on matters pertaining to Pythianism will be delivered by Will H. Raymond, grand chancellor of Georgia; E. D. Whisenant, of Oglethorpe University, junior past grand commander, and Mrs. Frances Hanna, of Atlanta, grand protector of the Pythian Sisters.

Grand Vice Chancellor Aaron Cohen, of Athens; Supreme Representative Miller S. Bell, of Milledgeville, and Past Grand Chancellors Clifford Walker, Jesse M. Wood, Hal M. Stanley, Frank A. Hooper Sr. and Will G. Moore, all of Atlanta, will attend, it was said.

The membership of Venus Temple No. 22, Pythian Sisters, will act as hostesses and will serve refreshments during a social hour to follow the program.

The general committee in charge of arrangements consists of Past Chancellors Charles S. Jarrell, chairman; Charles Carter, Walter C. Fink, Rutledge P. Butler, and Past Chief Mrs. Georgia Greene, of Venus temple.

The Pythian lodges represented in the installation are Capitol City, No. 33; Bell, No. 302, and Colonial, No. 303, and the officers to be installed follows, arranged in numerical sequence as to lodge:

Past chancellors, M. Fletcher Pierce; Walter C. Fink, James A. Miller; chancellor commanders, John H. Hudson, Wright W. Campbell, J. H. Kennerly; vice chancellors, Rev. J. D. Bradley, T. F. House, Jay R. Reynolds; inner guards, Virgil C. Clemmons, Aubrey R. Johnson, G. Floyd Cox; outer guards, H. D. Paris, James D. Tomlin, Charles L. Robbins.

EDUCATION BOARD TO MEET TUESDAY

Funds To Accept WPA Offers To Be Sought by Members.

Two major matters are slated for action by the Atlanta board of education at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Board leaders yesterday were engaged in a study of finances with a view of attempting to provide $31,530 asked by WPA for prosecution of a $209,150 repair program for the schools.

WPA has agreed to expend the $209,150 if the local schools can provide $31,530 to help pay the cost of materials.

The row over adoption of textbooks carried on the state-approved list probably will not reach a head at the Tuesday session, but a move will be launched to prevent any further purchases until City Attorney Jack C. Savage secures an opinion from Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans as to whether state school funds, which come to the local system, will be in jeopardy if Atlanta fails to use the state list.

Several members of the board believe the state list should be adopted and used by the Atlanta system, but others feel the list does not include all subjects which local schools should provide.

ALABAMAN PRAISES CO-ED HIGH SCHOOLS

Birmingham Educator Says Trend to Single System for Both Sexes.

The trend is toward co-educational high schools, C. B. Glenn, superintendent of high schools of Birmingham, informed George W. Powell, 13th ward school commissioner, yesterday.

Glenn praised the system, but asserted it is a matter for every community to decide for itself.

A special committee of the Atlanta Board of Education, headed by S. C. Noland, is now engaged in an investigation of the feasibility and the desirability of converting Atlanta high schools into co-educational institutions.

Excerpts from Glenn's letter to Powell follow:

"Recently I replied to a letter from Mr. Noland, of your city, regarding the matter of which you inquire. Frankly, I feel that the question of separate high schools for boys and girls is one for each community to decide for itself. However, the trend throughout the country is unquestionably toward co-educational high schools. In Birmingham this has always been our type of organization, and, as stated in my letter to Mr. Noland, no major problems have resulted from it. So far as I know patrons are well satisfied.

"Within the past several years I recall only one complaint. A lady come to my office and in a very friendly, cordial way, said: 'Do you suppose Birmingham will ever be able to have separate high schools for its boys and girls?' Whereupon I replied: 'I hope not as long as I remain superintendent.'"

300 GIRLS VISIT CITY.

Bibb Company Workers Given Day of Sight-seeing.

Three hundred outstanding Girl Reserves from the various plants of the Bibb Manufacturing Company were brought to Atlanta yesterday for a day of sight-seeing as a reward for their work during the last year.

The girls, dressed in white, with flowing blue ties, were from textile departments and general offices of the Bibb plants at Macon, Columbus, Porterdale and Reynolds. The girls, given an opportunity to choose the place for their outing, voted to come to Atlanta.

The girls made their headquarters at the Ansley hotel and during the day visited the state capitol, Stone Mountain, enjoyed a swimming and theater party and other points of interest.

The young women were in charge of C. F. Andrews, personal director, and H. W. Pittman, factory manager for the company.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR GLENN N. VICKERY

Funeral services for Glenn N. Vickery, 28, of 1600 Jonesboro road, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Pleasant Hill church with the Rev. Lee Cutts officiating. Burial will take place in the churchyard with Harry G. Poole in charge.

Mr. Vickery was drowned in Lake Burton, near Hallulah Falls, on July 4. The body was recovered Friday after a 24-hour search.

Mr. Vickery was spending the holiday at the lake with his wife and another couple at the time of the tragedy. He and a companion had been diving from a boat into the lake and it was several minutes before it was discovered he had disappeared. No one saw the accident.

Survivors include his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Vickery; three brothers, Elmer, Tilmer and Harold Vickery, and two sisters, Mrs. G. S. Richardson and Miss Jewel Vickery.

ATLANTA COLLECTOR'S CLUB INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

New officers of the Collectors' Club of Atlanta were installed at the meeting held last Monday night in the Silvey building. W. A. Lyle was chosen president.

R. K. MEAD

Other officers installed included C. R. Young, vice president; L. H. Fitzpatrick, secretary and treasurer, and E. D. Willingham, assistant secretary. Tomorrow night at the club will be celebrated as "Everybody's Night" and a program will be staged which will be of special interest to new collectors and visitors as well as regular members.

An auction will be held by the club on July 15, it was announced.

An auction will be held by the club on July 15, it was announced.

Club members and the incoming officers praised the work which had been accomplished by Russell K. Mead, the retiring president. His administration of club affairs was termed "outstanding" in the provision of entertaining and instructive programs.

STAMP SOCIETIES HERE ASSIST NEW COLLECTORS

I receive considerable mail from adults who are interested in the subject of stamps, called philately, asking the best manner in which to make a start with a collection. It might be well for me to correct a false impression which seems to be held widely. It is not necessary to make heavy expenditures to secure very interesting collections.

Before investing in stamps or albums and other equipment I would suggest that the interested person attend a meeting or two of one or both of the excellent stamp clubs here. The novice should not hesitate to go to these meetings. Every collector has had to make a start at some time and it is one of the outstanding features of the hobby or stamp collecting that collectors are universally interested in getting other collectors started along the right paths.

The Atlanta Stamp Society meets every Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in Room 807 of the Silvey building. The Collectors' Club of Atlanta meets every Monday night in the assembly room of the Peachtree Arcade.

Prospective collectors will find a generous welcome at the meetings of both clubs and by attending these meetings they will learn something of the various manners in which collections may be made.

ATLANTA STAMP SOCIETY CONTEST WON BY F. W. CATE

The weekly meetings of the Atlanta Stamp Society, held at 807 Silvey building, continue to draw a good attendance. F. W. Cate was the winner in the contest on the stamps of Africa at the meeting Thursday night, with Major Senay and J. L. Hudson close contestants. A. P. Francis returns to the city today after a month's vacation. Clarendon Bangs, president emeritus, is at Hendersonville.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night. All persons interested in philately are invited to attend.

NOTES ON U. S. STAMPS.

By R. T. Freeman.

Only two commemorative stamps were issued during 1927. These were the Burgoyne campaign and the Vermont Sesquicentennial issues. Both of these stamps were issued on August 3, 1927, and are described as follows:

Burgoyne Campaign.

This stamp of 2-cent denomination was issued to commemorate the Battles of Fort Stanwix, Oriskany, Bennington and Saratoga.

The central design represents the surrender of General Burgoyne to General Horatio Gates at Saratoga, N. Y., October 17, 1777.

This stamp was first placed on sale at Albany, Rome, Syracuse and Utica, N. Y., and Washington, D. C.

Vermont Sesquicentennial.

This stamp, also of 2-cent denomination, was issued to commemorate the 115th anniversary of the independence of Vermont and the Battle of Bennington.

The central design represents the Vermont Green Mountain boy dressed in buckskin, leaning on his rifle. The Battle of Bennington was fought August 16, 1777, and the victory was due largely to Colonel Stark and his Green Mountain boys.

This stamp was first placed on sale at Bennington, Vermont, and Washington, D. C.

CHEAP STAMPS SCARCE.

One of the surest proofs that stamp collecting has taken the country by storm is the condition of the wholesale stamp market. Heretofore good sources of supply of the cheap foreign stamps that are made up into dime packets have dried up and dealers are scurrying around in a frantic effort to locate more of this popular material.

A scarcity of United States stamps, especially the commemoratives of a few years back, is also reflected in rising prices of these items.

Helen Moody Stages Brilliant Rally To Beat Helen Jacobs

CRACKERS SPLIT TWIN BILL WITH LOOKOUTS

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was never a young lady who inspired people to cheer themselves hoarse about her accomplishments.

She was cold and aloof. They called her "Little Poker Face" although she was not so very little at that, being a good-sized girl with muscled legs and arms which all the girl athletes have after a few years of being a girl athlete.

It is very probable that she didn't care whether the public cheered her. She never asked for cheers and she never made any of the little gestures which indicate a desire to be pals, so to speak, with the crowds.

But the fact is that today she probably finds more people wanting to like her than ever before. She defeated Miss Helen Jacobs Saturday morning in England to again become the champion of the feminine tennis world and the story is a most amazing one. They are wanting to like Helen Wills Moody not because she defeated Miss Jacobs, she being a very popular person in her own right, but because of the fact that Mrs. Moody has accomplished what is known as a comeback. And a comeback always caused the heart-strings to flutter and a warm glow to go swarming through the system.

They felt that way about Jim Braddock when he defeated Max Baer in what was probably the worst championship fight ever held. Jim Braddock had come back to glory and money and they were all for him even if he couldn't fight a lick.

The people who find themselves wanting to like Mrs. Helen Wills Moody may be a little surprised at themselves because until she won the title it was Miss Jacobs who carried the sentiment of the crowd. They were hoping she would take our former champion over the jumps, so to speak, in a most emphatic manner.

THE FAMOUS DEFAULT.

Our Mrs. Moody was going along very well a couple of summers ago. She carried no great enthusiasm, never asking for it. But she was the champion and she was not, on this particular day, playing like one.

Helen Jacobs was even sets after two had been played and was leading, 3-0, when Mrs. Moody stopped playing, walked to the referee; then to Miss Jacobs, shook hands and left the court. She had defaulted.

She was, she said, ill and suffering intense pain. Subsequent examinations revealed she was suffering from a spinal strain and that had she gone on she might have been left a cripple. Subsequent reports developed also that Miss Jacobs had been playing despite illness and had twice been forced to take medicine before the match. It was a sort of drug store match and it was perhaps best for all hands concerned it went no farther.

But it left Mrs. Moody the goat, so to say. The writing boys suddenly realized they had never liked her very well anyhow and so they began to let it creep into the writings. They felt she should have stood out there and let Miss Jacobs belt in three serves which she, Mrs. Moody, would not try to reach, and so let her opponent have the title on points and not by default.

Well, I have wondered long about that. And it is now my idea that if one feels too ill to play a game one simply feels too ill to play. And that is all there is to it. If Mrs. Moody had gone on and played it is possible she might now be an invalid. And I am very doubtful if the chips would add up even if she, in her invalid's chair, had to comfort herself with a lot of clippings wherein she was described as a sportswoman of high excellence.

THE FIRST COMEBACK.

The victory at Wimbledon is important because it is the first time a champion has remained out of competition for two years and then returned to become champion once more.

I have an idea it also demonstrates that there are not many good tennis players, but that is beside the point. There are just as many good ones as when Mrs. Moody quit the game.

The various departments of sport have seen comeback efforts. The prize ring saw quite a few. Jim Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries were the famous "hollow shells" of early days. Jack Dempsey attempted in later years and almost rode back to the title with his swinging right fist. But there was the long count at Chicago, whether right or wrong, and Tunney retained his title.

Bobby Jones tried it in golf and found the touch gone. It is hardly fair to include Jones, however, as he in no sense attempted a comeback. He merely entered a tournament and did no special work in preparing for it.

Nevertheless Helen Wills Moody has accomplished something in her line of competition which no other champion has done—remained out of the game for a long period of time and then come back to reach the peak.

TILDEN'S PROPHECY.

When William Tatum Tilden II was here for the recent professional tournament, I asked him what he thought of Mrs. Moody's chances.

It was his idea that she would hardly make the grade unless she played in three or four tournaments before going to Wimbledon. It was his idea also that there were some of the English girls, notably Dorothy Round, whose game would have improved enough during Mrs. Moody's two years of inactivity to permit a defeat of Mrs. Moody.

The champion played in one tournament before the Wimbledon matches and was defeated. It appeared she was finding out the old, old lesson which other champions had learned—they don't come back. But in the Wimbledon matches she was her old self.

I am as dumb as the average man in trying to delve into the feminine psychology but it must have been very, very sweet to Helen Wills Moody to win this one. While she did not say so it was very obvious that the two Helens did not care for one another.

And while I cannot imagine the impeccable Mrs. Moody indulging in anything so uncouth as a yell of triumph I am compelled to believe if she could have found a sound-proof room somewhere she might have entered it, thrown back her head and yelled "Whoopeeeeeee."

GREAT RALLY BY MRS. MOODY REGAINS TITLE

'Lil' Poker Face' Successful in Battle To Recover Net Honors.

By Gayle Talbot.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody, poker-faced darling of Wimbledon's galleries for more than a decade, reclaimed the world's feminiine tennis championship today with as fine and gallant a last-ditch rally as the game ever has seen.

Heading into what seemed certain defeat and frustration in the comeback campaign that has stirred the tennis world, the 29-year-old San Francisco matron dramatically overcame a 2-5 deficit in the third and deciding set of her match with Helen Jacobs, American titleholder for three years, downed her arch rival, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, and annexed the all-England singles crown for the seventh time.

Seventeen thousand fans who sat or stood through the struggle verged upon hysteria before Miss Jacobs, run to the point of exhaustion, knocked the final ball over the back corner after an hour and 40 minutes of gruelling play.

GAINS REVENGE.

The victory supplied all the vindication Mrs. Moody ever will need for the incident in the American championship final of 1933 when, suffering from a back injury, she walked off the court in the third set with Miss Jacobs leading, 3-0. She was accused then of quitting, of depriving Miss Jacobs of a chance for a clean-cut, undisputed victory.

Today, however, she gave a conclusive rebuff to anyone who ever questioned her fighting heart. Almost as though she willed it, Mrs. Moody again gave her fighting adversary a three-game advantage in the third set, the same advantage Miss Jacobs had enjoyed at Forest Hills. She even spotted Miss Jacobs a 5-2 lead later in the set and once, in the ninth game, had match point staring her in the face.

Then, like an avenging goddess, she won five straight games from one of the gamest fighters who ever donned tennis shorts.

When the final point kicked the dust over the baseline, the winner ecstatically tossed her racket over her shoulder almost into the bleacher crowd and literally raced to grasp her defeated rival's hand.

CROWD ROARS.

Miss Jacobs stood up bravely as they walked off side by side and the crowd stood and roared its approval for many minutes.

Then in her dressing room, she lay prostrate for 45 minutes and on the verge of tears.

"Helen deserved to win," Miss Jacobs said falteringly. "I just couldn't get that match point."

Also tuckered out but in much better shape than her rival, Mrs. Moody said:

"Helen played gloriously. I never expected to win."

One linesman vouched for the fact Miss Jacobs played the last three games in a virtual daze.

"We had to tell her it was her service in the final game," he said. "What a wonderful fighter she is."

Had she been fresh, Miss Jacobs undoubtedly would have won the match in the ninth game of the final set when she went to the net for what appeared to be a simple kill of Mrs. Moody's weak lob. But, at match point, Miss Jacobs seemed unable to lift her racquet high enough for the decisive stroke and hit futilely instead into the net.

MISS JACOBS FALTERS.

Later, with the count at 5-5, Miss Jacobs needed only one point to break Mrs. Moody's service and gain what might have been a decisive 6-5 lead, but once more she drove into the net.

She never had another chance as

Crackers Play 19 Games Here During August

Atlanta's Crackers will have a busy time at home during the month of August.

A checkup of the club's remaining games at Ponce de Leon park shows that it plays a total of 19 games here during that month, including three night games and three Sunday games. There also will be a double-header with Little Rock on Saturday, August 3.

The club has 34 games more left to play here and by averaging 3,000 paid admissions a game will easily exceed 300,000 for the season, which would break their own attendance record of 279,000 established in 1925. The club has already drawn 200,255 paid admissions.

Following are the Crackers' home games for the remainder of the season, seen at a glance:

Frisch Is Silent On Diz's Status In All-Star Fray

By Hal Boyle.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, alternately baseball's bad boy and hero, avowedly is to go unpunished for his refusal to appear yesterday in an exhibition game at St. Paul.

Despite his rebellion and unkind remarks about the World Champion St. Louis Cardinal club being "a chain gang," team officials agreed today that the incident was "finished."

After a lengthy conference with President Sam Breadon, Manager Frankie Frisch this afternoon declared he planned no action.

Plainly weary of the whole affair, neither Breadon nor Frisch would comment at length.

"It's all blown over, I tell you," the irritated manager said. "No punishment is planned for Dean. I'm sick of the whole matter."

However, after twice changing his mind, Frisch was still undecided whether he would name Dizzy to start in the all-star game at Cleveland Monday. Frisch will manage the National league team.

FRISCH UNDECIDED.

"I don't know for sure yet who will be the opening pitcher," he added. "I haven't decided definitely."

Visibly annoyed at the latest of a long line of outbursts from his temperamental pitcher, President Sam Breadon said he would support Frisch if the manager chose to fine or punish Dizzy.

"The matter is entirely in Frisch's hands. Whatever he wants to do, we will back him to the fullest."

Breadon's only reply to Dizzy's charge that the Cardinal club was parsimonious and unduly exacting of its players was the laconic comment, "the club's record speaks for itself."

Unrepentant and unchastened, Dizzy, who charged during his oral explosion at St. Paul that the Cardinals "were a chain gang outfit that would send you back if you didn't hit .600," was still in a rebellious mood.

"THAT'S HIS PRIVILEGE."

"If he (Frisch) wants to keep me out of the all-star game, it's all right with me. It's his privilege," Dean declared.

The elder member of "Me and Paul" baseball's best known brother act, has been a stormy petrel since he joined the Cardinals.

As a rookie in 1931 he threatened to quit the club and was sent back to Houston. In 1932 he temporarily deserted the club and talked of demanding his "release."

During 1933 he was involved in one major row, also over failure to play in an exhibition game. Last year both Dizzy and Paul were suspended and fined for failure to make an exhibition trip to Detroit.

Last month after Dizzy became disgusted at the field and ceased to do his best at Pittsburgh Manager Frisch threatened a $5,000 fine if the offense was repeated.

Tilden Is Beaten By Hans Nusslein

PARIS, July 6.—(UP)—Big Bill Tilden, of Philadelphia, was eliminated from the French professional tennis championships when he was beaten in the semi-final round by Hans Nusslein, German star. Scores were 5-7, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

In the other semi-final Ellsworth Vines, of California, defeated Martin Plaa, of France, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

Wilson Mason Wins Echetah Tourney

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—For a time it appeared as if the Mason family would make a clean sweep of the Echetah Country Club's annual golf tournament here.

Wilson Mason won the men's tourney from Aubrey Jones, 4 and 3, but Mrs. Wilson Mason lost to Mrs. Dawson Allen in the women's finals.

Ready for Defense of State Golf Title at Rome This Week

Billy McWilliams, state golf champion, shown above, will defend his title over his home course at Rome this week. It is the first time Rome has entertained the state meet and a great crowd is expected from Atlanta and other cities of the state. McWilliams is a popular champion but will be hard pressed to meet the competition. Constitution staff photo by Kenneth Rogers. (Story on Page 3.)

LINDSEY WINS SECOND GAME; KELLEY LOSES

Crackers Lose Early Lead in First Game; Buster Homers.

CHATTANOOGA, July 6.—Flashing surprising form, Clyde Milan's makeshift Lookouts rose to heights amid the thundering cheers of 3,300 patrons here today, beat back Atlanta's pace-setting Crackers in the opener and narrowly missed repeating in the final.

On the mound to go the route, for better or for worse, because of the pitching shortage, Whitey Hayes beat his ex-mates and Harry Kelley, 4 to 3, in 10 frames. Then young Dick Lanahan pitched his heart out against the veteran Jim Lindsey in the nightcap, only to lose 3 to 1, when the three runs needed to win the game died on base in the breathless closing inning.

FANS EXCITED.

Not averse to dishing out boos of late, the fans stayed to yell, rave and otherwise cheer with all the enthusiasm of 1932 for the fighting Lookouts. The patrons all but went crazy when John Milhalic stepped up in the tenth inning of the first game and promptly smacked out a home run into the left-field stands to end the dramatic duel.

It was Mihalic who came up with two outs and three men on in the last inning of the thrilling second game, and the crowd's thunderous applause beat against his ear drums. "Please hit another in the stands, Johnny." But he couldn't do it again that time, popping to short.

It was a great day for Milan, against whom every break has gone since he came here, and it was a great time for some breaks to go his way, with the high and mighty Crackers in town and a fairly large gathering on hand.

Maxey, filling in for Reeves, became the right-field bleacher hero, when he socked a double after taking Miles' place. Bill Jackson in left fielded superbly all day, and fairly glittered in the second game with a pair of line-running catches. One of them was made running backward past the stands, a one-handed stab robbing Peck Hamel. He was given magnificent applause.

BUSTER HITS HOMER.

The Crackers manufactured two runs out of four hits in the third inning of the first game. Buster Chatham led off by poling a home run to the roof of the colored stands in left field. Kelley rolled out weakly. Hamel pushed a handle hit between first and second, and pulled up at second on Hill's single to center. Hooks looped a pop hit, which fell on the line in short right, scoring Hamel, moving Hill to third and going to second on the throw-in. Lipscomb hit to Lewis, who caught Hill at the plate, Hooks going to third. Harris backed Jackson up against the stands in left with a high fly.

Chattanooga got one back in the fourth. With one out, Miles socked a line triple to deep right center and scored when Jackson bounced a single off Hooks' shoulder, the ball taking a bad hop. Lewis walked, Remerenko rolled out, both runners advancing, and Marion grounded out.

But the Crackers got one of their own in the fifth. Hamel drew a pass, went to third on Hill's single to right, and scored on Hooks' single to right.

REESE IS BEATEN BY WILBUR COEN

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Texas, and Wilbur Coen Jr., of Kansas City, will battle it out tomorrow for the men's western singles tennis title at the South Shore Country Club.

McDiarmid, seeded at the top, ploughed through two matches, necessary to bring the rain-delayed schedule up to date, in easy style. His quarter-finals victim was Ernest Sutter, Tulane University star, 6-0, 6-3. Art Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., had little better luck against the clever Texan, losing by 6-2, 6-3.

Coen trounced Sin Kie Kho, Chinese Davis cup player, 6-3, 6-3, but had plenty of trouble with Big Bill Reese, star of the Georgia Tech team in the national intercollegiate tourna-

ATLANTAN LOSES IN SEMI-FINALS

SPARTANBURG, S. C., July 6.—(AP)—After a bitter struggle, Hal Surface, of Kansas City, defeated Wilbur Hess, of Houston, in the mid-Dixie tennis tounament here today, advancing to the finals in which he will meet Robert (Lefty) Bryan, of Chattanooga, tomorrow for the title now held by Bryan.

Surface, seeded No. 2, conquered Hess, third seeded player, by scores of 7-5, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Bryan and Martin Buxby, of Miami, Fla., progressed to the doubles finals by whipping Archie Henderson, of Chapel Hill, and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4. In the finals they meet Bryan and Surface tomorrow.

Record Crowd Expected for All-Star Game at Cleveland Monday

INJURIES BESET AMERICAN SQUAD; BILL DICKEY OUT

Averill's Accident Also Setback; Frisch Has Trouble With Dean.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

CLEVELAND, July 6.—(AP)—The greatest crowd that has ever paid to witness a baseball game, a capacity gathering of nearly 85,000, is expected to jam Cleveland's municipal stadium Monday for the big parade of the all-stars in the third annual game between handpicked forces of the National and American leagues.

Anything can happen when a galaxy of such satellites of the diamond clashes, but it looks like a ripe occasion for the Nationals to turn the tide after two previous setbacks. They are fortified with a dozen of the ace performers of the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals, world champions. They look to have a distinct edge, especially in pitching, over the crippled and somewhat shell-shocked American league array.

COLOSSAL PLANT.

The huge lake-front park, resembling an oversized Yankee stadium, is in American league territory but it's really a neutral setting for a baseball spectacle that has come to rival the world series in popular national interest. The Cleveland club quit using the park after finding its vast expanse too big a handicap for even the long-range clouters. It hasn't been used otherwise for a sporting event of national caliber since Max Schmeling stopped Young Stribling in the last round of a heavyweight title bout here during the 1931 heat wave.

There appeared little doubt today that the park will be packed although most everything else, including the starting lineups, remained a matter of speculation. Only a few of the 69,000 reserved seats remained unsold, according to Walter Davis, the stadium commissioner. Bleacher seats, to the number of 10,933, will go on sale Monday morning. Standing room will be sold for about 5,000 additional fans. A corps of 1,500 ushers and police will handle the throng.

OTHER BIG ONES.

The record baseball outpouring in the Cleveland stadium numbered 80,284 on July 31, 1932, for a game between the Athletics and Indians. Of this total 76,969 were cash customers. Baseball record books list the all-time record as 85,265 for a doubleheader between the Yankees and Athletics at the Yankee stadium on September 9, 1928, but this total is shrouded in some doubt. The paid admissions that day were slightly over 70,000. On that basis an all-time record also was set for "dead heads."

Cleveland's all-star show at any rate will overshadow the spectacle offered either at Comiskey park, Chicago, in 1933 or at the Polo Grounds last year. The Ohio metropolis is making the occasion a civic holiday. It has always been a great baseball town and the home folks will give the rival "dream teams" a thunderous welcome.

Two of Cleveland's own, Mel Harder and Earl Averill, played major roles in the American league's second straight victory last year, but only one of them will be back to seek the center of the stage. Averill, the clubbing outfielder, was put out of commission recently by an exploding firecracker and will see the game only as a spectator. Harder is a member of the five-man pitching staff selected by Manager Mickey Cochrane.

ACCIDENTS COSTLY.

The accident to Averill is one of a series of mishaps which appear to have cost the Americans considerable of their best strength. Bill Dickey, star Yankee backstop, has failed to recover from recent injuries and been withdrawn from the squad. His substitute is Rollie Hemsley, hard-hitting catcher of the St. Louis Browns. Al Simmons, White Sox outfielder, and Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, have suffered such severe slumps this year that it's questionable how useful they will be. Meanwhile Hank Greenberg, setting the pace for both leagues in home runs as well as runs batted in, is strangely missing from the all-star ranks at a time when a couple of his long-range blows would be most welcome.

The pitching prospects for the Americans are equally spotty, on the basis of spring performances. Schoolboy Rowe, big Tiger right-hander, has been highly erratic but Cochrane yesterday denied reports he would be withdrawn. Tommy Bridges, big winner for Detroit so far, may get the starting assignment, with Harder as No. 2 man. The use of Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees, who was hit hard at the outset of last year's game, or Lefty Grove, of the Red Sox, probably will depend on how many left-handed hitters the Nationals send into action at one time.

Frankie Frisch, manager of the World Champion Cardinals, ran into a series of unforeseen difficulties in the direction of the National league squad when the Dean brothers staged another "rebellion" over an exhibition-game appearance at St. Paul and Van Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, turned up with a bruised finger that probably will prevent his appearing in the game.

DEAN TO START.

Frisch now plans to use Dizzy Dean as his starting pitcher however, but when Diz and Brother Paul refused even to show themselves to the crowd at St. Paul he announced that he would not have Dean on his all-star squad and named Paul Derringer as his probable first choice for flinging duties. He may switch to Hal Schumacher, right-handed "sinker ball" ace of the Giants. Schumacher has now run up 10 consecutive victories and is easily the league's pitching standout. Also available are Carl Hubbell, Giants' screwball ace who baffled the American league sluggers for three innings last year, and Paul Derringer, of the Reds.

Cochrane says he won't divulge his starting lineup until Monday but here's the probable batting order:

Helen Wills Moody Regains Tennis Championship

Helen Wills Moody yesterday regained the tennis title at Wimbledon, England, defeating her arch rival, Helen Jacobs. Mrs. Moody's triumph was most remarkable in that she had been out of competition for about two years. She is the first champion to "come back" after retirement. She is shown above in practice at Wimbledon and below as she appeared when sailing for London and the "comeback" attempt. Associated Press photos.

$25,000 Purse Offered 'Helens' For Net Match

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—(UP)—The Los Angeles county council of the American Legion today offered a $25,000 purse for a single match here between Helen Wills Moody, Wimbledon tennis champion, and her arch rival, Helen Jacobs.

The offer was cabled by Harry Myers, secretary of the county council, the messages to the pair were identical except for the name. The one to Mrs. Moody read:

"Will you play Helen Jacobs in Los Angeles for a $25,000 purse under the auspices of the American Legion?"

Myers said that the manner of distributing the purse would be left up to Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs.

"I would suppose they would split it 60-40," Myers said. "That would be entirely up to them. However, it would be quite all right if they made a winner-take-all proposition. The purse would be for the one meeting only and we would not attach any strings to either player."

MILLER MEETS FIRPO MONDAY

There will be big doings down at Key arena Monday night.

Three main matches will be given the customers at bargain prices, in addition to the usual prizes.

In the feature match, Emilio Firpo, sensational Argentine, will meet Sammy Miller, the clever Assyrian in a widely advertised "grudge bout."

In the other match of the double windup, Honey Boy Hackney, young Adonis from New Jersey, will take on Pete Mansour, of New York.

In the third bout of the evening, Jack McAdams, of Chicago and Atlanta, will meet Totem Pole, of Alaska. Tickets can be had at the Five Points Soda Company.

A capacity crowd is expected for the show.

Miss Mary Rogers Weds G. D. Brantley

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 6.—(AP)—Mary Rogers, southern women's golf champion, was married here today to George Daniel Brantley. The bridegroom is a son of the late William Gordon Brantley, who for 16 years represented the old eleventh district of Georgia in congress. Mrs. Brantley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar H. Rogers, of Jacksonville.

BOAT RACING.

PARIS, July 6.—(UP)—Jean Dupuy, of France, today won the spreckels outboard motorboat trophy, traveling 141.838 kilometers in the two-hour test. Dupuy averaged 70.910 kilometers per hour. Raymond Sommer, of France, was second. Stanley Dollar Jr., of the American steamship family, withdrew early in the race because of engine trouble. He was driving his own boat, the "Uncle Sam." Dollar was the lone American contestant. The race was held on the Seine.

HELEN JACOBS BOWS TO MOODY

Mrs. Moody poured terrific drives into the back corners.

The entire picture of the match in retrospect was of Mrs. Moody hitting out bravely, clipping the sidelines and controlling play throughout. On the other side of the net Miss Jacobs shuttled endlessly across the baseline, getting her racquet on what seemed to be impossible drives, never conceding a point until she had given every ounce of effort she could muster.

In winning the second set, Miss Jacobs proved that Mrs. Moody was vulnerable when forced to the net. The older star on these occasions lacked a finishing smash and easily was passed.

But once Mrs. Moody got her drives clipping the lines in the final set, Miss Jacobs was too busy just chopping them back to attempt any strategy.

In the first two sets when Miss Jacobs was fresh, Mrs. Moody scored only nine placements in all. But in the third set when Miss Jacobs was dead on her feet, she sent 15 past her.

'Home Town' Folks Cheer Moody's Victory.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—(AP)—The San Francisco bay area let out a western air-whoop today as Helen Wills Moody once more donned the regal robes of queen of tennis.

There were cheers too for the valiant battle of her rival, Helen Jacobs, the Berkeley miss who in the all-England championships has never been able to quite measure up to the standard set by the older of California's famous Helens.

San Francisco, Mrs. Moody's home city since her marriage, officially acclaimed her feat at Wimbledon when Mayor Angelo J. Rossi cabled: "Sincere congratulations on your victory."

One of the first to extend congratulations to the winner was Mrs. Eula Jacobs, mother of Helen Jacobs.

"I would have liked to have seen my Helen win but I am glad it was a California girl who won the championships," she said. "My daughter is just approaching the peak of her real game and she has lots of good tennis ahead."

Frederick Moody Jr., oil company salesman here and "tennis widower," abandoned customary reticence long enough to say: "I am very glad Helen won. I knew she had a fighting chance and that last-set comeback was a thriller."

Dr. C. A. Wills, father of the champion, said: "My daughter apparently has returned to her old form."

Mrs. Moody's mother, Mrs. C. A. Wills, left town before receiving word of her daughter's victory but before departing she said she was "confident of the outcome."

HATCHERY PLANS ARE DISCLOSED

Thirty fish hatcheries to supply Georgia lakes and streams was announced Saturday as the goal of the state fish and game department.

"It will take that many to keep our waters restocked," said Louis Wright, chief clerk to Commissioner Zack D. Cravey. "And with 30 hatcheries spotted over the state we can make Georgia a happy fishing ground."

The department now boasts of only five state hatcheries. Two are near Macon in Bibb county, for hatching bass and bream; a trout hatchery is located at Summerville, in Chattooga county, another for bream at Fitzgerald, in Ben Hill and Wilcox counties, and red breasts are hatched at Millen in Jenkins county.

A sixth is to be constructed at Griffin and a seventh perhaps at Waycross, Wright stated.

He said the department is waiting for the title to the old city water works property in Griffin before applying to the FERA for laborers. Griffin has been asked to raise $1,250 for materials. This project was initiated by Representative Wiley G. Milam, of Spalding county.

Wright said he was leaving Atlanta Monday on an inspection tour of Macon, Fitzgerald and Waycross. He is to look over available sites in Waycross, whose petition for a hatchery was filed by Representative Russell Twitty.

HELEN MOODY ANALYZES PLAY OF FRED PERRY

Graceful Carriage, Coordination Mark Play of English Star.

By Helen Wills Moody.

(Copyright, 1935, for North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LONDON, July 5.—(By Wireless) Judging by recent matches, it appears that Fred Perry, of England, and Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany, are at the top of the tennis world. Why? Why is it that they are better than others when all players are trying just as hard as they can to play well?

One thing that strikes the onlooker when he sees Perry and von Cramm upon the court is the fact that they are both well-proportioned, symmetrical in line and graceful in carriage. There is a certain relation between the length of the arm and the length of the leg, and so on, which, when combined with unusual power of coordination, enables them to move gracefully, easily and very rapidly.

With ability to co-ordinate well is combined a keen sense of anticipation, as well as powers of concentration for match play. Then there is strength for moving quickly and strength for enduring. And as well that mysterious something which makes some players champions with the same amount of practice that makes others able to reach only the second round.

THE COMPARISON.

There is not really a very satisfactory answer to the question, "Why is a tennis player good?" However, when there are two players who are on top it is always interesting to compare them.

Perry is certainly a stylist but he does not produce his strokes in the casual and deliberately graceful manner of most English players. Yet his game is full of grace—rather of that grace which belongs to a steel wire at high tension. It will give under tension but snap back into place immediately afterward. This quality is directly related to strength. Perry's strength, powers of endurance and fitness are undoubtedly the best on the courts today, as was demonstrated in his defeat of von Cramm in the Wimbledon finals.

Von Cramm, 26, but looking younger with his blond hair and fair complexion, would win a prize for good looks upon the center court at Wimbledon were there such a competition. But results are gauged by play and not by looks. However, von Cramm does not lose by this either. He wins on the court as well as off.

When contrasted with those of Perry, it can be seen that von Cramm takes his strokes in a more leisurely manner. The ball is hit at the top of its bound rather than on the rise. All of von Cramm's strokes are delightful to watch, as they are so smoothly done and have such good length. Deep driving is essentially the mainstay of his game. He can volley splendidly at the net, but one would never think of him as an attacking net player, as was Jean Borotra or Henri Cochet. Perry does force the net more than von Cramm and it may be here that the Englishman has the advantage.

BRITON LESS PATIENT.

Both players are exceedingly steady in an exchange of ground shots. Both are willing to wait for an opportune moment in which to try for the winning stroke, but the Briton is less patient than von Cramm. It is here that the deliberateness which is popularly thought a German characteristic is in evidence in the game of von Cramm.

Both players are alike in that they play tennis the year around and give it their full attention. Although playing in a large number of tournaments, they have been able to keep up their keenness for the game. Unlike them is Jack Crawford, of Australia, who, because of too much match play, has not been able this season to do his game justice.

It is possible that both Perry and von Cramm may take part in the United States tennis championships in September at Forest Hills, L. I. If they do, their presence will add a great deal of color to our tournament. The English player is well known to followers of tennis in America but von Cramm has never been in the United States.

As a tennis player, von Cramm may well be taken as a model of perfection. Modest and handsome, strong yet graceful, he combines with these beautiful tennis and perfect court manners. He would be a welcome figure on our courts and it is hoped he will make the trip.

THE BIG SIX

After a day's absence Charley Gehringer climbed back into the seven-man "Big Six" yesterday when he got two hits on two official times at bat. That raised his average four points to .345, gave him second place among the American league leaders and forced his teammate, Pete Fox, out of the sextet.

Bob Johnson picked up two points with two blows in three times up; Bill Terry held his .341 mark while all others lost ground.

The standing:

Shoeless Golfer Finds 'Em on Caddy

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The fondness of Representative Lambertson, of Kansas, for golf without shoes has caused him some uneasy moments.

The Kansan, as is his custom, parked his shoes near the first tee before starting a round with his golfing cronies. Representatives Carlson and Hope, both of Kansas, and Clif Stratton, newspaper correspondent. Later he returned for the shoes. To his apparent chagrin, they had vanished.

"Lose your shoes, mister?" shouted a caddy, finally.

Told that his shoes were very much lost, the caddy agreed to "find them." Instead of waiting for the caddy to return, however, Lambertson followed and found him taking off "his" shoes.

"They fit me just fine, too," said the caddy, ruefully.

Checker-Bits.

The Atlanta Cheeker Club organized and elected officers at the initial meeting held last Monday night at 91 North avenue, N. W. The officers elected were as follows: President, Paul Robertson; vice president, Joe Wright; secretary, Fred Long.

Due to the fact that all of the business matters were not handled at the first meeting, it was decided to have another business meeting next Tuesday night, July 9, at 8 o'clock to take care of this unfinished business, and any new members at this meeting will be considered as "charter members." The meeting will be held at the above address, and those planning to join in the near future are urged to do so at this meeting, so that the club can get off to a good start.

This game was played by correspondence between Perry Fain, of Atco, Ga., and J. Marshall, of London, England. Mr. Fain played the black and the notes are by the editor.

GAME NO. 10.

WEST END CLUB SPONSORS SHOOT

The West End Gun Club will hold its monthly silver trophy shoot at the club skeet fields today, with the program getting under way at 9 o'clock and continuing all day.

A special invitation is extended to all members and friends, also any sportsmen who have never shot skeet and would be interested in trying this sport. Instruction will be gladly furnished free of charge for all of those desiring to shoot for the first time.

The regular competitive prize program will consist of the choice of either a silver loving cup or a silver goblet, and the actual high gun with handicap for the day's program will be awarded the prize.

New averages will be posted at the club on all shooters, and handicaps will be based on these averages.

A special feature has been arranged for the afternoon's program in a "miss and out shoot," which will be open to all shooters present, at no extra fee, and the winner will receive a handsome silver belt buckle with the club's emblem and name engraved.

All Class "A" shooters are urged to attend the afternoon program, as an effort will be made to designate the five shooters that will compose the club's team in the southern states' skeet championship in Birmingham. Place on this team will be awarded on best competitive scores.

Rich's Is Winner In Softball Play

The Mirror's softball team defeated Rich's by a score of 9 to 3. The hitting of Wade and Richardson was the feature of the game, Wade getting two home runs and Richardson one. The pitching of Richardson was too good for the Rich boys, allowing them only three hits.

PEACOCK WINS 100-METER RUN

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., July 6. (AP)—Eulace Peacock, Temple University star who startled the track world with a double victory over Jesse Owens Thursday, demonstrated today it was no fluke when he flashed home in front of the Ohio State negro in the 100-meter dash, feature of the Buffalo, N. Y., Police Club games, in a driving finish.

Peacock allowed Owens to set the pace for most of the distance and then flashed to the front in the final 25 yards, crossing the finish line going away with a burst of speed. The Temple sophomore's time was 10.5 seconds, three-tenths of a second slower than the time he set Thursday at Lincoln, Neb., in defeating Owens.

Isaac Meadows, of Michigan State, was a bad third.

Eddie O'Brien, of Syracuse University, smashed the district record for 400 meters in a special event, doing the distance in 50 seconds, four seconds better than the old mark. Carl Roesch, Buffalo Y. M. C. A. star, offered O'Brien his only opposition, but faded in the stretch.

Bob Sawyer, captain-elect of the Pennsylvania track team, toppled another district record in a special 200-meter race, defeating Meadows, the Michigan State entry. Sawyer's time was :22.8. The old mark was :23.2

Joe McCluskey, former Fordham star, wilted in a special 1,000-meter race after holding the lead nearly all the way, and Joe Mangan, former Cornellian running for the N. Y. A. C., romped home in 2:33.3.

CITY NET MEET OPENS MONDAY AT GRANT PARK

Fifty-One Municipal Players Enter First Public Parks Play.

By Melvin Pazol.

Fifty-one players have entered Atlanta's first public parks tennis tournament which begins at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Grant Park courts. Two or three of the winning players will receive free trips to New Orleans to compete in the national public parks finals.

A bracket for 64 players has been drawn up, with eight players seeded. They are: Preston Chambers, Louis Enloe, Marion Reese, Malcolm Manley, Bill Gillespie, Ben Hargrove, Tom Tumlin and Bud Lindsay.

Enloe, Hughes, Buffington, Reese and Bradshaw drew byes in the top bracket. Chambers, Campbell, Jones, Ray, Gillespie, McConnell, Rawizer and Manley were given byes in the lower bracket.

SEEK NEW PLAYERS.

The Atlanta Lawn Tennis Association, which is sponsoring the meet here, states that the object is to bring out unheralded players, who have been shying away from tourney competition. With that in view, all members of tennis clubs have been made ineligible. A large entry of "unknowns" has been the reward of the committee.

Play in the tournament will continue all week, with the semi-final and final rounds scheduled at the Biltmore courts for Friday and Saturday. There will be a small admission charge for the last two days to raise funds to send the winners to New Orleans. If receipts are enough to cover the expense, three men will be sent down, othrwise only two will go.

Last year's winners in the national tournament are seeded for play this year. They rank in the following order: Bernard Welsh, Washington; Arnold Simon, Louisville; William Schommer, Minneapolis; Ted Drews, St. Louis; Jeff Millman, Los Angeles; Dooley Mitchell, Washington; Ralph McEldenny, Washington; Ernest Koslan, New York; Scott Rexlinger, Chicago, and Gene Quinn, Chicago.

LAST YEAR'S WINNERS.

Last year's doubles winners who are seeded first at New Orleans this year are Charles Britzius and William Schommer, Minneapolis. Bernard Welsh and Ralph McEldenny, runners-up, are seeded second.

GIANT HURLER SUFFERS INJURY

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Fred Fitzsimmons, veteran right-handed hurler, may be lost to the New York Giants for a month as the result of a chipped bone in his right elbow.

An X-ray, taken this morning, revealed the chipped bone. The plates were to be read again this afternoon. If it is fully established that it is a bone fracture, Fitz will submit to a surgical operation.

Athens To Hold Open Golf Meet

ATHENS, Ga., July 6.—(AP)—Announcement was made today that the annual open golf tournament of the Athens Country Club will be staged Wednesday and Thursday, August 7 and 8.

The tournament will be held over the Donald Ross course, scene last spring of the first annual southern intercollegiate meet. A. G. Dudley, one of the state's outstanding golf enthusiasts, is president of the club and announced the course in good condition.

An entrance fee of $3 will be charged. Prizes will be given as follows: Team score, winners and runners-up in each flight, medalist and consolation in first four flights.

Each flight will be made up of eight players. The qualifying round to determine the various flights will be played Wednesday morning, with the finals in each flight scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

LOVES BASEBALL.

PLAINVILLE, Conn., July 6.—(AP) Freddie Miller sure loves his baseball. He and Viola Olson were married today by the Rev. J. Roy Wilkerson and a few hours later the bridegroom stepped to the mound for a local independent nine. Tomorrow he will play with a Bristol team. The honeymoon will begin Monday.

City League

The strong Warren nine will play Miller Service at Almand park at 3 p. m. This will be the feature game of the Cityleague for today.

Goodyear Service will play the Feds at the prison. Royal Typewriter and Johnson Motor Express should also prove to be an interesting game. A. & A. Cleaners will tackle Decatur Tire & Battery Company at Grant park.

Bill McWilliams Seeks Third State Golf Crown

Many Atlantans To Compete at Rome; Match Play Begins Wednesday.

By Roy White.

Determined to return Georgia's amateur golf championship back to Atlanta, after an absence of two years, more than 40 of the city's outstanding players are entered in the annual tournament this week on the Coosa Country Club course at Rome, Ga.

Billy McWilliams, a member of the Coosa Club, is the defending champion and has an excellent chance to set a new record of three successive wins. McWilliams, Charlie Yates and Gene Cook have won the title twice in succession, but no player has ever turned the trick three times in a row. McWilliams won the crown two years ago at Thomasville and last year on the No. 1 East Lake course.

Heading the group of Atlanta challengers will be Julius Hughes, former city amateur and open champion and runner up to McWilliams last year, Dan Sage Jr., Bill Terrell, Johnny Owens, Atlanta's open champion; Dave and Charlie Black, two former state champions, and Crawford and Brown Rainwater.

BROWN ENTERED.

Others entered from the Gate City include James (Kid) Brown, young Tech High star, who went to the quarter-finals in the Thomasville invitation tourney last week and who won second amateur prize at the Southeastern P. G. A. meet in Macon recently; R. J. Bicknell, runner-up to Frank Ridley last year in the city amateur tourney; Charles Dannals, John Grant, Harvey Hill, Jim Ison, Ike Osbun, Alton Irby, Bobby Dodd, L. R. Hunter, Keith Conway, Morton Campbell Jr., Cliff Eley, Pete Peters, T. L. Johnson, Stanley Holditch, Bobby Chambers, Veazy Rainwater Sr., Jack Bothamley Jr., Snap McCord, Jimmy Wilson and Dodge Mentzer.

There are others from the various private and municipal clubs who are likely to enter, but who could not be reached last night for a confirmation of their entry.

The entry list will not close until late Tuesday, in time for 18 holes to be played before dark and late entries may be filed with the starter at the first tee.

PRACTICE TODAY.

Practice rounds will be permitted today and Monday and a large group of the Atlanta entries will drive up today and play a round this afternoon. Another group is planning to practice Monday.

The qualifying round will be played over the 18-hole route Tuesday with match play scheduled to open Wednesday. One round will be played on Thursday with the quarter and semi-finals scheduled for Friday.

There will be divisions of 32 each and the winning and losing 16 players in each group will form flights. Veazy Rainwater Sr., former state winner, is president of the Georgia Amateur Golf Association, sponsors of the tournament, and will be assisted by other members of the association together with officials of the Rome course.

George P. Byrd is president of the Coosa Club and members of the tourney committee include Bob Wyatt, T. S. Sloan and George P. Watts.

MEETING TUESDAY.

The annual meeting of the Georgia Golf Association will be held at the Coosa Club Tuesday night, following the completion of the qualifying rounds. The election of officers and appointment of a committee to select a site and dates for the 1936 tourney will feature the meeting.

It is the first time in more than a dozen years that the tourney has been held north of Atlanta and the entry list is expected to be much larger than last year. Rome is within easy reach of almost every city in the northern part of the state and Atlanta entries can drive to and from the tourney each day, without having to stay over in Rome each night.

The General Forrest, Greystone and Third Avenue hotels in Rome have made special rates for the week and will co-operate with the Coosa officials in providing entertainment during the week.

Municipal Caddies Play This Week.

A city-wide caddy tournament, open to all municipal caddies, will be played this week on the James L. Key course. There will be no green fee and the entry fee will be 50 cents.

The tournament is being sponsored by Jeff Modie, the club professional, and trophies and prizes will be given to the winner and runner-up in each flight. There will also be a prize for the medalist.

There will be as many flights as necessary to take care of every entry and the matches will be played in the mornings.

The qualifying round will be played Monday, with match play scheduled for the remainder of the week.

'Colonel' Bob Cards a 73

Colonel R. P. Jones, Bobby's father, turned in the best round of his career Saturday on the No. 1 East Lake course with a 73, two strokes over par. He played with Tess Bradshaw, E. A. Thornwell and P. G. Hanahan.

And the colonel added another victory to his string in a marathon duel with Bradshaw.

Jones' card:

Par out	434	453	445	—36
Jones out	534	553	435	—37
Par in	434	445	443	—35—36—71
Jones in	434	444	454	—36—37—73

Evans Cards Ace At Highlands.

HIGHLANDS, N. C., July 6.—John S. Evans, Montgomery, Ala., scored a hole-in-one, on the 18th green for the second ace of the season. Evans played with Jake Sullivan and Billy Williams and had a par-equalling 70 for the 18 holes. It was the first ace for the Montgomery player.

Evans used a No. 6 iron for the 185-yard hole and the ball hit a few feet away from the cup and rolled in. The 18th hole is guarded by a lake in front and out of bounds to the left and back of the green. Evans went two over par on the first nine and came back two under par on the back nine.

Scott Hudson Jr., Atlanta, carded the lowest score of the season when he was two strokes under par several days ago. Hudson played in a foursome with Alton Irby, Horace Wright, Macon, Ga., and Bobby Dodd, backfield coach of the Georgia Tech football team. Dodd came second with a 76, Irby had a 79 and Wright was one stroke back at 80.

Miss Harriet Grant, Atlanta, and Bobby Hodgson, Athens, Ga., won a mixed foursome play with a best ball of 67.

Berrien Moore Jr. Cards a 67.

Berrien Moore Jr., with a 67, five strokes under par, took the lead Saturday in qualifying for the annual East Lake Club handicap tournament. Moore played on the No. 2 course with Scott Hudson Jr., L. R. Hunter and L. J. Hanna.

Moore's 67 was a gross score, and with handicap strokes subtracted, he most likely will win medal honor. Hunter's 72 gave him second place, with Morton Campbell Jr., Scott Hudson Jr., and J. C. Malone following close behind.

Moore's card:

Par—out	543	444	435	—36
Moore—out	443	548	334	—33
Par—in	444	534	534	—36—36—72

M. Benton beat J. W. Lundeen, 4-3.

Stephenson, McLarin Win at Capital City.

L. M. Stephenson and W. S. McLarin advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Governing Board trophy tournament Saturday on the Capital City course. Stephenson won by default over Charlie Black Jr. and McLarin eliminated Dr. Harry Rogers, 1 up. The other quarter-finals matches will be played this afternoon.

In the regular Saturday afternoon blind bogey at Capital City, L. M. Stephenson, S. B. Ives, T. C. Upshaw and N. G. Bowlby shared first prize.

The results:

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

L. M. Stephenson won from Charlie Black by default.

W. S. McLarin beat Dr. Harry Rogers, 1 up.

SECOND FLIGHT.

R. P. McLarty beat Blair Foster, 3-2.
George Van Hart beat J. H. Kenealla, 2 up.
N. G. Bowlby beat Frank Carter, 3-2.

THIRD FLIGHT.

A. R. Hedeman beat John Slaton Jr., 5-3.
George Reed beat W. Q. Slaughter, 3-1.
J. N. Steas beat Tom Pitts, 2-1.

Charlie Edwards Leads At West End.

Charlie Edwards, with a 78, took the lead Saturday in the qualifying rounds for a flight tournament for members of the West End Club. A. J. Cochran, with an 80, holds second place with W. D. Tumlin and C. E. Betsill tied for third place with 84's.

The qualifying will end with this afternoon's play, after which match play will open Monday. One week will be given over to each round of play and handicaps will not apply.

Five in Tie For Bogey Prize.

Five Druid Hills golfers, R. S. Peacock, L. D. McMath, Harold Carson, Dodge Mentzer and John Bothamley Sr., divided top prize Saturday in a blind bogey at Druid Hills. The winning score was 79.

Julius Hughes won individual honor at Druid Hills with a 72. It was his sixth round in preparation for the state tournament this week at Rome, and in those six rounds Hughes has been over par only four times.

C. M. Bowden also had a good card, a 73, Saturday afternoon.

Hughes, Bowden and Henry Young are entered in the state tourney and will go to Rome Monday for a practice round.

SWIM TRYOUTS SET FOR JULY 14

A tryout for the Atlanta swimming team, to represent this city in the coming state meet at the Venetian Country Club pool on July 27 and 28, and the Southeastern A. A. U. meet on August 17 and 18, will be held next Sunday, July 14, at the Venetian pool. Anyone wishing to try for this team should notify Walter Baker, or Virginia Ashe Hill at Dearborn 2831.

The team will be made up entirely of native Atlantans. This team will be coached after the tryout by Virginia Ashe Hill, Red Holleman, Scrappy O'Sullivan and Bill Murray, all of whom have been southeastern champions at one time or another. Anyone wishing to practice for the trials may do so at the Venetian pool on Tuesday afternoon.

Forty entries have been received for the state meet, and more than a hundred are expected. Some of those entered are Beverley Rogers, 1934 state diving champion; the three Holbrook sisters, of Fort McPherson, Doris, Joan and Annette. Joan won the 50-yard breaststroke event in the southeastern meet last year. Some of the divers are Doyle Butler, G. I. A. A. champion; Wesley Heston, city champion, and Grady Clay, ex-high school champion. Bob White, state champion in junior freestyle, is also entered.

The officials for Sunday's tryout will include W. A. Alexander, George Griffin and the coaches already named. A small charge will be made for spectators.

CRACKERS

Hill going to third. Lipscomb was called out on strikes, and Harris hit into a double play, Reeves to Mihalic to Remerenko.

LOOKOUTS TIE IT.

The Lookouts knotted the count in the sixth. With one down, Jackson got a ground single to right. Lewis ripped a hot single through the box, Jackson going to third and scoring when Hamel made a bad throw which got past Hill. Lewis went to third on the play and scored when Remerenko hit one past Lipscomb, who almost got the ball. Marion hit into a double play.

In the tenth, Mihalic homered in the left stands with one away.

In the first inning of the second James singled, was thrown out at second on a pitch-out hit and run, but Hamel walked and scored on Hill's single to right and Hooks' long fly. Hill was out stealing for the third out.

The Crackers added one more in the fourth. Hill singled through the box, Hooks sacrificed and Lipscomb looped a hit to short center, scoring Hill and when Lanahan deflected the throw-in, Lipscomb went to second. Harris hit to Reeves, who trapped Lipscomb off third and during the chase Harris went to second, Mihalic tagging him out and then getting Lipscomb for a double play.

MIHALIC SCORES.

Chattanooga got one back in the sixth. With two gone, Mihalic singled to left. Celebrating his wedding, Maxcy, who went to right for Miles, larruped a double to deep left center, scoring Mihalic. Jackson singled off Lipscomb's glove, Maxcy stopping at third for some unexplainable reason. He could have scored. Petty was coaching. Lewis grounded out.

The Crackers added another in the seventh on Palmisano's single and Chatham's double, both after Harris singled and was out trying to go to second on the overthrow of first.

CONVERSE BEATS PATE FOR TITLE

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 6.—(AP) George Converse, of Valdosta, won his third Piney Woods golf championship at the Glenhaven Country Club course today by defeating Pat Pate, of Thomasville, the tournament medalist, 5 and 4.

Converse was six up at the end of the first 18 holes today and increased his lead in the afternoon round as Pate continued to have difficulty with his putter.

Both played erratically and rain added to their troubles in the final round. Converse needed a 39 on the first nine this afternoon while Pate took a 42.

Daugherty McKey, of Valdosta, defeated B. K. White, of Tallahassee, in the consolation finals of the championship flight.

Another Valdosta entry, Bill Goodloe, won the first-flight final from O. E. Hay Jr., of Thomasville, and Bill Estaver, of Jacksonville, was the first-flight consolation winner.

Victors in other rounds included:

Marietta Is Winner Over Canton, 6 to 2

MARIETTA, Ga., July 6.—Behind the steady pitching of Leslie Jiles, Marietta's revamped team won their first game in the second half of the Kennesaw league split season from Canton by a score of 6 to 2 here today. The Cantonites were off to an early lead with tallies in the second and sixth innings. The fireworks started in the last half of the sixth when McEntyre smacked out a double to bring in two runs for Marietta. In the lucky seventh Carpenter was driven from the mound by a hit barrage which netted four more runs for Marietta.

McEntyre and Jiles were best for the winners with three for four each.

ment last week. The Atlanta youngster staged a furious battle in the first set, but went down, 9-7, and Coen, relying on a strong backhand, finished the match with a 6-3 victory in the second set.

Katherine Wolf, of Elkhart, Ind., three times winner of the women's title, defeated Lila Porter, of Mobile, Ala., the surprise player in the tournament, 6-1, 6-3, to reach the finals. She will meet Eunice Dean, of Fort Worth, Texas, who eliminated Helen Fulton, Winnetka, Ill., 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Reese didn't have to lift a racquet in gaining the final four. His opponent, 18-year-old Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla.—the tournament "dark horse"—failed to appear on the South Shore Country Club's courts at 10 a. m. and the match was awarded to Reese.

After getting away to a wobbly start, Hendrix steadied in the second and third sets to defeat Lewis Carson, another Shanghai entry, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, in the quarter-finals.

HAYES IS SENT TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The Washington Senators have obtained Right-Handed Pitcher J. Millard Hayes from Chattanooga of the Southern association.

He will report Sunday. He won three and lost five during the six weeks he was with Chattanooga.

The Senators also have obtained waivers from all major league clubs on Pitchers Bob Burke and Ed Linke and it is probable that one of the pair will be shipped to Chattanooga. The Dixie club has asked for Linke.

Schmeling Bout Holds Spotlight

BERLIN, July 6.—(AP)—Important nazi officials canceled other engagements today in order that tomorrow's heavyweight fight between Max Schmeling and Paulino Uzcudun may be the center of national interest.

Schmeling rules a 5-to-1 favorite. He appeared tonight to be in top form. Max is confident he'll spoil Paulino's claim of never having been knocked off his feet in the ring.

Max indicated he is looking to America to furnish his next opponent whether it be James J. Braddock, the heavyweight champion, or Joe Louis, the negro sensation.

Whittington Shuts Out Roswell With One Hit

First Christian Unbeaten; Southern Railway Pulls Triple Play; Fuller Gives 3 Hits.

First Christian remains undefeated in the Southern league as it beat Roswell, 13 to 0, at Roswell Saturday. Red Whittington was the star of the game as he gave up but one hit and fanned seven. Lefty Sypert, First Christian manager, led the hitting with three for four. Dilliard was the only Roswell man to hit.

First Christian and Ponce de Leon Methodist are tied for the league lead with four wins each. Ponce de Leon tied for the first-half championship with Inman Park Baptist.

SCOTTDALE LOSES.

Chattahoochee won from Scottdale, 6 to 4, in a good game at Whittier Mills Saturday. The hitting of Price and Walraven featured the batting, while Edwards, shortstop for Chattahoochee, made a nice running catch for the third out in the seventh inning when three men were on bases. Tiny Osborne and his son pitched for Chattahoochee.

HOLC WINS.

HOLC scored three runs in the seventh inning to win over Federal Annex, 7 to 5, and raise their percentage mark to .500 in the second half. Johnson collected the only extra base hit of the game with a double. Miller and Potter each collected three hits to lead the stick work. Fowler allowed five hits.

BAKERIES, STEEL PLAY FOR TITLE

American Bakeries and Atlantic Steel, who fought to a tie at the close of the first half in the Atlanta Commercial Baseball league, will meet at Ponce de Leon park Friday night at 8:30 o'clock in the first of a three-game series for the first-half flag.

The teams ended the first half with one loss each out of 10 games. During the schedule to date Atlantic Steel has beaten the Bakeries twice, but the Bakeries claim that they have not yet faced the Steelmen with their full strength.

Probably no other amateur teams in Atlanta has as many former professional men on the club as there are on the roster of the two teams. Atlantic Steel has seven men batting above .300 and the Bakeries six. Smithwick, Bakeries pitcher, is leading the league with .596, and Cole, of Steel Plant, is second with .556.

R. C. Hicks is manager of American Bakeries and C. L. McGowan is the Atlantic Steel manager.

BUDGE, ALLISON NAMED ON TEAM

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—It was learned from authoritative sources today that Donald Budge and Wilmer Allison would represent the United States in the Davis cup interzone singles finals against either Germany or Czechoslovakia two weeks hence. The same sources said that Allison and John Van Ryn would be the American doubles combination.

The selection of Budge was believed to have been based on his fine showing in the All-England championships when he outshone Sidney Wood, of New York.

VAUGHAN HOLDS NATIONAL LEAD; MEDWICK CLIMBS

Parmelee and Schumacher Set Pitching Pace for Giants.

Arky Vaughan's three weeks absence from the Pittsburgh lineup apparently had no ill effect on his batting eye.

Leaving Joe Medwick and other National leaguers a .400 average to shoot at during the time he was nursing a charley horse, Vaughan a week ago returned to the Pirate batting order and raised it to .403.

Vaughan selected the Fourth of July to celebrate the increasing of his average, but for the entire week since his return, he made 11 hits in 25 times at bat, including two hits for two bases each.

Medwick took advantage of Vaughn's absence and grabbed the lead in hits with 104, which made him the first National league batter to get 100 blows. He also leads in total bases, 164. Pepper Martin, also a Cardinal, ran his runs scored total up to 60.

Baxter Jordan, Braves' first sacker, hit safely in 20 consecutive games before he was stopped by Curt Davis of the Phillies on June 29.

LeRoy Parmelee and Hal Schumacher are one-two in the pitching records. Parmelee won one game and Schumacher two for the Giants the past week, putting the former's record at nine and one for a percentage of .900, while Schumacher's record is 12 and 2 for .857. Schumacher has won nine straight.

Roy Henshaw, Chicago midget southpaw, knocked on the door of baseball's hall of fame on June 28, but was denied admittance when one of his outfielders missed a fly ball from a Pittsburgh bat in one of the late innings. Ray Benge, of Brooklyn, Bill Hallahan, of St. Louis, and Paul Derringer, of Cincinnati, had three-hit games. Benge shut out Boston July 2, Hallahan blanked Pittsburgh the same day, and on July 3 Derringer held the Cubs to three hits and three runs in ten innings, winning by 4 to 3.

Include Games of Thursday, July 4.

Chet Gardner To Race Again Today

A resumption of the speed feud between Chester Gardner, track record holder, and Ken Fowler, winner of the Fourth of July main event, will feature the A. A. A. auto race program at Lakewood this afternoon.

Gardner thrilled the 30,000 fans attending the Fourth races in a miraculous escape from death, and has announced he is out Sunday to trim Fowler. He is shown here with his mechanic in his car at Indianapolis.

VOLS 5; SMOKIES 4.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 6.—Sharkey Eiland marked up his twelfth victory of the season today as the Vols turned back Knoxville's Smokies, 5 to 4.

The game turned out to be a battle of right fielders. George Gerken, of the Smokies, batted in three runs and scored one himself. Lance Richbourg came through with three doubles and a single.

BARONS 6; TRAVELERS 5.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 6.—A home run by Eddie Moore, rookie Baron shortstop, gave the Birmingham club a 6-to-5 victory over Little Rock today, their second straight in the current series. The Barons batted Mustaikis out in the seventh to come from behind, and then Moore's clout cinched it, after the Travelers had tied it up in their half of the eighth.

GARDNER MEETS FOWLER TODAY

Race fans of the south today turn toward the Lakewood mile oval for a resumption of the speed feud between Chester Gardner, track record holder, and Ken Fowler, rising young star in the speedway firmament.

Although management of the A.A.A. Sunday speed program has added an event for Georgia drivers and promises several other novel features in addition to a competitive program featuring stellar pilots, resumption of the Gardner vs. Fowler battle promises to hold the spotlight of attention.

Around 30,000 fans saw Fowler and Gardner divide honors during a Fourth of July program replete with thrills and marred by the death of Ward Hobbs, Jacksonville racer making his debut in big time dirt track racing circles.

The record crowd at Lakewood witnessed Gardner's miraculous escape from death as he attempted to turn the tide of defeat and regain an early lead in the feature event, only to skid from the track in "Danger Curve" and turn turtle, emerging unscathed.

BIG CROWD.

This same crowd cheered as Ken Fowler, Gardner's speedway nemesis, sped on to an easy victory. The same is expected back on hand today to see what happens when Gardner and Fowler again are top stars of a field of notable drivers.

Indications that the Gardner-Fowler duel may be forced into a three-cornered fight for first laurels Sunday were forthcoming Saturday from the speed camp of Bill Ambler, owner of the car driven by Vern Orenduff, dapper Detroit demon. Not satisfied with the manner in which Brother John Ambler's car outdistanced his own mount Thursday, Bill and Orenduff have been working long hours installing a new device expected to make the No. 8 entry considerably faster.

Following is a list of drivers, giving their car numbers, name, make of car and their home:

17. Chet Gardner, Miller, Long Beach, Cal.
10. Ken Fowler, Ambler, Dayton, Ohio.
8. Vern Orenduff, Ambler, Detroit.
30. Milt Marion, Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.

Black Crackers Play Colored Pels Today

Atlanta's Black Crackers will play the New Orleans Black Pels at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park in the first of a three-game series. The other games will be played Monday and Tuesday afternoons at the same time.

The Black Pelicans have one of the strongest teams in the Southern Colored league and won two out of three games from the Atlanta team in New Orleans.

The Crackers have been strengthened since the New Orleans trip.

Raines and Strack Meet Wednesday

Wrestling comes back to Ponce de Leon park Wednesday night after a two-week interval which witnessed the startling overthrow of Jim Londos, world's heavyweight champion for more than five years, by Danno O'Mahoney, in Boston. Londos wrestled one of his last matches as champion here two weeks ago, when he was "all out" to gain a draw with Pete Sauer, perennial contender for the crown.

This week Henry Weber offers a well-balanced card of six heavies, with Dick Raines, the Canadian colossus, pitted against Charlie Strack, former Olympic champion, in the main go. Joe Cox, the wild man from Kansas City, will battle Roland Kirchmeyer, Oklahoma cowboy, in the semi-final match, one hour limit, while George Koverly, Czechoslovakian title-holder, engages Richard Stahl, German heavyweight, who will be making his debut here, in the 30-minute opener.

Raines has been traveling at a fast clip of late, and his bout with Joe Cox here some weeks ago was one of the most sensational Atlanta fans have ever witnessed. On the last card, the Canadian grappler, after finishing one tussle, re-entered the ring later in the evening and demanded that he be allowed to grapple with Orville Brown, his originally scheduled opponent. Brown had just finished a match, but accepted Raines' challenge, and the two staged a furious bout which ended just under an hour with a double knockout.

Rough and tough as Raines is, he will meet a worthy foeman in Strack, who hasn't shown in Atlanta in some time. Charlie weighs the same as Raines, 230 pounds, and is a quiet, deliberate and effective wrestler, just the opposite of the raging Canadian, who is given to fits of inartistic temperament. Strack is the more experienced of the two, also, and rates at least an even chance.

If Cox can avoid disqualification, which develops in about 50 per cent of his matches, the Missourian, former Red Demon, should make things plenty interesting for Kirchmeyer. The latter is a clean wrestler, fast and resourceful, with a deadly scissors hold, but it is doubtful if he can stand up under the punishment Cox is certain to inflict.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont Hatterx, and Matchmaker Weber announces that ladies with paid escorts will again be admitted free to any seat in the park.

The Constitution's News Review of the Week's Happenings

Washington

While the senate, which is usually a battleground for the legislative and executive branches of the government, accepted the President's "death clause" in the utility control bill, the house kicked over the traces.

In its rebellion against the insistent demands of President Roosevelt that the "death clause" was the crux of the utility legislation, the house struck it out by a record vote of 323 to 81. Republicans were delighted, as most of them have asserted that republicans elected Mr. Roosevelt and that they depended on democrats to defeat him.

So great was the pressure put on the house by both the utilities and the President, that a flare-up by Representative Brewster, of Maine, led to the authorization of an investigation. This action grew out of charges by Representative Brewster, republican, that Thomas Corcoran, RFC attorney who helped draft the utilities measure, had warned that the public works project in his district for harnessing the tide of Passamaquoddy bay would be halted unless he voted for the "death clause." Representative Moran, democrat, Maine, told the house that Brewster had been assigned to handle "certain legal aspects" of the tide project. Moran added that Corcoran told him that the only thing he said to Brewster was that if Brewster "felt as he did about the death sentence," then "he could not be trusted to proceed with the 'Quoddy legal work."

According to some commentators, the house bill is drastic enough without the "death clause," and the utility control bill is in reality a victory for the White House. But the President emphasized so emphatically the necessity for the "death clause" that, as Arthur Krock said, Mr. Roosevelt "snatched defeat from the jaws of victory."

The investigation will probably be inaugurated Monday, just about the time the utility control bill goes to conference with the senate. It is unlikely the "death clause" will survive, and opinion is that the President may not veto the bill as passed.

Labor and Banking

The President signed the labor disputes bill of Senator Robert Wagner. It guarantees to labor the right to organize and bargain collectively. Powers of mediation will rest with the Department of Labor.

The long-discussed self-regulation of industry is in the making anew. The administration gave to the Federal Trade Commission full authority to approve voluntary codes under federal aegis.

Attorney-General Cummings refused an opinion on the constitutionality of the coal stabilization bill, now before the house. He advised congress to pass it, leaving its legality up to the supreme court.

The senate subcommittee reported out an omnibus banking bill drastically different from the measure offered by the administration. Here was seen the handicraft of Carter Glass, of Virginia, who was opposed to the White House measure with its provision for a strong central bank.

The fight over the banking bill has been waged on Title II. This calls for reorganization of the Federal Reserve System. Title II was thoroughly rewritten. But it was likely the White House would accept the revised measure without further fight. Consequently, quick passage was looked for. The measure already has been passed by the house.

That the administration would accept the measure as it now stands was evidenced in the statement of Marriner S. Eccles, author of the original bill and governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

It is, he said, "a distinct advance in the direction of centralized responsibility and authority for the exercise of monetary powers."

Congressional leaders, after conferences at the White House, were still undetermined on the exact desires of the President concerning the "tax-the-wealth" bill. This uncertainty was confined, however, to the amount of tax rates.

The leaders were in concurrence on these points: That the administration wants passage during this session; and that rates might be increased on the smaller incomes to raise additional revenue.

With the increased deficit, this additional revenue is highly necessary. The deficit of the current administration, however, is far below what the White House had originally set aside for its recovery expenditures.

Federal Largesse

Georgia's $10,256,603 initial program under the Works Progress Administration, including $4,599,079 for sewers and sewage disposal plants in Atlanta, was announced by the National Emergency Council.

President Roosevelt already had approved the program, which officials say proposed to employ 21,983 persons on 881 projects.

The total estimated cost of the projects was $13,569,231, of which the sponsors will be expected to contribute $3,312,268.

Next to the Atlanta sewerage system in cost was the improvement of the Atlanta airport for which $326,590 was allotted.

Atlanta will be expected to contribute $1,379,139 toward the sewage work and add $17,964 to the airport allotment.

Among other important items were renovation of quarters at Fort Benning, $178,800, with local contribution of $15,000; Richmond county malarial drainage, $34,980; Macon, Ga., excavation of Indian mounds, $155,636.

Bibb county was allotted $26,028 for sanitation, with another $31,920 to be contributed locally. Augusta will get $34,980 outright for reconstruction of its sewage canal and another allocation for levee work. A sum of $29,016 was stipulated for sanitation in DeKalb county, to be augmented by a $17,700 participation by the sponsors.

Pine Valley general farm work will get $24,960.

Other projects, most of which will require some local participation, included Atlanta school repairs and equipment, $99,476; Brunswick clubhouse and golf course, $20,988; Atlanta, repairing army building, $51,200, and completing colored clinic, $28,993.

Muscogee county gets $30,600 for malaria drainage; Albany, $38,686 for sewers.

Atlanta, $66,280 for building repairs and equipment; Savannah, $20,821 for negro school improvement, and Macon, $107,338 for general improvement and another $109,524 for landscaping city park.

The various projects listed were printed in detail in The Constitution of Saturday, and occupied nearly a full page.

Alaska Investigator

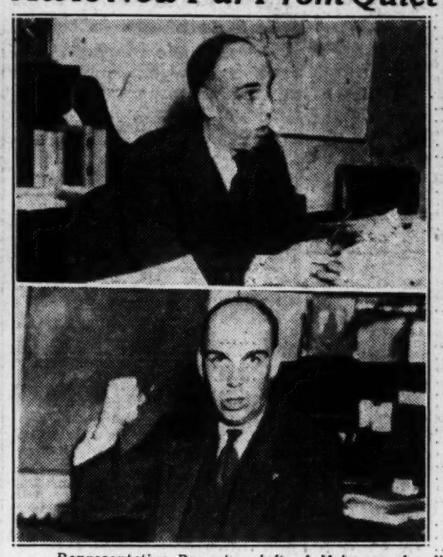

S. R. Fuller, of New York, commander in the naval supply corps during the war, named by Harry L. Hopkins to go to Alaska and inspect the government's colonization project, Matanuska, which recently has been under senatorial fire.

Tax Leaders After Their Conference With President---All Is Now Far From Quiet Along Passamaquoddy Bay

Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee which initiates tax revenue legislation, and members of the subcommittee of that body shown as they left the White House in Washington July 4 after a two-hour conference with President Roosevelt. Left to right, Representative Vinson, democrat, Kentucky; Representative Hill, democrat, Washington; Representative Cooper, democrat, Tennessee; Doughton, Charles West, the White House legislative liaison man; Representative Cullen, democrat, New York, and L. H. Parker, chief of staff of joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation.

Representative Brewster, left of Maine, as he discussed the fireworks he set off on the floor of the house when he charged that Thomas Corcoran, RFC attorney, had threatened to stop work on the Passamaquoddy dam project in Brewster's district if he did not support the "death clause" in the utility control bill. Vice President Garner is shown pressing a button which started real fireworks at 'Quoddy bay. It was the opening blast of the work. Meantime, the repercussion of Representative Brewster's charge resulted in a resolution for an investigation of lobbying both for and against the "death clause."

Nationwide

SATURDAY, JUNE 29.

College men and women of today average two inches more in height than their grandfathers. And although the human race has been increasing in stature during the last hundred years, it is already beginning a decline. Dr. Edith Boyd, University of Minnesota anatomy professor, revealed these facts based on an international survey.

Max Baer, matinee idol and former heavyweight pugilistic champ, married Miss Ellen Sullivan, coffee shop manager of the Willard hotel in Washington, D. C. She is willing for Max to continue fighting. He has to keep working four years more until he pays off his annuity plan and begins to draw a monthly income of $600.

A new vault to store Uncle Sam's gold (the now has $9,112,902,278 of it) is to be built 31 miles from Louisville in an inaccessible Kentucky mountain region. . . . A new five-year record for persons going abroad was set when 14,000 boarded 25 ships at New York bound for foreign ports.

SUNDAY, JUNE 30.

The treasury ended the fiscal year on June 30 in a much more favorable position than was forecast in estimates made in the budget message sent to Congress in January by President Roosevelt, according to an official accounting made by Secretary Morgenthau today.

In its major particulars the picture was as follows:

Items.	Estimate.	Actual.
Revenues	$3,711,650,688	$3,800,467,201
Expenditures	8,581,069,026	7,375,825,165
Deficit	4,869,418,338	3,575,357,963
Public debt	31,086,633,874	28,700,892,624

The actual excess of expenditures over receipts is cut to $3,001,799,713 when $573,001,000 representing statutory debt retirements is subtracted. The latter is a bookkeeping item when the deficit exceeds the amount set aside annually by law for debt retirement.

Mr. Morgenthau, in discussing the public debt, put a value of $4,037,000,000 on assets of the government, such as loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which when liquidated may be used to reduce the debt total.

Refunding operations during the fiscal year cut the average interest rate paid on the public debt from 3.18 per cent to 2.715 per cent.

The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters won today a 10-year fight for union recognition by the Pullman Company, when the National Mediation Board of the railway industry certified that the porters affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, had won elections for collective bargaining spokesmen by a vote of 5,931 against 1,422 for the company union.

Detectives used telephone calls and a telegram to solve the apparently baffling murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, lawyer nephew of Chief Justice Hughes, slain in Detroit. By tracing phone calls, the victim's last night companions were identified. They were William Schweitzer, Jean Miller, Florence Jackson and Loretta Jackson, mother of two small children, with whom Dickinson had attended a drinking party. Schweitzer and his girl accomplices had fled Detroit. But Loretta, worried about her babies, telegraphed home. Detectives spotted the telegram and arrested the fugitives at Fort Wayne, Ind. They admitted killing Dickinson to rob him of $120.

More than 15,000 persons were killed by automobiles in the United States during the first six months of the year. This is about equal to last year's toll at this time.

The United States sent out a call for 47,000 new soldiers, 11,000 new sailors and 1,100 new marines. This will bring the enlisted personnel of the army to 165,000, the navy to 93,500 and the marine corps to 16,000.

MONDAY, JULY 1.

Despite some very great pressure, both from the White House and patronage dispenser Farley, the house of representatives refused to pass the holding companies death sentence clause in the utilties bill. With a vote of 216 to 146 the house rebelled against dictatign. There was no roll call and administration leaders indicated a record vote would be taken to learn which members failed to support the President.

After flying the equivalent of twice around the world without stopping, Al and Fred Key, Meridian (Miss.) endurance pilots, found their plane was crystallizing and breaking apart from twenty-seven days or 653 hours and 34 minutes of vibration. So they landed while 10,000 cheered their new all-time record.

Divorces in Cook county (Chicago) during the past 12 months increased 86 per cent over a year ago. Figures made public today showed that in the period from June, 1933, to June, 1934, 4,044 divorces were granted in superior court, compared with 7,556 granted in the 12 months ending June, 1935.

A commission representing the League of American Writers "to investigate social and labor conditions in Cuba" was refused permission to land in Havana when the Ward liner, Oriente, docked. All the committee members, including several women, were placed in one corner of the main salon aboard the Oriente, which brought them from New York. Clifford Odets, leftist, New York playwright, leads the group.

TUESDAY, JULY 2.

The resignation of M. J. Culligan, suspended chief of police, of St. Paul, Minn., was announced today. He was suspended 10 days ago when H. E. Warren, public safety commissioner, removed from duty four other officers and ordered four to quit, charging "illicit activities" on the part of those involved.

The California state supreme court today ordered the hearing on Tom Mooney's petition, seeking freedom on a writ of habeas corpus, to start September 3 before a referee who will be selected later.

The decision was announced at the close of a two-hour session in which attorneys for the convicted bomber of the San Francisco 1926 Preparedness Day parade and Deputy Attorney-General William Cleary clashed repeatedly in heated arguments.

Roberta Semple, comely daughter of Aimee Semple McPherson, today was en route by bus for the Ozark mountains of Arkansas in search of a perfect man. "If I find a perfect man in the Ozarks," she said, "I'll return home in six weeks with my second husband. But I don't believe there has been a perfect man in this country since George Washington."

In addition to her search for a perfect man, Miss Semple will collect material on life in the Ozarks.

Bluntly describing mercenary motives to Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's fight for custody of her heiress-daughter, the appellate division of the New York supreme court today denied the dashing widow of the late Reginald Vanderbilt the full claims of motherhood upon 11-year-old Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

In a unanimous decision of the appellate judges, the court upheld the decision of Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew awarding principal custody of the child to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her paternal aunt.

The Hamrah, engaged in a race from Newport to Norway, met with catastrophe 1,600 miles at sea. A giant wave blown by a severe squall washed Robert R. Ames, Boston real estate man and sportsman overboard. His eldest son, Richard, dived into the turbulent waters to rescue his father. Henry, the younger son, followed in a small boat. All three disappeared. The tragic-stricken Hamrah rode out the storm and put in at Sydney, N. S., half its crew lost.

Again the house of representatives rejected the President's wishes and refused the death sentence for utilities holding companies by a record vote of 258 to 148. Immediately afterward by uanimous consent an investigation into alleged lobbying for and against the utilities measure by the administration and the power trust was authorized.

A Canadian scientist, Dr. J. S. Plasket by name, has decided that the milky way galaxy, in which we reside, contains about 200,000,000,000 stars and that the galaxy is a circular disc about 200,000 light years in diameter and 10,000 light years in thickness. (One light year is equal to approximately 6,000,000,000,000 miles). On top of this Dr. Plasket estimates that there are 2,000,000,000 other galaxies similar to ours in the physical universe which means that it is quite spacious.

Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin are the latest flood sufferers. Deluges washed out bridges and sent rivers on rampages. In Kenosha, Wis., it rained 1:57 inches in 20 minutes—more rain than fell all last summer.

The republican grass roots idea has spread. Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee will hold a similar gathering in Cleveland next week.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 3.

Wednesday, July 3—Bargaining for mercy, William Schweitzer, Detroit slayer, offered to "turn up" Merton W. Goodrich, wanted for the trunk murder of an 11-year-old girl, but New York police were a step ahead of Schweitzer. They nabbed Goodrich as he carried on strangely about a pool where children were swimming. Mrs. Florence Goodrich, his wife, was also taken into custody. Goodrich readily confessed the murder of Lillian Gallaher in Detroit last September, waived extradition and said: "I want to go back to pay my debt to society." They were taken to Detroit.

Huey Long went dancing and stepped into trouble on the Shoreham hotel terrace in Washington. By deft ducking he escaped the vicious right swing of an angered gentleman and another bruised optic such as he received in a recent washroom scuffle. According to Burr Tracy Ansell, Huey stepped too close to his table. Neither Ansell nor his father, Samuel T. Ansell, are friends of Mr. Long since that day when the senator spoke against Samuel Ansell on the senate floor. In fact, the elder Mr. Ansell has a $300,000 libel suit pending against Long for that speech.

Nineteen was a dangerous age during the month of May. Data compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclosed today that 19-year-old boys formed the largest age group among the 34,061 persons whose fingerprints were received by the bureau during May. Among the murderers, 20-year-olds were most numerous.

THURSDAY, JULY 4.

The Fourth of July accident toll for the nation totaled more than 200. Of these 85 died in traffic accidents and 79 were drowned. Other accidents claimed 32 lives of which only five persons died from fireworks, but thousands were injured in varying degrees. The New England states observed the sanest Fourth with only three deaths—all from drowning. The middle west had the wildest celebration, seeing 19 die by autos, 30 by drowning, 1 by fireworks and 14 others from miscellaneous causes.

President Roosevelt was busy on the Fourth with a conference of the house ways and means committee over his spread-the-wealth plans. The president is thought to have asked for quick action on the measure and to have spoken with disfavor about the schedule under consideration for taxing inheritances. Congressional leaders have considered a tax of 60 per cent on amounts over $10,000,000. The administration desires 60 per cent above $1,000,000.

Secretary of Labor Perkins reported 1,140 labor disputes involving 916,720 workers during the year 1934.

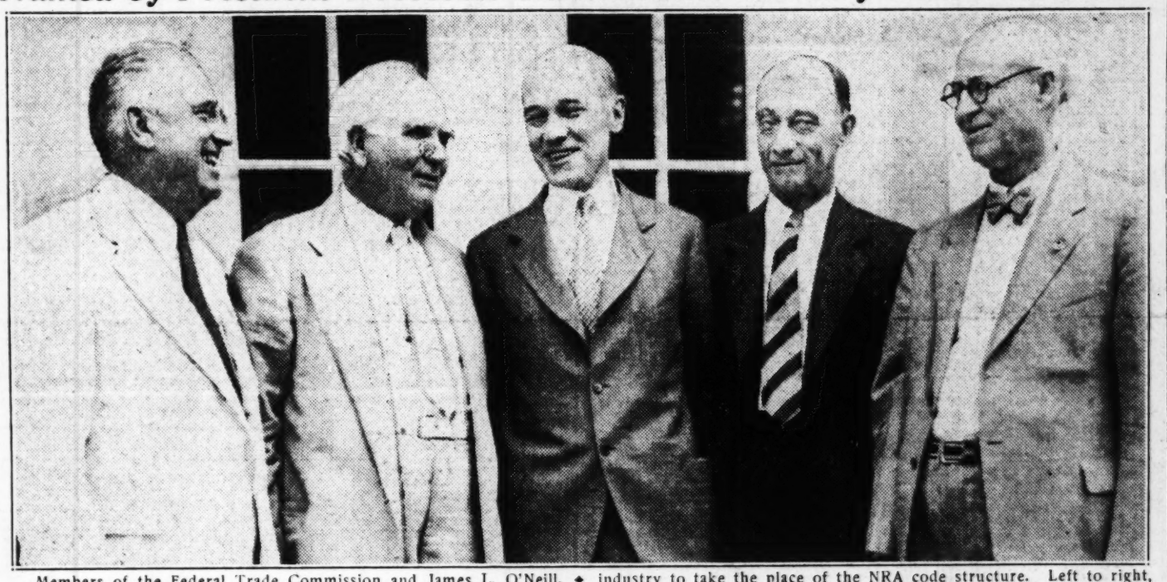

The Dionne quintuplets lost a total of eight ounces in weight due to the hot weather. Cecile sprouted another tooth and now leads the quintet with five of the total eighteen teeth the babies have.

FRIDAY, JULY 5.

President Roosevelt penned his signature to one of the chief items in the administration's legislative program—the Wagner labor disputes bill. The measure is designed, in the words of the President, "to achieve just and peaceful labor relations in industry." It prohibits interference with the formation of company unions, gives employes the right to collective bargaining, prohibits employers from interfering with that right or discriminating against an employe who brings charges against his employer. A labor board is set up to hear violations of the new law and may order an offending employer to court.

Blonde Margaret Waley, haggard and fidgety, went to trial today in Tacoma for the $200,000 kidnaping of little George Weyerhaeuser and saw a jury selected speedily to decide her unusual case. Two of the jurors are women.

Senator Huey P. Long moved to strip Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, of more political power as another special session of the Louisiana legislature convened at Baton Rouge. Long sponsored 26 bills including those designed to deprive New Orleans city officials of almost everything but their titles and office furniture.

Twenty-eight persons lost their lives as the south celebrated the nation's Independence Day Thursday. Automobile accidents took 12 lives, 11 persons were drowned and five met death from other causes. Total for the nation was 201.

The number of infantile paralysis cases in North Carolina reached 302 for the year as the 14th death from the malady was recorded. The cases are centered in the east-central part of the state. Fifty-nine cases have been reported in Virginia since June 1.

Governors Bibb Graves, of Alabama and Hill McAlister, of Tennessee, pledged loyalty to President Roosevelt at "TVA Appreciation Day" attended by thousands at Tuscumbia.

The constitutionality of a 2 per cent sales tax was upheld by the Arkansas supreme court as an organized opposition moved to overthrow it.

Negroes were chosen at Knoxville, Tenn., to serve on the Knox county grand and trial juries, but Attorney-General J. Fred Bibb said it was not done because of the recent ruling of the United States supreme court in the Scottsboro, Ala., case. "Their names," he said, "were drawn from a list prepared and placed in the jury box two years ago."

A sharp increase in industrial construction and private building in the southern states during June is reported by the Manufacturers Record in its current issue. Led by the awarding of a contract for the building of a $4,000,000 pulp, paper and bag plant in Savannah, Ga., contracts awarded for industrial projects advanced from $7,005,000 in May to $10,964,000 in June. General building operations, privately financed, mounted from $7,140,000 in May to $7,960,000 in June.

Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released shows that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933. Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

The first liquor store to be operated in North Carolina under statutes passed in the closing hours of the recent general assembly opened at Wilson. The Wilson County Alcoholic Control Board announced its decision to start sales after it had received a federal license from internal revenue offices in Greensboro.

State-wide.

Georgia's controversy with the national administration over "freezing" in Washington the allotments of highway funds ebbed as both state and federal officials awaited publication of the new regulations on road funds now being studied by Attorney-General Cummings. Under the regulations, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace would be made the highway czar. Assurances of support in the fight to obtain the state's $19,000,000 share of the federal road funds came from Senator Walter F. George and Representatives Malcolm C. Tarver, Braswell Deen, Emmett Owen, E. E. Cox and Hugh Peterson. Meanwhile, the Georgia Highway Board announced the largest letting in years when it called for bids on $1,255,000 worth of paving, grading and bridge projects in all sections of the state, except the sixth congressional district, represented by Congressman Carl Vinson, whom Governor Talmadge blames for the present dispute with Washington.

The memory of John Lewis Herring, editor of the Tifton Gazette, was honored by citizens of Tifton and Tift county when a monument to him was unveiled in Fulwood Park, Tifton. Mr. Herring edited the Gazette from 1897 until his death on October 6, 1923. Henry T. McIntosh, editor of the Albany Herald, was the principal speaker at the exercises.

South Georgia farmers gave the Roosevelt administration another vote of confidence when flue-cured tobacco growers voted for continuance another year of the acreage control program; 14,754 balloted for the continuance, while only 1,185 voted against.

Another indorsement of the nation's chief executive and his policies was given at Macon, where the joint convention of the Georgia Postoffice Clerks, the Women's Auxiliary and the Georgia Association of Postal Supervisors adopted resolutions praising Mr. Roosevelt and Postmaster-General Farley. Ernest C. Moore, of Macon, was elected president of the Postoffice Clerks, and Mrs. W. W. Green Jr., of Albany, was named president of the Woman's Auxiliary. J. W. Lavander, of Columbus, was elected president of the Georgia Association of Letter Carriers in its annual convention at Valdosta.

The first houses built as part of the Pine Mountain Valley rural community development were occupied on Independence Day, marking a new chapter in the state's agricultural history. The Pine Mountain project contains 11,000 acres located six miles from Hamilton and when completed, will house 300 families. A special train to the Pine Mountain valley, operated by the Central of Georgia, took a large group of Atlantans and others to the dedicatory exercises. An estimated crowd of more than 2,000 participated in the day's program.

The monthly report of the Alcohol Tax Unit office in Atlanta revealed that Georgia is not yielding its rank as the leading corn liquor state in America. One-third of all liquor seized in the southeast in June was Georgia corn. Here is the month's record of agents under W. K. Johnston, federal investigator: 76 stills raided, 2,762 gallons of liquor and 114,830 gallons of mash confiscated, 21 automobiles and trucks seized and 125 arrests made on charges of violating the internal revenue law.

H. C. Moore, a self-styled Ku Klux Klan organizer, was sentenced to 12 months on the chain gang in Columbus city court. He was convicted of rioting, being accused of visiting a Columbus home last May with two companions, burning a cross and threatening the occupant of the residence.

In Atlanta

It was a busy and pleasant week for Atlanta, with good news of business progress capped by details of the federal government's contributions toward needed improvements, from the vital sewer and sanitary program to airport renovation and school repairs.

By way of good news: Deposits in local banks which are members of the Clearing House Association totaled $195,203,024.68 on June 30, a gain of $11,670,353.40 over the same day last year . . . the city's revenue for the first six months of this year was more than $800,000 ahead of the same period in 1934. This year's half-year receipts were $2,423,888.20, compared to $1,602,137.72 for the comparative period in 1934 . . . Postoffice receipts for June were 4.73 per cent ahead of last June—$323,068 or compared to $308,462 . . . There were 149 fewer bankruptcies in Atlanta in the fiscal year ending June 30 than in the same period a year ago. In 1933-34, 1,148 bankruptcies; in 1934-35, 999—a decrease of 10 per cent . . . Agnes Scott's campaign to raise $233,000 in order to receive an additional $217,000 from the General Education Board of New York was successfully completed, according to its president, J. R. McCain.

George F. Longino, member of the Fulton county commissioners, charged there are "parasites" on the county pay roll and extravagances in county government. Dr. C. R. Adams, chairman, at once offered a resolution asking for a probe of Fulton county affairs. Commissioner Edwin L. Johnson, in seconding Dr. Adams' resolution, attacked Commissioner Longino, asking him about land the latter rented to the county and the use of a county car. Commissioner Johnson said if there had been any extravagances or if there were parasites on the pay roll, Commissioner Longino had not voted against them. The grand jury will probably begin an investigation next Tuesday.

Rev. H. E. McBrayer, who resigned from his pastorate at Lakewood Heights Methodist church was succeeded by Rev. H. H. Dillard, of the Ellijay Methodist church. Rev. Mr. McBrayer will head the new Lakewood Heights Interdenominational church. A building fund is now being raised.

Miss Ella Mae Thornton was elected president of the National Association of State Librarians at its annual convention just concluded in Detroit, although she was in Europe. Her unusual record as secretary of the national association and her work as secretary-treasurer of the Southeastern Library Association led to this latest honor. Miss Thornton is Georgia state librarian.

Again Commissioner of Agriculture Linder attacked Secretary Wallace in the Georgia Market Bulletin. Again the Bulletin was accepted for second-class mailing.

Mrs. Eugene Talmadge broke a bottle of champagne against the side of a new low-winged Stinson 10-passenger monoplane at Candler field. "I christen you the Georgian," said Georgia's first lady. The monoplane was the first airship to take night mail out of Atlanta for Dallas, Texas. The Georgian's sister ship, the Texan, was christened by Mrs. James V. Allred, wife of the governor of Texas. The Georgian carried 150 copies of The Constitution on its maiden trip.

Free membership in the Carnegie library has been extended to every resident of Fulton county. Miss Jessie Hopkins, librarian, announced that county residents may now use the main library and all its branches and reading rooms.

Foreign.

While the United States was refusing to take any part in the Italo-Ethiopian tangle, the United States legation in Addis Ababa urged all Americans, most of whom are missionaries, to leave the country as soon as possible. The action of the American charge d'affaires in the Ethiopian capital suggests the imminence of warfare is out of line with the sentiments of George C. Hanson, newly appointed minister to Abyssinia (Ethiopia.) Ten days ago, just before leaving for Addis Ababa, Mr. Hanson asserted "there will be no war between Italy and Ethiopia."

The plea of Emperor Hail Selassie to the United States was released on July 4. In reply, Secretary of State Hull suggested that the League of Nations, which is already arbitrating the dispute, should continue its efforts to obtain a peaceful solution. Secretary Hull, evaded the implications of Kellogg-Briand peace pact with the assertion that "this government would be loath to believe that either Italy or Ethiopia would resort to other than pacific means" or "would permit a situation to arise which would be inconsistent with the commitments of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact."

It might be added that long before the "peace pact"—in 1906, in fact—an Anglo-French-Italian agreement was reached which specified that it was to the common interest of those three powers "to maintain intact the integrity of Ethiopia."

Captain Anthony Eden's revelation that he had offered Ethiopia the port of Zelia, in British Somaliland, and a strip of land—a corridor—to the sea, aroused members of British parliament. The opposition was aghast at the idea of Great Britain's land being given away without consulting parliament. Captain Eden was called an "ambulatory ambassador" and several members of parliament urged that there be an end put to "peripatetic diplomacy."

Unless there is a swift change in the complexion of the situation, Italy will establish a protectorate over Ethiopia or go to war.

In China the situation is unchanged; the Japanese are in control and will carry out any plans on which their army may decide.

But the soviet government, peaceful but not at all supine, has warned Japan that Russia's territory must not be trespassed on. The dispute over the Siberian border is believed by Moscow to mean that Japan is attempting to gain important islands in the Amur river. These islands, according to the soviet, were ceded to Russia in a Chino-Russian treaty signed at Peiping in 1860. The islands are at the junction of the Amur and Ussur rivers, which dominates Khabarovsk and the vital railroad bridge over the Amur.

American Eagle.

The spirit of the founding fathers, as President Harding was wont to call our first statesmen, was evoked throughout the United States on July 4.

The administration was both assailed and praised, with adverse criticism dominating. Individual liberties and state rights, which went to pot with the 18th amendment, were reborn last week.

Governor Talmadge, red suspendered, waded into the administration at Canton, Ga., where a tremendous crowd, variously estimated at from 10,000 to 20,000, heard his address.

Of state rights, he said: "It is the bulwark of protection for the people in Georgia. It is also the bulwark of protection for the people in New York, Maine, California, Oregon and all of the other states of the Union."

Governor Talmadge hit the processing taxes with the assertion that "if an announcement comes from Washington tomorrow that the processing taxes on cotton and other farm products were abolished, we would see 20 cents per pound for cotton before 30 days."

With President Roosevelt's "horse and buggy" reference in mind, the governor exclaimed: "We are going back to the sanity and common sense, and the honesty of the old horse and buggy days—and it is the only road to recovery in America."

"The quicker the Supreme Court of the United States passes on the AAA and the TVA, just that much quicker will permanent recovery be started in America."

Listeners who had expected to hear Governor Talmadge forecast his political plans for 1936 were disappointed.

Meanwhile, Richard B. Russell Jr., United States senator, in a speech at Statesboro, Ga., vigorously upheld President Roosevelt and administration policies. He characterized Mr. Roosevelt as "a leader who did not and will not yield to the demagogues, a man who has faith in the American people."

"The NRA, even with its defects, cured two cancerous conditions—child labor and sweat shops," asserted Senator Russell. He defended experimentation by the administration, and added:

"Those who say President Roosevelt is becoming a dictator by usurping powers not rightfully his, are speaking utter folly."

At Tuscumbia, Ala., where a TVA celebration was held, Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, and Governor Hill McAlister praised the administration.

In California, former President Hoover avoided a direct attack on the administration, but called on all Americans to hold fast to "the fundamentals of the great constitutional charter of our liberties."

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Stocks slid along on a fairly even keel today for slight gains in somewhat faster trading in the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market was hitched to no one clearly distinguishable factor and credited fractional gains all along the line chiefly to increasing confidence in the long-term business trend.

With the senate away for the week-end, analysts gave other day primarily to charting the course of markets with the aid of banking and trade reports.

A moderate slump in the excess reserves of Federal Reserve member banks was attributed in banking circles to a seasonal expansion of money in circulation for holiday needs, and to the withdrawal of funds from member banks by the treasury to meet payment of the called issue of Panama bonds.

Motor shares gave little heed to the sharp decline in production for the week. Cram's estimated output at 59,380 units against 88,537 in the preceding week and 30,493 a year ago. The decline was explained by curtailed operations owing to the holiday, and the shutdown of seven plants for inventory.

Carloadings Increase.

Carloadings, released after the close of the market, totaled 618,036, an increase of 50,189 over the previous week, but a decrease of 27,967 from the like week a year ago. The rise from the preceding week was in line with earlier Wall Street estimates, observers said.

In terms of the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, the market edged ahead .1 of a point to 45.0. The hourly pace of trading was somewhat brisker than Friday. Volume totaled 515,870 shares for the two-hour session.

On the whole, investors and traders seemed to favor no particular group. Steels were steady on buying put down to the account of those who looked for an early seasonal upturn in steel buying.

Mining Shares Uneasy.

Mining shares were a little uneasy owing to another decline in world silver prices. At New York imported bar silver was reduced 1-4 of a cent to 68 3-8 an ounce.

Leading industrials managed to perk up slightly. Fractional gains were scored by Allied Chemicals at 156 1-4, American Tobacco "B" at 94 3-4, Chrysler at 51 1-2, Du Pont at 104 1-8, General Motors at 33 5-8, and United States Steel at 35 5-8.

Preferred shares came in for a good deal of attention and in this section gains outnumbered losses by about two to one. Gains of 1 to 2 or more points were chalked up by the following senior issues: American Crystal Sugar "2d," A. M. Byers, Continental Can, Pittsburgh Steel, Remington Rand "2d," Shell Union Oil, Wheeling Steel and Wilson.

Bonds were steady in both the government and corporate divisions. In the latter section various rails and utilities moved to new highs for the fourth consecutive day.

Continued uncertainty over what Canada would do with its wheat surplus resulted in renewed weakness in Chicago wheat, and options closed with losses of 2 1-8 to 2 3-4 cents a bushel. Corn, however, braced up for gains of 1-4 to 1 3-8 cents. Cotton finished with net gains of 50 to 70 cents a bale.

In the foreign exchange market the pound sterling closed 1 cent higher at $4.96. The french franc led an improvement in the gold currencies with a rise of 5-8 of a cent to 6.63 cents.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Although we believe medium term business prospects are sufficiently favorable to justify maintenance of a constructive attitude toward share prices, unless an impetus is provided by news developments, or unless confirmation of movement of the industrial averages is afforded by the rail and utility issues over a next few sessions, lightening of short term trading commitments appears in order.

COURTS & CO.—The strong showing made Friday and Saturday augurs well for this week's stock market.

COTTON OPINIONS.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. DOBBS & CO.—Our market would appear to have been pretty well prepared for a government acreage report of around 29,000,000 acres.

FENNER & BEANE—We are inclined to the view that the government's acreage figures Monday will help the market if they come anywhere near the average of private estimates.

COURTS & CO.—With private acreage estimates averaging around 29,000,000, we do not expect declines to go far and would prefer to be long for the usual summer crop scares.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Sales of wheat on the sharp rallies are in order pending actual threats of damage with northwest.

COURTS & CO.—With Chicago wheat prices close to world levels and the constructive Canadian bill passed, we do not expect the decline to extend much further.

z—New 1935 high.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—The corporate bond market lost none of its liking for higher price levels during today's brief session. United States governments also moved upward.

The Associated Press averages for all domestic groups except rails penetrated their old 1935 highs at 98.2 for the industrials, 97.0 for the utilities and 110.6 for the low-yield group. During the week ending today the average of both the utility and industrial groups made new highs for the year on four of the five trading days and the low-yield group entered new peaks on two days.

The same group of leaders that steered the market through a full week of uninterrupted advances were conspicuous again today. They included Chile Copper 5s at 95 1-2, International Paper 5s at 77, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s at 98 1-8, Laclede Gas 5 1-2s at 71, Tennessee Electric Power 6s at 103 3-4, Santa Fe 4s at 111, and People's Gas 5s at 107.

The steady stream of offerings of various issues of bonds of the Southern Railway which has puzzled the market for several days continued without abatement today. Losses ranged from 2 to 4 points and differed from recent sessions only in the fact that the turnover in most of the loans was smaller. Investment quarters have not yet received what is regarded as a satisfactory explanation of the selling movement in this road's securities which has embraced both stocks and bonds.

Other railroad bonds were steady and price changes generally small. Great Northern 4 1-2s and Pere Marquette were among others moving a shade higher, while losses were shown by Northern Pacific 6s and Illinois Central 4s.

Although trading remained extremely quiet in government bonds, the group went through the full session without showing some signs of faltering for the first time this week. Closing prices were the best of the day and ranged, among active issues, from 1-32 to 3-32 higher. Treasury 3 3-4s of 1946 appeared on the tape for the first time since November at 110.14, up 19-32.

Foreign bonds were quiet. There was a slackening of pressure against public and private Italian bonds.

Transfers aggregated $4,730,000, par value, compared with $4,732,000 last Saturday.

C. OF C. TRADE REVIEW NOTES LESS DULLNESS

General Improvement by Early Fall Expected, Declares Business Survey.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States says there is less "midsummer dullness" this year than last and that evidences of general improvement by early fall may be expected.

The publication stated in its fortnightly review that "analyses of detailed evidence for the first five months of 1935 show that general business activities in those months remained remarkably steady, and at a level noticeably higher than in the corresponding part of 1934.

"Production in all its forms, whether in raw materials or in manufactured articles, averaged 5 per cent higher. Output of manufacturing industries themselves was better than 6 per cent higher."

The low point of production for the year, expected this summer, will be "substantially over the low point of last summer," the report added.

Employment in durable goods industries has shown a tendency to remain at the highest levels reached since the early part of 1933, it said, while in non-durable goods industries employment also has been keeping near its high point.

A decrease in cotton exports has affected foreign trade balances and in May, as well as April, all imports exceeded all exports. Any substantial increase in cotton exports would be sufficient, however, the report adds, to give the country's foreign trade a favorable balance.

Weather Outlook For Current Week

Central and East Gulf States: Generally fair first part of week; partly cloudy and probably showers middle or latter part of week. Seasonal temperatures will prevail.

Southern Plains and West Gulf States: Generally fair, but with some cloudiness and unsettled weather about middle of the week. Moderately warm weather is indicated.

Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Generally fair, except one or two local shower periods. Temperatures mostly above normal.

North and Middle Atlantic States: Generally fair first half of week and showers Thursday or Friday. Moderate temperature Monday and Tuesday; warmer middle of week and cooler at end.

South Atlantic States: Generally fair except local thundershowers late in half of week. Temperature near normal most of week.

Ohio Valley and Tennessee: Generally fair except showers Wednesday or Thursday, probably continuing over east portion Friday. Moderate temperature in Ohio valley at beginning of week; warmer middle of week and cooler by Friday.

MEAT PLANT BOUGHT BY ARMOUR & COMPANY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 6.—(AP)—Sale of the Memphis Packing Corporation to Armour & Company in a transaction reported to involve $1,000,000, was approved by stockholders of the Memphis company by vote today.

G. D. Strauss, president of the Memphis concern, will acquire its stockyards. Large packers are prohibited from acquiring stockyards.

Strauss said the Memphis stockholders would realize from $9 to $10 per share by accepting the Armour offer.

Learning To Save Life

Lewis Cook, Red Cross life-saving director, believes that knowledge of how to save life by artificial respiration is essential to a complete confidence in water activities, and has sent such information from the Red Cross to use in place of his weekly swimming article.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION BY PRONE PRESSURE METHOD.

When the patient is removed from the water, gas, smoke, or electric contact, get to work at once with your own hands. If possible, send for a physician.

1. Lay the patient on his belly, one arm extended directly overhead, the other arm bent at elbow and with the face turned outward and resting on hand or forearm, so that the nose and mouth are free for breathing. (See Fig. 1.)

Fig. 1

2. Kneel straddling the patient's thighs, with your knees placed at such a distance from the hip bones as will allow you to assume the position shown in Figure 1. Place the palms of the hands on the small of the back with fingers resting on the ribs, the little finger just touching the lowest rib, with the thumb and fingers in a natural position, and the tips of the fingers just out of sight. (See Fig. 1.)

3. With arms held straight, swing forward slowly, so that the weight of your body is gradually brought to bear upon the patient. The shoulder should be directly over the heel of the hand at the end of the forward swing. (See Fig. 2.) Do not bend your elbows. This operation should take about two seconds.

4. Now immediately swing backward, so as to remove the pressure completely. (See Fig. 3.)

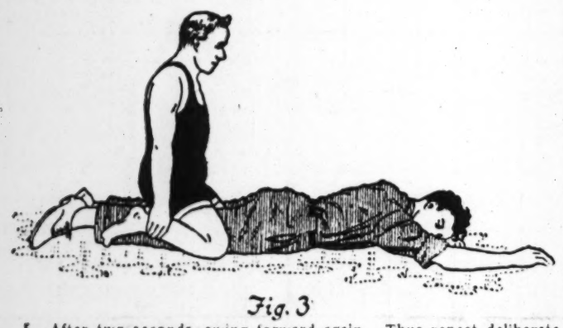

Fig. 3

5. After two seconds, swing forward again. Thus repeat deliberately 12 to 15 times a minute the double movement of compression and release, a complete respiration in four or five seconds.

6. Continue artificial respiration without interruption until natural breathing is restored, if necessary, four hours or longer, or until a physician declares the patient is dead.

7. As soon as this artificial respiration has been started and while it is being continued, an assistant should loosen any tight clothing about the patient's neck, chest or waist. Keep the patient warm. Do not give any liquids whatever by mouth until the patient is fully conscious.

8. To avoid strain on the heart when the patient revives, he should be kept lying down and not allowed to stand or sit up. If the doctor has not arrived by the time the patient has revived, he should be given some stimulant, such as one teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a small glass of water or a hot drink of coffee or tea, etc. The patient should be kept warm.

9. Resuscitation should be carried on at the nearest possible point to where the patient received his injuries. He should not be moved from this point until he is breathing normally of his own volition and then moved only in a lying position. Should it be necessary, due to extreme weather conditions, etc., to move the patient before he is breathing normally, resuscitation should be carried on during the time that he is being moved.

10. A brief return of natural respiration is not a certain indication for stopping the resuscitation. Not infrequently the patient, after a temporary recovery of respiration, stops breathing again. The patient must be watched and if natural breathing stops, artificial respiration should be resumed at once.

11. In carrying out resuscitation it may be necessary to change the operator. This change must be made without losing the rhythm of respiration. By this procedure no confusion results at the time of change of operator, and a regular rhythm is kept up.

First Sequel to 'The Pied Piper of Hamelin'

Sequel Describes Revenge of Piper

Never before has there been published a sequel to Robert Browning's immortal poem, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Of course you have read the "Pied Piper" many times, but we would suggest that you get the book from the library or down from your bookshelf and read it again, then add to it this interesting sequel which is printed below.

The last sweet notes the piper blew
Were heard by the people far and wide;
And one by one and two by two
They flocked to the mountainside.
Some came, of course, intensely sad,
And some came looking fiercely mad,
And some came singing solemn hymns,
And some came showing shapely limbs,
And some came bearing the tops of yews,
And some came wearing wooden shoes,
And some came saying what they would do,
And some came praying (and loudly, too),
And all for what? Can you not infer?
A-searching and lurching for the Pied Piper,
And the boys and girls he had taken away.
And all were ready now to pay
Any amount that he should say.
It seems that just relentless Fate
Ransacks her ever-ample store.
And issues out the roughest ore
To all who basely hesitate.

Search for Piper.

The people stood at the mountainside,
And listened to hear the merry strain
That gathered them from far and wide,
But they listened all in vain,
And if they could have heard his music,
Why some of them were really too sick
To tell just what his notes were saying,
Or know it was the piper playing.
Their heads were many, but their hearts were one;
And so the thoughts that came and went
Served only to kindle their discontent
Into a flame ere the set of sun.

Some thought that they could open wide
Another portal in the mountainside
And then that they could pass right through
And find the children and piper, too.
At last a stalwart man arose
And spoke as one who would interpose:
"Rouse up, good sirs, like gallant people,
And quake no longer with consternation;
But ring the bells from every steeple,
And summon the mayor and corporation.

The bells rang out as never before
Within that ancient city;
They seemed to tell it o'er and o'er—
To tell that tale of pity.
And steadily the angry people
Stood gazing at each lofty steeple.
The stalwart man cried out again:
"Death's servant is procrastination;
Your grief and tears are all in vain,
Go, summon the mayor and corporation."
The people started in twos and threes
To seek the mayor and corporation,
And found them all upon their knees
Imploring expiation.

Mayor Is Blamed.

The mayor winked and the mayor blinked;
And the councilmen, they listened.
The mayor's eyes gazed at the skies,
And the councilmen's eyes, they glistened.
"You are all to blame," the people cried,
With a look of detestation.
"You know full well that you have lied,
And sold our rising nation.
"As enemies we hold you all,
Despite your loud lamenting;
Upon your recreant heads shall fall
The burden of repenting.

"Through you the little ones we nursed
Were taken we don't know where to;
Through you our city has been cursed—
Deny it if you dare to.

"And you shall know that parleying
With that outlandish piper.
Shall be to you as deep a sting
As that of any viper."
The mayor bowed low, and then said,
"Oh!"
And the councilmen said, "What is it?"
The mayor grew red and huskily said:
"I do not like this visit."
The mayor's teeth clattered, and the mayor's tongue chattered,
And the councilmen's did also:
The mayor floundered, and the mayor wondered
How a brave man's voice could fall so.

The mayor did sup from no golden cup
That he could drown his grief in;
The councilmen saw with deepest awe
Nothing to find relief in.
The mayor looked straight at the massive gate
(And it was a look of pity).
Then turned his face to leave the place,
And bid farewell to the city.

Mob Seizes Officials.

The councilmen turned, and their red cheeks burned,
As the bells rang out in the steeple;
And they heard the beat of a thousand feet,
And saw the angry people,
Who came by dozens and scores that way,
Intent upon their human prey.
They hadn't a single word to say,
But, oh, it was a woeful day
For the mayor whose hair was turning gray.
Some seized the mayor by the throat
As roughly as they could do,
And tore the buttons off his coat
To show them what they would do
Unless he eased their mental strain
By finding the boys and girls again.
And some arrested the corporation,
And poured into their ears
So free a strain of denunciation
It roused their latest fears,
Till one and all wished through and through
The piper would come and take them, too.
And then they marched through that ancient city,
With the mayor right before them.
And the corporation who sang a ditty
That threw a madness o'er them,
And stirred their ire so it crept out
And put their better thought to rout.

"Let's drive them into the Weser waters"
Some cried angrily,
"Unless they find our sons and daughters,
And bring them back this way."
"Agreed! agreed!" said high and low.
"Right into the waters they shall go!"

Driven Into River.

They marched them down to the river's brink,
And roughly drove them in;
But before the shortest one could sink
An inch above his chin
They heard a muffled deafening note,
Such as might come from a lion's throat,
And all the motley crowd grew mute,
For it was a blast from the piper's flute.
He stood on the edge of Koppleberg hill
And blew till the feet of the people grew still,
And those of the mayor and corporation
Began to move as by incantation.
He took the flute from his honeyed lips
And pressed it between his fingertips,
And straightway a vapor began to rise
That tickled the nose and blinded the eyes;
And when the people could see again
They looked for their victims all in vain,
And all about it they ever knew
Was that the piper had drawn from view,
And the mayor and corporation, too.

People Become Mute.

How often is the tide of sin
Averted ere it reaches us
By ways just as mysterious
As these in the case of Hamelin!
The people went to their homes as mute
As since has been the piper's flute,
And never were known to ever dispute
Among themselves or others,
As to how such things could come about,
Or whether or not they had a doubt
Concerning how they would turn out
For fathers, sons or mothers.
The years passed by, as years will do,
When trouble is the master,
And always strives to bring to view
A new and worse disaster;
And sorrow, like a sorcerer,
Spread out her melancholy pall
So that it folds enveloped all,
And each became her worshiper.
And not a single child was born
Through all the years thereafter;
If words sprang from the lips of scorn
None came from those of laughter.
So hour by hour, and day by day,
The city's inmates passed away,
And left but one, the old and gray,
And that was he the piper left
That fatal day behind him,
Of whatso'er he was bereft,
He never strove to find him.
But wisely let the prowler go
Wher'er his whim might take him,
And kiss his magic flute and blow
For all who might forsake him.

Alas, alas, there came a time
Too sad for even the saddest rhyme,
When this one mortal became immortal,
And flitted away through the heavenly portal,
Without a soul outside or in
Stood poor deserted Hamelin,
Devoid for once of human sin.

Rats Take Hamelin.

You know a message went to Ratland
By that strong rat that swam the Weser,
And lo! a race of rats was at hand
Outnumbering all the hosts of Caesar;
They came by ones and twos and threes,
And then in larger companies—
As single fours and double scores
And hundreds up to fifty,
And thousands up to twenty-five,
And all seemed more and more alive,
And hence were doubly thrifty.

They swarmed into the highest towers,
And loitered in the fairest bowers,
And sat down where the mayor sat,
And also in his Sunday hat;
And gnawed revengefully thereat.
With rats for mayor and rats for people,
With rats in the cellar and rats in the steeple,
With rats without and rats within,
Stood poor, deserted Hamelin.

Hamelin Observes Piper Anniversary

Hamelin Town's in Brunswick,
By famous Hanover City;
The River Weser, deep and wide,
Washes its walls on the southern side;
A pleasanter spot you never spied;
But when begins my ditty,
Almost 500 years ago,
To see the townfolks suffer so
From vermin was a pity.

Whether or not the legend of the Pied Piper of Hamelin is based on fact will probably never be definitely decided. The evidence that there actually was a Pied Piper who first played so well on his pipe that the rats which swarmed through the community of Hamelin followed him out of town and then, because the burghers refused to pay him for his services, lured with still sweeter tones the Hamelin children into the mountains to be forever lost, is rather slim.

First of all, there actually is an old parchment, supposedly inscribed in the year 1303, which was about the date of the Hamelin catastrophe, which bears a good likeness of what is said to be the Pied Piper. There is also a weatherbeaten stone in the old gates of the town which bears an inscription in Latin saying that the gate was built 272 years after the visit of the Pied Piper to Hamelin.

Hamelin recently was a mecca of thousands of Germans and other Europeans on occasion of the 650th anniversary of the Pied Piper. Some enterprising townsman conceived the idea of bringing prosperity back to Hamelin by staging a celebration and pageant.

The townsfolk re-enacted the visit of the Pied Piper, and held a street carnival and parade in which the Piper marched away with every child of the town following him. Merchants decorated their shops outside and in with signs, all suggestive of the story of the Pied Piper. Bakers fashioned their delicacies into the shapes of rats. Europe, through a well-directed campaign of publicity on the event, became conscious again that the Pied Piper once visited the quaint German village of Hamelin.

African Stamp

The stamp picture is from the Congo Free State. The picture is that of Sir Henry Morton Stanley, great British explorer of Africa.

It may be interesting to know that Stanley's name was at one time John Rowlands. He was born in Denbigh, Wales, on June 10, 1841, and his father died soon after his son was born. After years of hardship John Rowlands obtained a job as cabin boy on a ship and was able to work his passage to the United States.

John Rowlands landed in New Orleans and soon found work with a kind man named Henry Morton Stanley. It is said that this man adopted John Rowlands and it is true that late Rowlands, in an effort to forget the past, changed his name to Henry Morton Stanley.

Stanley became a vivid descriptive writer and his search for "copy" led him through Asia minor, Tibet and Tiflis. He obtained a job with the New York Herald, and, due to his good newspaper work in foreign countries, Stanley was sent by the New York Herald to Africa to find Doctor Livingstone, or to verify his reported death. After months of fighting and great hardships, Stanley found Dr. Livingstone, who was sick with a raging fever.

Name Becomes Famous.

When news of Dr. Livingstone's rescue reached civilization, the name "Stanley" became famous overnight. But instead of enjoying his well-earned rest, he was consumed with a desire to push still further into Africa, and trace rivers to their source, explore unknown jungles and penetrate deep forests. During the time he was exploring in Africa he made peace with over 500 tribes.

When Stanley returned from Africa he was made a knight by England, thus making his name Sir Henry Morton Stanley. He wrote books on Africa, among them "My Dark Companions and Their Strange Stories," "My Kalulu, Prince, King, and Slave." After living a quiet life for a few years, Stanley passed away on May 10, 1904.

The stamp shown above is one of a set issued in memory of this great man. The values of the stamp are from 5 centimes to 20 francs. If any boy or girl has a stamp that he or she would like to know the story of, just write a letter to the stamp editor and, if possible, the story will be printed in the paper or the information sent by mail.

The Parents' Forum

Dear Miss Montague:

I have been a teacher in a mission school in the south of China for 12 years and am home now on leave. I was very much surprised and delighted to find the Young America Club page and just couldn't resist writing to you and the members of your fine club.

If the boys and girls who have the right to be called "Young Americans" could be in southern China in my school for just a brief week or two and see the tremendous struggle that most of the pupils in that school are having to get an education, they would begin to appreciate a little more, perhaps, the many advantages which they are now enjoying. So many of the parents of our students do not feel that their children have the time to become educated. They should be at work and helping to lift the burden off the shoulders of their elders! Going to school is considered a luxury which only the rich can afford. The important thing for a boy is to learn the trade of his father, and for a girl, the duties of a housekeeper.

Only last year in the south of China, a system of year-round education was adopted, both winter and summer holidays were abolished. With this new system in effect students will spend only five years in primary schools, five years in middle schools and three years in colleges and universities. Thirteen years will carry a student through formal education unless he wishes to take professional training.

The chairman of the Educational Reform Commission, Chow Lu, who drafted the new system of education, declared that it was best suited to Chinese needs. In a statement to the press he said: "Chinese students cannot afford to waste so much time on formal education, and long holidays are a luxury they can ill afford."

When I return to my school in far-off China I am going to take all the Young America Club pages with me that I can possibly get hold of, and I will use them in teaching art, literature, nature study, music and many other things, to those little foreign children who are wrestling with your English language and are trying to be as much like the "Young Americans" as they possibly can be!

Wishing you lots and lots of luck, and the best of good wishes to all the club members.

MISS V. E. C.

SCOUT NEWS

Scout Robert S. Johnston, 14-year-old Scout in Troop 100, which is sponsored by the Druid Hills Baptist church, has received unusual recognition in that due to his outstanding record in Scouting, in B. Y. P. U. work, in Sunday school and in day school, the church is sending him to the Washington jamboree, with all expenses paid by the church. This Boy Scout jamboree to be held August 21-30 is to be a great celebration to mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of Scouting in the United States, with delegations from all over the United States and many foreign countries attending, and Scout Johnston is looking forward with great eagerness to participating in it. Scout Johnston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Johnston, of 1042 North avenue, N. E.

The southeast district, of which J. Roy Almand is district commissioner, led the other five districts in the Atlanta Council, Boy Scouts of America, in general commissioner proficiency for the first six months of the year. At the commissioners' meeting last week the commissioners of the southeast district were the guests of the other commissioners of the council in recognition of having the highest proficiency for the first half of the year.

The field commissioners working under Mr. Almand are C. O. McGee, W. H. Petree, K. G. Saunders, J. H. Bostwick, B. J. Dantone and Arthur Thorpe.

The ninth season of the Bert Adams Boy Scout mass camp opens on Monday morning, July 15. New features of the mass camp this year will include horseback riding, tennis courts, a woodworking shop and more boating facilities on the lake. The camp will continue its varied program of activities and crafts that have been so popular in the camp for many years, including archery, Indian lore, pioneering, leathercraft, pottery, basketry, stencil craft, nature study, campfires, boomerangs and all forms of water activities.

There are only three periods of the mass camp this year, the first one being a one-week period from July 15 to 20; the second a two-week period from July 22 to August 3, and the third a ten-day period from August 5 to 14.

All Scouts desiring to attend the mass camp should get in their applications immediately in order to be sure of the period that they desire to attend. Scouts signing up for the jamboree are particularly urged to attend the Bert Adams camp for at least one period this summer.

Activity Points

Phillip R. Guthrie, 1175 McDonald drive, Atlanta, turned in a total of 93 points made during the week of June 23-30 to lead for the second time in succession in the number of points gained for constructive summer activities. Phillip had a total of 145 points last week.

Send in a list of your constructive activities for the week of July 1 through 7 to the secretary, Young America Club, The Atlanta Constitution, by next Wednesday. The name of the one obtaining the greatest number of points during each week will be published on this page.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS

Camp Fire Girls are having lots of fun in their city summer program, with interesting things taking place at least three times a week. The Fourth of July was celebrated by an all-day picnic at Grant park last Tuesday, with games, stunts and handcraft planned in keeping with the occasion. On Tuesday, July 9, all Camp Fire Girls and their friends are invited to attend the Wren's Nest, the home of Joel Chandler Harris, or "Uncle Remus," at 1050 Gordon street, S. W., at 10 o'clock. There will be no charge for admission.

At the handcraft class on Friday every girl completed some article, making either tray cloths, letter openers or shade pulls. Original designs were used and the finished products were very creditable. Sixty guests attended the star party given the Camp Fire Girls by Judge John Humphries on Wednesday night and all became inspired to learn more of the stars and to familiarize themselves with the stories of the constellations.

In connection with the parent-teacher's approved reading list, Camp Fire Girls are reading worth-while books during vacation. Each girl will read at least two books in her division and will make a written report to be turned in to Camp Fire headquarters as one point on the local summer honor. These reports should be turned in as soon as completed and not later than August 15.

During vacation time the girls have found it lots of fun to earn honors but realize that these will be greatly appreciated in the fall when rank requirements are checked. Cooking is easy when it's for a picnic or even at home. Swimming honors are quite the most popular of all during the summer. Camp craft and nature lore can be learned on the weekly day camps or on individual hikes. Handcraft honors can be earned each Friday and business honors are always in order. With the Fourth of July just past, citizenship should be of paramount interest. At the meeting at Avondale on Thursday for the general day camp, the proper etiquette of the flag will be explained and demonstrated.

Swimming Lessons

Beginning at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, Monday, July 8, a series of six swimming lessons will be offered free to boys and girls of Atlanta in the pool at Grant Park. Volunteer Red Cross instructors will teach courses for beginners, advanced swimming, and life-saving. Other lessons will be at 10 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday, July 10; Friday, July 12; Monday, July 15; Wednesday, July 17; Friday, July 19.

A group of nearly 200 completed similar lessons at Mozley park last Friday, and a group at Piedmont park will complete their courses next Friday.

SCAMPER: The Bunny Who Went to the White House. By Anna Roosevelt Dall. Pictures by Marjorie Flack. The Macmillan Company. New York. $2.

Wouldn't all of you boys and girls like to know how a small white rabbit hopped all the way from a backyard away up in a New England state clear down to the White House in Washington, D. C.? We should say that was quite a hop, even for a bunny! But "Scamper" did it all right and had many interesting adventures on the way.

When he got to Washington he had great fun seeing all the sights of the Capital City, and he was soon very happy in his new home, the White House, for he liked the children who lived there. This book is just full of pretty colored pictures and there are some mighty cute black and white drawings in it, as well. You walk right into President Roosevelt's house with "Scamper," and see what it all looks like on the inside, and first thing you know, you're as well acquainted with the children who live there as he was.

Handicrafts Corner

The ancient and fascinating art of wood carving can be done by anyone who can handle a knife. White pine, bass wood, poplar and gum are suitable woods for carving. A wide range of simple carving can be done with one knife, but the more tools you have the more elaborate work you can turn out. Remember that sharp tools are essential for good work. Wood carving is used to ornament chest fronts, chair backs, panels, furniture and wall plaques. Other articles which the wood carver can make are carved boxes, buttons and buckles, letter openers, book ends, trays, bowls, wall shelves, and toys.

This Viking ship model is easy to make and very colorful. A piece of soft wood 8x20 inches, cardboard, glue nails, water colors, and meat skewers for oars and a few hours of boat-building, will result in this ship a copy of the hardy vessels the adventurous Vikings took to distant lands.

Business Opportunities 38

BUSINESS EXECUTIVE.

A CORPORATION whose business is more profitable now than ever before, justifying national expansion, directed by executives so well known that you can easily investigate them through your bank, now find that the Atlanta market outlets justify a local branch installation.

FOR unavoidable reasons, over which we have no control we are undecided about the man we intended to use in this territory. We prefer a resident man, but it is difficult here to describe his qualifications. However, the basic requirements are intelligent industry and unquestionable integrity, nothing technical is involved.

EARLY returns should net the individual selected $750 per month, which should be substantially increased from month to month.

FOLLOWING a proven mutually profitable policy we permit our branch executives to own control of our branch installations, which to the right man will require a minimum investment of $2,500 plus an agreement to invest a certain percentage of net profit in further expansion.

DO NOT answer this advertisement or call it to the attention of your friends if above cannot be clearly established.

WRITE covering fully, to Dept. W-34, Postoffice Box 28, Trinity Station, New York and if interested we will arrange for you to come to New York at our expense.

FOR SALE—30 Sanderson collection systems. Ten dollars each. F. L. Pickens, Newnan, Georgia.

RENTED for $110 per month. Sell for $2,700, $1,000 cash, balance easy. Address Q-80, Constitution.

GROCERIES, meats, corner store, small payment will handle. 405 Volunteer Bldg.

CAFE—Small, good location, $40 daily sales. Well established. 405 Volunteer Bldg.

RESTAURANT doing good business. Excellent location. 363 Edgewood Ave.

'Sky Dwarf,' 3 Times Size of Earth, Reveals Vast Gravitational Pull

Astronomers Declare Freak Companion of Sirius Would Make Mere 150-Pound Man Weigh 2.625 Tons, But Collapse and Spread.

MT. WILSON, Cal., July 6.—(UP) Reaching 52 trillion miles out into space, the Carnegie Observatory today had measured one of the heaven's strangest stars—a "sky dwarf" with a gravity pull so powerful it would flatten human beings as if they had been run over by a steamroller.

The tiny but ponderous little sky-freak whirls in companionship with huge Sirius, brightest of stars, now flashing brilliantly in the southern sky.

The "dwarf star" was measured and found to be 8.5 magnitude by two research men, Joel Stebbins and Albert E. Whitford, using special devices on the 100-inch world's largest telescope. Their work was announced in the Astronomical Society of the Pacific bulletin.

Although only three times as big as the astronomically insignificant earth, the star is so dense, or compact, that its gravitational pull controls the orbit of Sirius, many times larger.

The pull has been computed at 35,000 times the earth's gravity, or enough to make human bodies collapse and spread like water. A 150-pound man would weigh 2,625 tons. A tennis ball filled with water would weigh 14 tons.

Despite this tremendous density, astronomers were startled to learn the star is a true sun composed of fiery gas. They attributed this to its great heat—8,000 degrees C., one-fourth hotter than our sun. That heat is believed to knock off some electrons from atoms in the star's interior, permitting them to crowd more compactly.

The two astronomers here, in arriving at the 8.5 magnitude measurement, used light that took years to reach their telescope from the distant star. Sirius, in the star's vicinity, is 8.8 light years distant—and light travels 6,000,000,000,000 miles a year.

Fugitive Surrenders.

CONWAY, Ark., July 6.—(AP)—Officers here were advised today that Zack McHenry, 25, one of two escaped convicts who left a trail of terror during their flight across central Arkansas, surrendered this morning to his father and the sheriff of this county in a woods nine miles north of here.

THIRD PARTY CAUCUS PUSHED BY DELEGATES

'American Commonwealth Political Federation' Is Name of New Group.

CHICAGO, July 6.—(AP)—The foundation for a third party was laid today by 200 liberals from more than half the states of the nation.

Its keystones were "production for use" and a sharing of the wealth.

The perspiring delegates after many hours of hectic debate called for a unification of all liberal factions under the name of "The American Commonwealth Political Federation" until a convention of "left wingers" can be held later in the year formally to launch a new party.

Congressman Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin progressive, was chosen chairman of the federation and other officers and members of the executive committee were named to "sell" the conference program to the nation's electorate.

The shirt-sleeved conferees tossed $128 into a hat to finance future operations of the organization and approximately $1,200 was pledged to underwrite the expenses of the officers elected to call conventions in the various states in advance of the national convention.

Quickly settling a controversy which had tied up their morning session, the conference of "liberals" decided their temporary organization, to act until a convention can be held, should be titled: "The American Commonwealth Political Federation."

That out of the way, they adopted their organizing committee's recommendation that they go on record "as favoring a new national political party, based on the principle of production for use."

An executive committee to be elected here was directed to call a national convention in time to get the proposed party in the running for 1936.

Delegates indicated the convention would likely be held in October.

Without much debate six other recommendations detailing the officers their duties and the general structure of the new federation were approved by the shirt-sleeved delegates.

Mrs. McEachern Goes to Norway To Attend World Council Meeting

First annual meeting of the World Council of Federated Church Women is being held in Oslo, Norway, July 6 to 12, according to Mrs. J. N. McEachern, president of the National Council of Federated Church Women. The meeting is in conjunction with the world Sunday school convention.

Mrs. McEachern left recently on a world tour to make plans for the first world council session. India already has a council which has affiliated with the national and will have representatives at the Oslo meeting. While away Mrs. McEachern will visit 17 foreign countries in the movement which has for its chief purpose the unifying of churchwomen in establishing a Christian social order. Having the first session in Oslo will make it possible for many members who are also active in the world Sunday school program to attend both meetings.

Mrs. McEachern, as president, and Mrs. Alva Maxwell, as chairman of publicity for the national council, will be on the Oslo program. Mrs. James Ferguson, of Kansas City, and Mrs. E. A. Overton, of Marion, Ind., Mrs. McEachern and Mrs. Maxwell spent a week recently in Marion in the interest of the council program. They were honored at a lovely tea given by Marion women at the Y. W. C. A. The social affair assembled several hundred women and was in charge of Mrs. Benjamin Haaram, of Marion, prominent church and club leader.

Baptist W. M. U. Executive Board Elects Miss Christian To Succeed Mrs. McMahon

The resignation of Mrs. A. F. McMahon, for the past ten years corresponding secretary and treasurer of the Georgia Baptist W. M. U., was accepted with profound regret at the meeting of the executive board on July 2. Mrs. McMahon tendered her resignation many months ago, feeling the need of a complete rest, and it was only upon her insistence that her resignation was finally accepted. The board voted to send Mrs. McMahon a monetary love gift as an expression of appreciation for her years of efficient and consecrated service.

Mrs. L. O. Freeman, chairman of the committee on vacancies, presented the name of Miss Mary Christian as Mrs. McMahon's successor and she was unanimously elected. Miss Christian's years spent at the Baptist Training School in Louisville, Ky., and her outstanding work for the past seven years as Georgia B. W. M. U. Young Peoples' secretary have thoroughly equipped her to assume her new duties. Miss Christian is widely known and loved throughout the state and her election to this important office will prove most acceptable to Georgia Baptists.

A noteworthy action of the board was the decision to defray the traveling expenses of Mrs. J. C. Lanier, of West Point, for many years first vice president of the Georgia union and more recently, Georgia's trustee of the Southern Baptist Training School, to Louisville, Ky., for the first Founder's Day celebration of this institution.

The board also voted to give Miss Mary Christian the week of August 11-18 at Ridgecrest, N. C., which is devoted to foreign missions.

Mrs. W. C. Little, of Tennille, state chairman of mission study, spoke on the plan of work of her department. There was an increase of 1,512 mission study classes held in Georgia during 1934 over the year 1933.

Mrs. R. B. Connany, of Rome, and Mrs. Marshall Nelms, of Hartwell, vice presidents of the northwest and northeast divisions, reported completion of a series of mission study conferences in their divisions under the supervision of Mrs. W. C. Little.

Following the annual custom there will be no meeting of the executive board during the month of August.

France Ends Censorship.

PARIS, July 6.—(UP)—Premier Pierre Laval has ordered immediate discontinuance of censorship of outgoing news messages. The order, issued by the foreign office press bureau, followed months of active campaigning by the Anglo-American Press Association.

SLAYING IN BROOKLYN ATTRIBUTED TO 'LOAN'

Two Under Arrest Following Gun Battle in Which Three Were Wounded.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Out of a ricocheting spatter of bullets in a Brooklyn street and the past of the man it cut down, police sought today to sift a complete motive for the slaying of Girardo (big Jerry) Mugavero, 28. Two men were under arrest.

Mugavero, who police believed to be a "loan shark" racketeer, was sauntering near a beer garden when raking gunfire hit him and injured three pedestrians on New Utrecht avenue in the Bensonhurst neighborhood of Brooklyn last night.

Patrolman Harry Leftwich, who was guarding receipts in a near-by movie theater, drew his revolver and dashed into the center of activity.

He arrested Alfred di Stefano, 21, of Manhattan, and Benny Minoe as they were driving away. Minoe's skull was fractured by a blow of the officer's nightstick when he attempted to break away, Leftwick said. He was taken to a hospital.

Leftwich, the patrolman, said he saw the two men driving away and leaped on the running board of the sedan.

"Move your hands and I'll kill you," he shouted, then hauled them out of the car.

Musgavero was slain in front of a building housing the Bensonhurst Good Government League. Police said he had been on parole after serving part of an 18-month sentence for burglary.

It Took 3,000 Miles of Travel to Make This Miracle Happen!

How did we do it? Only thru our buyer's determination to give Atlanta a value to rock the town! And, believe us, success was no easy matter—the manufacturers were bombarded with insistent demands for their best-sellers. Leaving Atlanta—our buyer made Chicago the first stop—securing only a portion of her needs—she went further afield — doubled back on her tracks, intent on achieving her goal—clicking off the miles to the rate of 3,000—a distance equalling the mileage from here to Europe. The task was difficult—it has been fulfilled beyond our fondest hopes!

Miss Gilbert Becomes Bride of Mr. Taylor

The marriage of Miss Louise Locke Gilbert and Leonard Hinson Taylor was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. B. Gilbert, 465 Clifton road, N. E., with the Rev. C. A. London officiating.

The nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. John Esty. Miss Gloria Gilbert, younger sister of the bride, who was junior bridesmaid, wore pink silk taffeta made empire style and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of varicolored flowers. Miss Vernada Turner, who was maid of honor, was becomingly gowned in flowered chiffon. Her flowers were pink roses and valley lilies.

The bride was accompanied by her father by whom she was given in marriage and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, W. R. Taylor Jr., who was best man. She wore a stylish traveling suit of navy blue chiffon fashioned with a short jacquet with white accessories. Her flowers were talisman roses and valley lilies.

The reception rooms were attractively decorated with garden flowers and in the living room where the ceremony was performed vases and tall baskets of flowers formed a background for the bridal party.

Mr. Taylor and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip, and on their return will take possession of their apartment at 1265 Druid place, Northeast.

Miss Cantrell Weds McAllister Isaacs Jr.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., July 6.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Cantrell to McAllister Isaacs Jr., of Columbus, was solemnized Monday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Cantrell, and marked the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of the parents of the bride. Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor of the First Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Sam Belcher, of Macon, double first cousin of the bride, lighted the candles. Miss Leila Cantrell, only sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and wore embroidered pink organdy and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. Her wedding dress was of brocaded white Chinese silk with satin jacket and train. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. They were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Ed Bernd, of Macon, who is a double first cousin of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cantrell entertained at an informal reception. Miss Louise Watson, of Atlanta, served punch, Miss Betty Watson was in charge of the bride's book, and assisting were Mesdames J. W. Booz, Harry Trumbo, Walker Bradford, Ben Wright, Harold Wyatt, Frank Lowther, Misses Margaret Henderson, Mary Norman, Josephine Whitaker, Frances Wright, Anne Brumby, Rowena Graves and Leila Anderson, of Marietta.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaacs left on a wedding trip and will reside in Columbus. The bride wore a traveling dress of brown crepe with brown accessories.

Miss Almarine Wright Weds Mr. Cleghorn.

The marriage of Miss Almarine Wright, of College Park, and Russell Olin Cleghorn, of Villa Rica, was solemnized at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. B. Banks, 400 Linwood avenue, in East Point. The ceremony took place in the presence of relatives and close friends. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Martin A. Wood, of College Park.

Mrs. Hugh F. Dobbins, of Rome, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Cliff Henderson, of Villa Rica, was best man. Mrs. Dobbins wore a powder-blue frock with white trimmings and accessories to match. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds and swainsona.

The bride was gowned in an ensemble of white crepe, with accessories of white. She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds showered with swainsona. The bride is the fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wright, of College Park, granddaughter of the late Mrs. Clara Pranglin Jenkins, of Eatonton, Ga. She is a graduate of Russell High school and attended Piedmont College and the University of Georgia.

Mr. Cleghorn is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Cleghorn, of Villa Rica. He attended Emory University and the University of Georgia, receiving his B. S. C. degree from the latter. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, Blue Key Council, Square and Compass Club and is a Master Mason and a Shriner.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleghorn left by motor for a trip through the Carolinas and Tennessee. The bride's traveling costume was navy blue pique with accessories to match. Upon their return the couple will make their home in Villa Rica.

Maness—Judson.

CARROLLTON, Ga., July 6.—The marriage of Miss Clara Maness to Roy G. Judson took place at the First Presbyterian church Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the Rev. Marshall C. Dendy performing the ceremony before a small gathering of relatives and friends. Miss Josie Futrelle at the organ rendered the musical program.

The bride entered with her maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Anderson, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Edward Godfrey. The bride was lovely in a two-piece dress of white crepe, with a French felt hat and other accessories of white. Her corsage was of pink rose buds and sweet peas.

Mrs. Judson is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Roy B. Maness and the late Mr. Maness. Mr. Judson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Judson Sr., of Philadelphia, Pa., and holds a position with Owen-Osborne, Inc.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Judson left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York. Upon their return they will reside in Gainesville.

Miss Elizabeth Edwards, of Jacksonville, Florida, To Become Bride of Wm. F. Spalding in the Autumn

MISS ELIZABETH EDWARDS, OF JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Edwards and William F. Spalding centers interest and is of importance in social circles in Jacksonville and Atlanta. The bride-elect, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Edwards, of Jacksonville, is a beautiful blond. She has golden hair, violet blue eyes, and a charming personality. Miss Edwards belongs to the Junior League and is president of the Spinsters Club in Jacksonville.

Miss Edwards was born in Richmond, Va., but her parents moved to Florida several years ago. She was educated at St. Catherine's school in Richmond, and at the Sara Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y. Her father is a son of Dr. William Henry Edwards, a noted Virginia educator, and her mother, the former Miss Virginia Placidia Hednall, of Virginia, is a descendant of Colonel James Moore, of Revolutionary fame.

Like his attractive bride-to-be, Mr. Spalding is descended from aristocratic ancestry. His paternal and maternal forbears were among the first settlers of Kentucky, and contributed to the upbuilding and development of the Blue Grass state. He is a son of Mrs. William F. Spalding, the former Miss Susan Mattingly, of Lebanon, Ky., and the late William Francis Spalding, whose name the bridegroom-elect bears. His sisters are Misses Anne and Elizabeth Spalding.

Mr. Spalding is a graduate of Marist College and Georgia School of Technology, and is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. For a number of years Mr. Spalding has resided in Rye, N. Y., where he a member of the Apawamas Club. He is assistant salesmanager of the American Euka Rayon Corporation.

Mrs. Spalding and Miss Elizabeth Spalding are in Jacksonville, where they are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and the bride-elect, and were among the guests attending the announcement party given Saturday evening in compliment to Mr. Spalding and his fiance. Miss Edwards and Mr. Spalding will be married in the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards entertained at a dinner party at the Timuquana Country Club in Jacksonville last evening, the occasion marking the announcement of the engagement of Miss Edwards to Mr. Spalding. The table was banked with attractive arrangements of roses and delphinium. Sixty guests were invited. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. William F. Spalding, mother of Mr. Spalding, and Miss Elizabeth Spalding, his sister, and Esmond Brady, of Atlanta.

Miss Edwards wore a Nile green dress of chiffon cut on long flowing lines with an accordion-pleated panel forming a slight train. Her sandals were of matching green edged in silver. She wore a corsage of purple-throated orchids. Mrs. Edwards wore a black and white printed dress of crepe with matching accessories. With this she wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Spalding wore a chiffon dress of black and brilliant colors with a net cape appliqued in the corresponding design. Repeated in the print completing her costume was a corsage of orchids. Miss Elizabeth Spalding was lovely in a rodier crepe of chartreuse. The neckline accentuated in front with minute tucks terminating in a slight ruffle. She wore a corsage of gardenias.

Miss Branch Will Become Bride Of Mr. Adams, Washington, D. C.

Cordial social interest is centered in the announcement made by Mrs. Thomas P. Branch of the engagement of her daughter, Sarah Wilhelmina, to Willis R. Adams, of Washington, D. C., the marriage to be solemnized August 28 at Grace Methodist church.

Miss Branch is the daughter of the late Dr. Thomas Pettus Branch and the late Susie Pharr Branch, her only brother being Thomas Pharr Branch. Her paternal grandparents are the late Rev. and Mrs. Franklin A. Branch. The Rev. Mr. Branch was a prominent south Georgia Methodist minister. Her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Pharr, of Forsyth, Ga. The late Dr. Pharr was a professor at Georgia Tech for 28 years, having been organizer and dean of both civil engineering and co-operative engineering departments.

Miss Branch is a graduate of Atlanta Girls' High school, an honor graduate of Wesleyan College, where she was elected to Phi Delta Phi honor society, and a graduate of Emory University, where she received a master's degree in chemistry. She has also studied at the University of Michigan and George Washington University, where she is a member of Phi Delta Gamma, graduate fraternity.

Mr. Adams is the son of Millard D. Adams and Mrs. Anna Adams Johnson, of southern Mississippi. He attended the University of Alabama and later studied at George Washington University. Mr. Adams is technical assistant in the diagnostic pathological laboratories of Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, prominent Washington pathologist.

Rish-Gay

Miss Sarah Thurman And Miss Morris Will Give Recital

Mozelle Horton Young, pianist and teacher, will present her advanced pupils, Virginia Morris and Sarah Thurman, in a musicale Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Bradford Hodges, 8 Sheridan drive. Mrs. Roger Martin, contralto, will assist on the program.

The young pianists, who are recent graduates of Girls' High school, have had all their musical training under Mrs. Young. They have each appeared on radio programs and played at many club functions.

Miss Morris' numbers will include the first movement of the Beethoven Sonata, Opus 27, No. 2; "Consolation in E major," Liszt; "Arabesque," Chaminade; "The White Donkey," Ibert; and "Witches' Dance," MacDowell. Miss Thurman will play "Rondo Capriccioso," Mendelssohn; "Prelude in C sharp minor," Rachmaninoff; "Nocturne in E flat major," Chopin; "To Spring," Grieg, and "Valse," Levitski.

Mrs. Martin will sing "Spring Song of the Robin Woman," Charles Wakefield Cadman; "My Lover Is a Fisherman," Lily Strickland; and "Who'll Buy My Lavender," by Edward German. Mrs. Young will play Mrs. Martin's accompaniments.

Post Officers Honor Col. Wilder at Tea.

Reserve officers in training with the 325th infantry at Fort McPherson and those attending the week-end "Contact Camp" will be the guests of the Post Officers at a tea and reception to be held at the Officers' Club from 5 to 7 o'clock this afternoon in honor of Colonel William M. Wilder, of Albany, recently elected president of the Georgia Department of the Reserve Officers' Association and commanding officer of the 325th infantry.

Will Be Bride of Late Summer

Miss Ethelene Sewell Becomes Bride of D. Jackson Moore

Announcement is made today by Mrs. John W. Ledbetter, of Lithonia, of the marriage of her niece, Miss Margaret Ethelene Sewell, to Davenport Jackson Moore, the ceremony having taken place on Wednesday, July 3, in Atlanta. Mr. Moore and his bride are residing at The Shack on Howell Mill road, which is the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Moore, parents of the groom.

Mrs. Moore possesses the titian-type of beauty, and is exceedingly charming and attractive. She is originally from South Carolina, and belongs to a well-known family, but made her home in Lavonia before coming to Atlanta.

Mr. Moore is the representative of prominent Atlanta families, and is a brother of Wilmer L. Moore Jr., of El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. Frederick E. Fry, of Newark, N. J., who is visiting her parents at present. He graduated from Georgia Tech, and attended Hoeton's Business College in Philadelphia, a branch of the University of Pennsylvania.

Garden Club Members To Serve at Center.

Garden Clubs whose members will serve at the Garden Center on the sixth floor at Rich's for the week of July 7 include: Monday morning, Habersham Garden Club; Monday afternoon, Bird and Flower Garden Club; Tuesday morning, Cherokee Garden Club; Tuesday afternoon, Dogwood Garden Club; Wednesday, Rose Garden Club; Thursday, Atkins Park Garden Club; Friday, Lullwater Garden Club; Saturday morning, Primrose Garden Club, and Saturday afternoon, Rosemary Garden Club.

Atlanta Garden Clubs are actively engaged in working out plans to make Atlanta the Dogwood City next year. A phenomenal amount of work has been done, the city having been mapped out and zoned for planting.

Garden clubs have indorsed the dogwood planting to be followed in the spring by the three-day dogwood festival. Garden clubs in all sections of the city and suburbs have unanimously agreed to promote this mammoth undertaking. The clubs have individually voted also to develop further their civic projects in the beautification of the city.

Miss Edith Harrison, well-known Atlanta landscape architect and member of the Peachtree Garden Club, continues her valuable and interesting article on Dogwood, which may be read at the Garden Center.

Evan P. Howell U.C.V. Feted by Adjutant.

Camp Evan P. Howell U. C. V. No. 1825 and guests were entertained on Friday at a reception given by their adjutant, Mrs. W. D. Langley, at her home in Kirkwood. Addresses were made by Commander Morris and General J. L. Driver. Mrs. Mary Stuart, assistant adjutant of the camp, gave a reading. The guest speaker was Colonel Robert Lee Avary, who gave a history of Kirkwood. In revealing its history he told of many who were such outstanding characters in Kirkwood during the reconstruction days, including General Gordon, Colonel Howard, Captain Alston and the late former adjutant, Mrs. W. E. Lomax, organizer of the camp.

Following Colonel Avary's address luncheon was served.

General Driver made a list of the veterans present and their ages. George W. Sherrman was the oldest, age 95 years. Twenty guests were present.

Arrington—Bonner.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., July 6.—The marriage of Miss Doris Estelle Arrington to Julian Irwin Bonner took place Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo A. Arrington. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Dupree, pastor of the Ellaville Baptist church in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends, before an improvised altar of palms and ferns, and pedestal baskets of pink gladioli.

The bride was lovely in her smart traveling ensemble of navy chiffon. Her becoming hat was an off-the-face model of navy felt worn with navy accessories. Completing her costume was a shoulder corsage of pink rosebuds and sweetpeas.

After the ceremony, the bridal party and guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast. The dining table was overlaid with a filet lace and cutwork cloth. Serving were Misses Frances Arrington, Gladys Arrington, Lucille Thompson, Lillian Rainey, Mrs. A. A. Arrington Jr. and Mrs. Millard Arrington. Miss Nina McMahan, of Oglethorpe, kept the bride's book.

Mr. Bonner holds a responsible position with the Income Tax Department of the Internal Revenue Bureau, in Birmingham, Ala., where the couple will reside.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Ernest Bonner, Mrs. Bennet Slade and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hickey, all of Camden, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wallace Jr., of Americus; Mr. and Mrs. Olga McElvay, of Pelham; Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Arrington Jr., of Thomaston; Mrs. T. H. Jackson, of Madison; Miss Nina McMahan, of Oglethorpe; Miss Sara Tune and Miss Louise Baker, of Columbus.

Marion Yundt Displays Originality In Her Invitations to Stocking Tea

By Sally Forth.

ALTHOUGH there is nothing particular unique about a bridal shower, Marion Yundt displayed unusual originality in her invitations to a stocking tea which she has planned for Virginia Dillon. Marion, you know, is to be a bridesmaid in Virginia's wedding to Walter Wilson Jr., of Rye, N. H., on July 16. Marion has chosen Tuesday as the date for her party which will be given at the Piedmont Driving Club, and the nature of which is cleverly indicated on her handmade invitations.

On heavy cream cardboard, she sketched miniature stockings, which she dexterously formed into cut-outs. Underneath she applied small portions cut from silk stockings in the fashionable shades, thus giving the appearance of real silk hose. Now, wasn't that a clever idea?

Other bridesmaids in Virginia's wedding will be Bright Bickerstaff and Margaret Newberne, the bride-elect's cousin. Mrs. James Sanders, of Rye, N. H., sister of Virginia's fiance, Walter Wilson, also of Rye, will attend the bride-to-be as matron of honor. Walter E. Wilson Sr., of Rye, will act as best man for his son. The groomsmen will be Richard B. Johnston, of Columbia, S. C.; Dr. James Sanders, of Rye, N. H., and James Harris. Virginia and Walter have chosen Harold T. Dillon, Charles Henry, William Wellington, of Boston, Mass.; Oscar Newton, Dr. J. Sam Guy and Dr. J. Harris Purks for their ushers.

Virginia will be accompanied down the North Avenue Presbyterian church aisle by her father, Walter S. Dillon, who will give his daughter in marriage. After the ceremony, which takes place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Dillon will entertain members of the bridal party and of the two families at a reception at their home on Piedmont road.

THE trip ahead of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scott and Roberta Crew reads like a travelogue, and conveys the news that they leave here on July 20 for Los Angeles. After a five-day stay in the City of Angels, they will depart for San Francisco to sail from that port on the steamer Malolo, bound for the Hawaiian Islands. Here they will spend a fortnight at the Royal Hawiian hotel, before embarking on the Empress of Canada to set sail for Victoria and Vancouver.

Visits to Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies will entice the Atlantans, here to enjoy the grandeur of the scenery and the amusements offered in this picturesque section of the country to the north of the United States. In Chicago they will spend a week at the Edgewater Beach hotel, ideally situated on the shores of Lake Michigan. The visit to the Illinois city will be made especially to see Ben Lee Crew Jr., who is making his home in Chicago.

RIDING the crest of the social wave in London is Mrs. Ormond Lawson-Johnstone, whom you will recall as the former Mrs. Lyman Kendall. She is a native Georgian and lived in Thomasville. She was born Betty Coyle and her marriage to Ormond Lawson-Johnstone marked her third voyage on the matrimonial seas.

Every cablegram from London contains the name of the popular Georgian, who moves in the smart set in England. She was a guest at the "coming out" party given at the Carlton hotel by Mrs. Claude Leigh for her debutante daughter and her husband's daughter.

Mrs. Lawson-Johnstone was among the 50 guests at the dinner given recently by Mrs. Manville Gould, an important London hostess. Every feminine guest was presented a spray of white orchids tied with mauve velvet ribbon, and all down the center of the table were trails of white orchids.

DID you hear about the prominent Atlanta doctor who embarked on a sea voyage to get away from things? He was very tired and worn. He needed a complete rest from the many patients to whose daily complaints he listened most sympathetically.

So he decided on a cruise. Perhaps the bracing air of the North sea would do him good. He chose a fair-sized steamer, not too big, but large enough to get away from things if one desired.

At the call of the first meal aboard, he went down to the dining salon. And would you believe it? There sat, not one, but five, of his Atlanta patients!

BY WAY of the high seas comes news from Mary Blackwell flitting with happy abandon through Europe. Mary, who has been in Hollywood for the past year, is one of these lucky young persons who has good times literally handed to her on a silver platter. She left Hollywood some six weeks ago for England, where she joined a dear friend, Martha Jane Mooney, for the summer at the latter's home, The Pines, Chorley Wood, Herts, England, just outside London. Martha Jane attends Sweetbriar College in Virginia, and Mary plans to remain in England until her hostess returns to America to resume her studies at Sweetbriar College.

At present, Martha Jane is with her parents for a two-week stay at Lake Como, Italy. Mary is in Paris but will join her hosts next week.

Sally quotes below excerpts from Mary's letter: "I am having the most glorious time imaginable over here, and every minute nas been just crammed full of grand things. I attended the commencement dance at Oxford, which was the thrill of a lifetime. I couldn't believe that I could be dancing there among all those wonderful old buildings with their history, traditions, background, world-reknown fame where the traces of age is beautifully apparent. The Oxford students are as nice as they can be, so typically English in every detail of speech, dress, manner.

"Paris has been marvelous, as it has honestly surpassed all of my wildest dreams of beauty. I have never seen so much genuinely true art in one place before. Speaking of art, yesterday I had the grandest experience. I was walking through the Louvre, when I happened to see a group of Annapolis midshipmen and upon looking closer whom should I see but Rumel Bradley from home. We went sight-seeing together all day and in the evening we went to a party at the Lido, given by Colonel Cocroft, of the army, for Annapolis boys."

Mary, the daughter of the W. Earl Blackwells, formerly of Atlanta but now of Hollywood, Cal., carries with her the wish of her countless Atlanta friends in that she will continue her round of pleasures in Europe. Her brother Earl is fast gaining fame in the movies and has appeared in pictures.

Butt—Mock.

Mrs. J. A. Butt, of Blairsville, Ga., announces the marriage of her daughter, Grapelle, to Claud Evans Mock, of Copperhill, Tenn. The marriage was solemnized May 18 at Greenville, South Carolina.

The bride is a graduate of the Young Harris College and the University of Georgia. For the past year she has been engaged in teaching in the Cleveland High school, Cleveland, Ga.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Mock, of Mountain City, Tenn. He is in the employment of the Tennessee Copper Company at Copperhill, Tenn., where the couple will reside.

State U. D. C. President Writes On Memorial Park Dedication

By Mrs. J. L. McCord, of Atlanta, Editor Georgia Division U. D. C.

Mrs. T. W. Reed, president of Georgia Division U. D. C., writes of dedication exercises of Liberty Hall, the home of Alexander H. Stephens, which has been made the Alexander H. Stephens Memorial Park, as follows:

"Among the notable events in Georgia this month will be the dedication of the Alexander H. Stephens Memorial Park in Crawfordville. The oate set for the official dedication of that beautiful park is July 18 and a large number of enthuisastic Georgians will be present.

"This park, destined to be one of the most attractive of the historical spots in Georgia, has been constructed around Liberty Hall, the home of Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy. Years ago the Stephens Monumental Association purchased Liberty Hall and erected a statue of Mr. Stephens near that building. Georgia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, purchased adjacent land. Then came the proposition to restore the old home of Mr. Stephens and the property was deeded to the state and passed under the control of the State Foresty Department.

"A CCC camp was established at Crawfordville two years ago and additional land was secured, so that at present the park covers nearly two hundred acres. It is expected that more land will be acquired before the park is completed.

"Liberty Hall has been thoroughly reconditioned and every room restored as it was in the days of Georgia's great Commoner. The tramp room, the slave quarters, the plant used by Mr. Stephens for generating gas for lighting purposes, and other houses on the premises have been restored. The grounds have been beautified, walks and trails have been laid out through the picturesque forest surrounding the old home, a small lake has been provided and bath houses constructed.

"The Georgia legislature at its last session provided the money with which a portion of the additional land was purchased and with which Liberty Hall is being refurnished. Thus Liberty Hall becomes a shrine to which not only Georgians but also citizens of every state will go from time to time in the coming years.

"The dedication exercises have been arranged for 11 o'clock Thursday morning, July 18, under the joint direction of the State Forestry Department and the Georgia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Governor Eugene Talmadge will be the orator of the day. The Daughters of the Confederacy will have a pilgrimage to Crawfordville on that occasion and members of that organization from every section of the state are expected to be present. All the citizens of Georgia and especially those living in that vicinity are given a cordial invitation to attend the dedication exercises."

On June 25 the Liberty County U. D. C. met at the home of Misses Laura and Lily Mae Fraser at Flemington. Miss Fraser opened the program with "A Tribute to Jefferson Davis, the only President of the Confederacy." Interesting questions and answers on the life of this great man were given, in which every member took part. "Jefferson Davis' Service in the United States Senate," was given by Mrs. J. W. Miller. Miss Josie Martin discussed the question "Why the Name of Sidney Lanier Should Be Advanced to the Hall of Fame." Miss Virginia Fraser gave an article on "Stratford Hall." The music for the afternoon was furnished by Misses Elizabeth Smith, Laura Fraser and Mr. Parker. A word contest on "Jefferson Davis, the Great Constitutionalist," was held, in which Miss Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. J. B. Fraser were declared winners.

Miss Leila Summerall Issues Open Letter to Unit Chairmen

By Latimer Watson, of Columbus, Director of Publicity, Georgia Department, American Legion Auxiliary.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 6.—Miss Leila Summerall, department chairman of the National Auxiliary Bulletin committee, sends the following letter to all unit chairmen: "Have you read the July issue of the National American Legion Auxiliary Bulletin? You cannot afford to miss a single number of this intensely interesting magazine. People who know auxiliary work write instructive articles concerning our great auxiliary program. We read what other departments are doing. We see now our department ranks with other departments. This Bulletin keeps you in touch with auxiliary units in the United States, in our island possessions and in some foreign countries.

"Five departments have reached their quota in the Auxiliary Bulletin campaign. Three other departments have a higher percentage than Georgia. Won't you help Georgia reach her quota? Our department had to get 387 subscriptions—251 have been secured and 136 are needed to reach our quota.

"The campaign ends July 31. What a fine thing it will be if we can say that Georgia did her part. Thirty-two units have responded, and many of these have done more. It will be greatly appreciated if units will secure additional subscriptions. What about the other 56 units? If they will send in the four subscriptions asked for, Georgia will far exceed her quota.

"Unit presidents, won't you see that these subscriptions are sent in immediately? Let your unit subscribe to the Bulletin for its officers. The larger number of Bulletin readers in your auxiliary the better informed will be your members and greater achievements will be accomplished.

"If your subsciption blanks have given out, just send me the name and address of the subscriber, the 40 cents for each subscription and I will fill out the blank. Georgia is depending on you; if you succeed, Georgia will succeed. We must reach our quota and you can help us. Have you done your very best to make this part of our program a success?"

Miss Mattie Kate Bagley, department president; Mrs. J. M. Sigman, Macon, state legislative chairman, and Mrs. Nolen McCrary, sixth district president, represented the auxiliary at the Child Welfare conference held in Macon last Sunday by the Legion.

The conference was held at the Hotel Dempsey and was attended by federal officials, high officials of the Georgia department of the Legion and Auxiliary and the Joseph N. Neel post and auxiliary. At this meeting Bibb county was chosen for the first test of a proposed nation-wide child welfare survey to be undertaken by the Public Works Administration. The Joseph N. Neel post and auxiliary will be in direct charge of the test in co-operation with the child welfare department of Georgia.

J. P. Kelly, of Valdosta, state chairman of the Georgia Child Welfare committee of the Legion, named Ben T. Watkins, commander of the Macon Legion post, as chairman of the committee. Others named were Lieutenant Stanley Jones, state adjutant; Bill Janes, member of the state welfare committee; Mrs. J. M. Sigman, state legislative chairman and president of the Macon unit of the Legion auxiliary; and Mrs. Nolen McCrary, sixth district president of the Legion auxiliary.

A. A. Acree, field survey co-ordinator for FERA, with headquarters in Atlanta, joined Mr. Kelly and David Cohn, of Moultrie, member of the child welfare committee, in presenting the program to the conference. M. W. Blanton, representing Miss Gay B. Shepperson, FERA director. The survey will employ approximately 50 canvassers.

Others attending were Miss Mattie Kate Bagley, Columbus, state president of the American Legion Auxiliary; DeLacey Allen, Albany, state commander of the Legion; Arthur Cheatham, Atlanta, state service officer of veterans' administration; Gerald Wilcox, Bibb county ETA engineer; Harry Holley, of Macon post child welfare committee; Miss Katherine Sammons, representative of state department of child welfare; Miss Genie C. Barnes, Bibb ERA administrator; Mrs. DeLacey Allen, Albany, Mrs. Ophelia Graham, of the Macon auxiliary; Nolan McCrary, of Macon Legion post, and others.

Warm Springs Civic Club Holds Meeting

Mrs. R. A. Sloan, president of Warm Springs Civic Club, presided at the June meeting held at the home of Mrs. R. O. Philips, with Mesdames Robert Fowler, Andrew Hancock, Joe Turner, A. N. Whitehead and Mrs. E. Proctor as hostesses. Mrs. H. E. Poor and Mrs. Will Reid read the club litany, and Mrs. T. N. Dye talked on "Current Events."

Mrs. W. G. Harry, chairman of the cooking school, reported that there were 115 in attendance at the school which netted the club $30.50 profit. The Georgia Power Company considered this a successful venture and appreciation is given Mesdames H. Allen, Duncan Cannon, James Butts and H. P. Hunter as prize committee.

Mrs. Gene Bulloch Worth, the parliamentarian, introduced Miss Dora Freeman, of Greenville, who gave a splendid talk on the "History of Parliamentary Law." Miss Freeman is a lawyer and one of Meriwether's most highly educated women and a most interesting and worthwhile lecturer.

Mrs. Sloan, introduced the state first vice president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Albert Hill, who spoke intelligently on "Our State Institutions for the Underprivileged."

Mrs. W. G. Harry, program chairman, presented Miss Mallette Proctor, who rendered a piano solo. Mrs. H. E. Poor read an appropriate poem entitled "The Day and the Work."

Miss Dora Freeman, Mrs. Nemie Awtrey and Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville; Miss Alexander, of Millersburg, Ky.; Mrs. Eugenia Glover, of California; Mrs. Castello, of Miami, Fla.; Mrs. A. B. Graham, of Fort Benning; Mrs. C. D. Holloway, of Butler, and Mrs. E. F. Whitehead were visitors.

Miss Laura Lee Hallum Weds Mr. Price in Cedartown, Ga.

MRS. WILLIAM P. PRICE JR.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., July 6.—The wedding of Miss Laura Lee Hallum, of Cedartown, to William Prescott Price Jr., of Atlanta, was solemnized Saturday at high noon at the home of the bride's parents on Highland avenue in the presence of the immediate families. At one end of the living room an altar was improvised with woodwardia fern and tall baskets filled with white dahlias, gladiolus and delphinium. Tall candelabra held burning tapers.

Miss Sara Hallum, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. She was gowned in a becoming model of powder blue chiffon with transparent hat of the same shade. Her corsage was of pink roses and sweet peas. The bride, who entered with her father, was attired in a traveling costume of navy sheer crepe. Her hat and other accessories were of white. She wore a shoulder spray of sweetheart roses and valley lilies. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Gordon Field Price. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Schilling, of Cartersville.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Hallum, of Cedartown. Her paternal grandmother is Mrs. C. L. Walker, of Carrollton. She is the grandniece and namesake of Lieutenant General Robert Lee Bullard, of New York city.

Mr. Price is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Price Sr., of Atlanta. His paternal grandparents were the Hon. William P. Price and Martha Martin Price, of Dahlonega, Ga. His maternal grandparents were Eben E. Crisson and Matilda Field Crisson, of Dahlonega. Mr. Price is sales-manager of Prior Tire Company of Atlanta.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hallum entertained with an informal breakfast. The bride's table was overlaid with a real lace cloth. Gracing the center was a three-tier white wedding cake exquisitely embossed in delicate pink roses, valley lilies and orange blossoms. The cake was the artistic work of Miss Sterling Price, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Price and his bride left for a motor trip to Miami, Fla. On their return they will make their home in Atlanta.

Brooks Woman's Club.

The June meeting of Brooks Woman's Club was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. B. Woods. Miss Regina Wilson called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. E. C. Hardy, program chairman. Members sang "The Battle Hymn of the Federation," after which Mrs. William Malone gave "The Cherokee Rose." Miss Martha Harp Coppedge rendered a solo and Mrs. W. N. Stephens delighted members with a reading entitled "Understanding."

Mrs. Josephine J. Doggett To Direct Excellent Club Institute Program

Thursday, July 11, will mark the opening of the two-day session of the anual club institute of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, in Athens. Mrs. Josephine J. Doggett, who will be the leader, has built her program around the central theme, "Climbing the Golden Stairs of the Federation." The diverse fields in which the Federation of Women's Clubs finds leadership in club affairs, the wide range of its apepal to the majority of women, furnish the story of past achievements, present greatness and future possibilities.

Mrs. Doggett's program is arranged to give a better understanding and a more intense appreciation of the Federation, and to kindle within all attending a desire to be an integral part of this splendid organization. This institute is commended to every clubwoman as a season of revival of interest and inspiration.

Notable Speakers.

After preliminary exercises which will begin at 9:30 o'clock and include the club collect and "My Georgia Land," welcome will be extended by Dr. Harmon Caldwell, president-elect of the University of Georgia, and Dr. E. D. Pusey, member of the university faculty. The initial talk by Mrs. Dogget will be on the "Evolution of the General Federation of Women's Clubs." Other speakers will give the "Evolution of the State Federation" and the "Evolution of a Local Club." Panel discussion will follow. At 12 o'clock Mrs. Albert Hill, first vice president of Georgia Federation, will bring for consideration the problems of the Georgia Federation.

"The Federation Today" will be the general theme of the afternoon session, and, after assembly singing, Mrs. Dogget's subject will be, "All Wool and a Yard Wide." This will be followed by a discussion, "Ways of Increasing Club Membership." Miss Carolyn Vance, of university faculty, will discuss "How to Make Your Plans Effective Through Public Speaking."

Adjournment at 4 will be followed by playtime when a tour to points of interest can be made, including the university buildings and the pottery workroom. In the physical education building, university authorities will have the swimming pool opened for the visitors, with suits and caps furnished. At 7 p. m. the Tallulah birthday party will take place when there will be a pageant in the open-air theater.

The first scene of this parade of events will have as its central figure Mrs. Annie Thrasher Parham, of Watkinsville, the very first teacher in Tallulah Falls school. The second scene will feature the interest of the Lipscomb and Moss families in the school, and Mrs. Laura Rutherford Hutchins, sister of Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb, will tell the mountain children a Bible story based on Nehemiah, 4th chapter and 6th verse: "So built we the wall . . . for the people had a mind to work."

The third scene will portray Tallulah of today. The background to the spectacle will be a living representation of "The Light in the Mountains," personified by Mrs. Richard Trimble, niece of the former president of Georgia Federation, Mrs. Harry C. White, who will be surrounded by children of the members of the Young Matrons' Tallulah Circle, of Athens.

Adding interest to the pageant, intermittent dances will portray the "Spirit of Youth" and the "Spirit of the School." Dancers will be the children of the Mary Ann Lipscomb elementary school, formerly a part of the Lucy Cobb Institute, and by members of the class in interpretative dancing of the University of Georgia.

The Friday morning session, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, will open with an address, "A Balanced Perspective," given by Mrs. Doggett and followed by an open forum. Club yearbooks will be discussed by Mrs. Harvie Jordan, executive secretary and "How to Introduce Current Events Into the Club Program" will be told. The subjects assigned are "How to Put a Club on a Sound Financial Basis," and "Clubhouse Financing." Miss Virginia Persons, of Talbotton, will tell the "Duties of a Delegate," and other topics include, "Co-ordinating Rural and Urban Groups," "Achieving a Perspective in Life Today," and "Are Clubs Abreast of the New Era?"

Tallulah Jubilee Closes.

From 12 to 1 will close the Tallulah silver jubilee observance. Mrs. John K. Ottley, president of the board of trustees, will preside and present old-time Tallulah friends and others. There will be Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb's sister, Mrs. J. C. Hutchins and her daughters, Mrs. Dave Paddock and Mrs. Morton Hodgson; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lipscomb; Mrs. E. R. Hodgson Sr., and Miss Sarah Moss. Specially invited guests for this hour will be the families of the late Dr. Jere M. Pound and Dr. Joseph S. Stewart.

Mrs. John Monaghan, of Pelham, will bring a last message as silver jubilee chairman and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick will have a direct greeting from the school where she is resident trustee. The closing talk will be made by Mrs. H. B. Ritchie on "The Next Step."

Complimentary luncheon will precede the afternoon session which will be devoted to the "Federation of the Future." Mrs. Doggett's subject will be "Luck to the Bride," which will be followed by an open forum on junior problems. Speakers will tell "What I Would Like Best to See Our Local Clubs Become" and "What I Would Like to See the State Federation Do"; "What I Would Like the General Federation of Women's Clubs Undertake" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. J. W. Gholston, general director for Georgia.

Mrs. Grace Poole Acknowledges Gift.

At the recent convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Detroit, the retiring president, Grace Morrison Poole, was presented a well filled purse from the member states and in grateful acknowledgement Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, president of Georgia federation, has this letter:

"Dear Lady Ritchie: May I express through you my deep appreciation for Georgia's share in the wonderful gift I received. I hope to use it for a trip to new lands next summer. And may I also express my gratitude to the Georgia federation for its loyal support of the general federation during my administration. Affectionately, Grace Morrison Poole."

Carnesville Club.

The Carnesville Woman's Club held its June meeting at the home of Mrs. T. G. Hall with Mrs. Leland Gillespie and Miss Lucy Ruth Hall, cohostesses and was called to order by the president, Mrs. Parker Purcell. The collect was read by Mrs. Leland Gillespie. Mrs. Robert Howe was elected second vice president and Mrs. Clarence Miller was elected parliamentarian. Mrs. H. G. Warsley, chairman of yearbook committee, presented a copy of 1935-'36 yearbook which was accepted by club. Interest was shown about a clubhouse and it was voted to help the board of education in the building of a model home for the Home Economic Club meetings. It was decided that the July meeting would be a picnic including the immediate families and Junior Woman's Club.

The following program on "Citizenship" was presented by Mrs. C. B. Akin: "The Star-Spangled Banner," by club; "Constitution and By-Laws," Mrs. Robert Howe; "Pledge to Flag," by club. Mrs. E. N. Osborne gave an interesting talk on "Citizenship."

The club was delighted to have as visitors Miss Sarah Brown and the president of Franklin County Federation, Mrs. Eldon Purcell, from Lavonia, Ga., and Miss Mattie Rampley, Francis Adair, Mrs. Broughton Shirley and E. N. Osborne. Mrs. Eldon Purcell gave a talk asking the club to co-operate with Columbia Broadcasting System in making better programs over the radio. During the social hour the hostess gave an interesting contest on "Civics," giving a miniature United States flag as a favor.

White Plains Club.

The June meeting of White Plains Woman's Club was held at the clubhouse. New officers are: President, Mrs. Sumner A. King; first vice president, Mrs. E. P. Walker; second vice president, Mrs. M. H. Tappan; secretary, Mrs. Sidney Howell; treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Moore, and keeper of archives, Miss Helen Kilpatrick. The house and grounds, town, cemetery, tree planting, library, memorial committees each reported work being done. The treasurer reported all obligations paid up and a small amount of cash on hand. New yearbooks were given out and an interesting and instructive yearly work was planned.

Mrs. E. A. Cottrell presented a splendid program on "Southern Gardens." The program was concluded with an appropriae poem, "The Barrel Organ."

W. C. T. U. Quarterly Meetings Feature Inspirational Addresses

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard, of Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

More district meetings of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for the third quarter have been held in the northern part of the state. Fine speakers have been heard, but always Dr. Mary Harris Armour brought the principal message. District meetings last all day and are many-sided. First, they are educational, then inspirational, and there is a practical business session, and a time for reporting the quarter's activities in the local unions. Always there is a luncheon, picnic dinner or barbecue, and the pleasant social intercourse of those interested in a common cause. While there is a general program for district meetings, the difference in the personnel of those who present it adds interest to those who attend several meetings in succession.

Mrs. John H. Wood, of Rome, the seventh district president, presided at the meeting in Rome. A report begins "The day was most enjoyable, food, flowers and program all fine. All the ministers in town and the Methodist presiding elder were there and manifested keen interest. It was a deeply spiritual and helpful meeting, 16 new active and four honorary members were added."

Dr. Armor, Mrs. R. H. McDougall, of Atlanta, counselor to district presidents, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Cunyus, of Cartersville, state music director, were visitors who contributed strength and beauty to the program of those from over the district.

Presidents of the local unions represented were Mrs. Fred Hull, of Acworth; Mrs. J. G. Kirchoff, of Calhoun; Mrs. A. B. Cunyus, of Cartersville; Miss Ethel Harpst, of Cedartown; Mrs. T. J. Hamby, of Marietta; Mrs. J. L. Hall, of Ringgold; Miss Mabel Ballenger, of Rockmart; Mrs. W. C. Langford, of Tallapoosa, and Mrs. B. L. Peck, of Trion.

At Elberton in June, a number of South Carolina W. C. T. U. members were in attendance. Among them, Mrs. J. L. Mimms, former state president of South Carolina, who was a speaker; Miss Florence Mimms, Miss Elenor Mimms and Mrs. Donovan, of Edgefield. Dr. Armor's timely and impressive speech had as a topic "Citizenship."

Mrs. J. T. Brooks made the welcome address and Mrs. Caroline Keener, of Augusta, the response. Rev. W. H. Rich, the Baptist minister, led the devotions. Mrs. C. C. McGinty, of Greensboro, led the prayer. The Loyal Temperance Legion, the children's branch of the W. C. T. U., was discussed by Mrs. John Snoke, of Augusta, and demonstrated by children.

Departmental directors spoke of their aims and methods. The presidents of the unions represented are Mrs. J. H. Moye, of the Augusta, Armor-Cunyus W. C. T. U.; Mrs. J. H. Snoke, of the Augusta, Sibley union; Mrs. H. T. Heath, of the Augusta, Woodlawn union; Mrs. C. B. Carson, of Bold Springs; Mrs. Dudley Sheppard, of Elberton; Mrs. E. C. Adams, of Greensboro, and Mrs. Harold Lamb, of the Jennie Hart Sibley union of Union Point.

Mrs. Remer H. Brown, of Augusta, the district president, presided. Miss Gladys Sheppard, of Elberton, former district president, was welcomed after studying two years in New York for a master's degree.

The fourth district W. C. T. U. meeting was held at the First Methodist Church of Carrollton on June 28 with the president, Mrs. M. K. Phillips, presiding. In an address on "What Do We Fight Against and How?" Dr. Mary Harris Armor said: "When de wo fight again is the only question to ask after a battle if a decisive, smashing victory has not been won. The fight goes on—at once and on and on until such a victory is won."

Mrs. Wilbur Brown, of Griffin, the state treasurer, also spoke on the urgency of this fund. Mrs. Edgar Johnson, of Carrollton, discussed citizenship. Mrs. W. C. Cantrell, Carrollton, led the song service, and Mrs. M. C. Wyley gave a splendid devotional. Rev. J. F. Davis leading the prayer. Greetings were voiced by Mrs. M. B. Ingle for the W. C. T. U., and by Rev. W. H. Clark, pastor of the hostess church Miss Florrie Johnson, of West Point, made the response. Mrs. Idus Robertson, of Manchester, led the noontide prayer, the hour when W. C. T. U. members all around the world pray for the destruction of the liquor traffic.

Reports were made by Miss Edna Morris for Barnesville; Mrs. W. H. Budd for Covington; Mrs. M. B. Ingle for Carrollton; Mrs. W. T. Hunnicutt for Griffin; Mrs. J. L. Lyons for Jackson; Mrs. Idus Robertson for Manchester; Mrs. T. E. Patterson for Newnan; Mrs. G. C. Roach for Oxford; Mrs. E. R. Cook for West Point, and Mrs. W. M. Caldwell for Zebulon. A mission program was put on by Miss Allie Beall. There were songs and talks and a reading by Mrs. A. W. McLarty, of Douglasville.

Classes Are Formed For Girls of Y. W. C. A.

Extra daytime classes will be held at the Y. W. C. A. for unemployed girls and recent high school graduates on Tuesdays. Continuing through the summer, these classes will be conducted by volunteer leaders who contribute time and talent to community service. Social and tap dancing are taught by Miss Helen Allen; tennis by Miss Louise Cowan; swimming by Mrs. C. E. Drummond; personality development, Mrs. T. A. Kitchens; interior decoration, Miss Laura Lewis. These classes are held every Tuesday from 9:30 to 1 o'clock.

Miss Coburn, of Savannah, Ga., To Wed Edward Pelham Carter

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 6.—Mrs. William Springman Coburn announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Augusta, to Edward Pelham Carter.

Miss Coburn is the younger daughter of Mrs. Coburn and the late Captain Coburn, her mother being the former Miss Ida Mallory. She is a direct descendant of Abner Coburn, colonial governor of Maine, and of Caleb Carr, colonial governor of Rhode Island, and is a great-great-great-granddaughter of Captain Pierre Douville, United States navy, who was a chater member of the Society of the Cincinnati. She is also a direct descendant of John Adam Treutlen, first governor of Georgia elected by the people, and of Roger Williams, clergyman of the Church of England, who was founder and governor of Rhode Island.

Miss Coburn moved to Savannah from Atlanta eight years ago, and was a member of the Debutante Club of 1930-31. She is very attractive, and has made many friends since coming here to live.

Mr. Carter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James Carter, of Atlanta. His paternal grandfather, for whom he was named, was the late Edward Pelham Carter, distinguished for various engineering feats, including the lighting of the Statute of Liberty. His great-grandfather, of the same name, was also a noted engineer, who built the railroad from New Orleans to Lake Ponchatrain, and also first railroad engine in America.

On his maternal side Mr. Carter is a direct descendant of the well known Renault family of France, his maternal grandmother having been Jane Renault, and his grandfather, John Daniel Blackwell, of Center, Ala., whose family were among the first settlers of Alabama.

Mr. Carter attended Marist College, in Atlanta, where he graduated, and later he finished his education with a course in business administration. He is now associated with the General Oil Company. The wedding will take place in the fall.

Cox—Roberts.

SPRING PLACE, Ga., July 6.—The marriage of Miss Nina Lou Cox, of Spring Place, to Jess Roberts, of Dalton, was solemnized at high noon Saturday at the home of the groom's brother, L. A. Roberts, in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Rev. A. B. Allen, of East Lake, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edd Cox, of Spring Place. The groom is the son of the late W. D. Roberts and Mrs. Carrie Mae Roberts, of Dalton. The bride, an attractive brunette, was lovely in an ensemble of white and lilac crepe worn with white accessories.

The bride and bridegroom left for a wedding trip and they will reside in Dalton, where Mr. Roberts holds a responsible position with the Wescott Hosiery Mill.

Fulton C. of C. To Meet Friday.

The Anna Fulton Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy, with the director, Mrs. W. Guy Hudson, will be hostesses to the Agnes Lee Chapter, U. D. C., at the meeting on Friday at 4 o'clock at the chapter house on Avery street, Decatur.

Mrs. Frank Dennis, of Eatonton, third vice president general and first vice president of the Georgia division, U. D. C., will speak on Alexander Stephens. Mrs. N. M. Jordan, state director of the Children of the Confederacy, will also be an honor guest.

Mrs. J. H. Allison, president of the Agnes Lee Chapter, requests that board members meet at 3:30 o'clock for an executive session.

Miss Williamson Will Be Bride Of Dr. Dunlap, of Sumter, S. C.

MISS MARY KATHLEEN WILLIAMSON.

Cordial interest centers in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton Williamson of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Kathleen Williamson, to Dr. Tyler Bennett Dunlap, of Sumter, S. C., the marriage to be solemnized on September 18.

The bride-elect is the sister of Mrs. Hugh W. Childs, Mrs. Richard Lee Starnes, of Rome, Ga., and Miss Helen Williamson. Maternally she is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Wright and the niece of Miss Clyde Wright. On her paternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Williamson, and the niece of J. J. Williamson, president of Williamson, Inman & Company, Inc., cotton merchants.

Miss Williamson is a graduate of North Avenue Presbyterian school, where she was a member of Pi Sigma Kappa honorary society. She completed her education at Oglethorpe University, from which institution she was an honor graduate, having been elected valedictorian of her class. She is a member of Beta Phi Alpha sorority, Coat-of-Arms Club and Phi Kappa Delta honorary fraternity.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mrs. E. K. Dunlap and the late Mr. Dunlap, of Wadesboro, N. C. Before her marriage his mother was Miss Ethel Bennett. He is the brother of Misses Fanny and Josephine Dunlap and W. B. Dunlap, also of Wadesboro, N. C. Dr Dunlap is a member of both sides of prominent families, both having come direct to North Carolina from Scotland and England.

He attended North Carolina State College, Raleigh, N. C., where he was a member of Phi Kappa Tau national social fraternity, Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, N. C., and Duke University, Durham, N. C. He received his D. D. S. degree from Atlanta Southern Dental College, where he was a member of Xi Psi Phi national professional fraternity. He is now practicing dentistry in Sumter, S. C., where he is specializing in the practice of oral surgery. He is a member of the American Dental Society and he is a first lieutenant in the dental reserves.

Historical Programs for 1935-36 Announced for D. A. R. Study

D. A. R. historical programs for 1935-1936 by Leola Selman Beeson are announced today. One object of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, besides perpetuating the memories of the men and women who achieved independence, is "To carry out the injunction of Washington in his farewell address to the American people, to promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge, thus developing an enlightened public opinion, and affording to young and old such advantages as shall develop in them the largest capacity for performing the duties of American citizens."

Special days to be observed will be January 17, Benjamin Franklin's birthday; February 12, Georgia Day; February 22, Washington's birthday; April 3, the American Creed Day; April 13, Jefferson's birthday; July 4, Independence Day; September 17, Constitution and Magna Charta Day; September 6, Lafayette Day; November 11, Armistice Day. Begin each program with a patriotic song, the salute to the flag, and chapters are urged to use the ritual.

Subject: Biographies of men who have made great history for Georgia. For September is Thomas Jefferson, who, upon entering the presidency, appointed three members of his cabinet for the vast territorial cessions embracing the Yazoo lands. They were Mr. Madison, secretary of state; Mr. Gallatin, secretary of the treasury, and Mr. Lincoln, attorney-general. The commissioners on the part of Georgia were James Jackson, Abraham Baldwin and John Milledge. On April 24, 1802, the cession was signed.

In studying General James Jackson, the Yazoo Fraud, consult "Chappell's Miscellaneous of Georgia," pp. 56-138; Joel Chandler Harris "Stories of Georgia," pp. 120-136; Pickett's "History of Alabama," pp. 408-416, 443-460.

October: The subject is Abraham Baldwin: "Georgia merits peculiar honor in being among the first of the states to make provision for a state university and in passing most wholesome laws for securing to her sons the blessings of liberal education on her own soil."

November: The subject is John Milledge. Consult Rev. William Bacon Stevens' "History of Georgia," pp. 363-364. His gift to the University of Georgia. E. M. Coulters' "College Life in the South," pp. 6-10. "White's Historical Collections," pp. 223-224.

December: Old-time Christmas celebrations. The first Fourth of July celebration ever held in Georgia was on August 10, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was read, with ceremony, four times. Describe it. (C. C. Jones' "History of Georgia," pp. 242-243, Vol. 11.)

January: Georgians who missed glory by not signing their names to the Declaration of Independence were characters of the framers of the constitution that exists.

(Biographical sketches of the delegates from Georgia to the continental congress.—Charles C. Jones Jr.)

February: Georgia Day and George Washington's birthday. Co-operation is urged with all the public schools in the county in presenting patriotic programs before the students.

March: The subject is "Georgia's Three Signers," Lyman Hall. His address as Governor to the legislature of Georgia at Augusta on July 8, 1783, urging the introduction of religion and the endowment of seminaries of learning. (Rev. William Bacon Stevens' "History of Georgia" John Houston, who came home to watch Rev. Dr. John J. Zubly. ("Miller's Bench and Bar of Georgia," pp. 97-104), and (William Pierce, who gave, in writing to a friend, the best contemporary analysis of the personal gia." pp. 114-117-129.) George Walton and Button Gwinnett.

For April: Ministers of the gospel who were in the Revolution. On May, 1784, Rev. Archibald Simpson, of South Carolina, on his way to Scotland, wrote from Savannah: "There is at present no minister of any denomination in this place; and I am told there is not an ordained minister in the whole state."

Rev. John Springer, the first Presbyterian minister to be ordained in Georgia, pp. 18-22. Rev. James Stacey's "History of the Presbyterian Church in Georgia.") Rev. Daniel Marshall, the first minister of a regularly constituted Baptist church in Georgia. (Pp. 15-21, Campbell's "Georgia Baptist.") Rev. Samuel Whatley, Rev. James Matthews, Rev. Henry Holcomb, D. D. (Campbell's "Georgia Baptist.") Abraham Marshall. (The Atlanta Journal, Thursday, January 10, 1934.) Rev. Frances Cumming. ("Proceedings Georgia D. A. R., 1931," pp. 42-43.) (Stacey's "History of the Presbyterian Church in Georgia," p. 29.) Rev. Isaac Smith. (White's Statistics of Georgia," p. 563.)

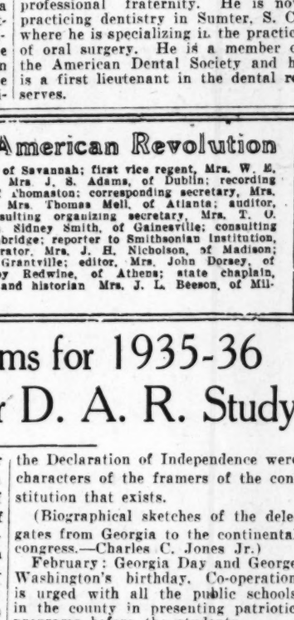

In May the subject is "A Negro Patriot in the Revolution." Austin Dabney. (Joel Chandler Harris' "Stories of Georgia," pp. 115-20.) (Gilmer's "Sketch of Some of the First Settlers of Upper Georgia," pp. 164-168.)

June the study is General Elijah Clarke. (Absalom Harris' "Miscellanies of Georgia," pp. 33-74) and Governor John Clark (George G. Smith's "The Story of Georgia and the Georgia People," pp. 228-244) (Joel Chandler Harris' "Stories of Georgia," pp. 142-145.)

July and August, vacation months, and no subjects will be studied.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SUNDAY, JULY 7, 1935.

NO WONDER HE HAD A PAIN — Screws, staples, knives, forks, spoons, pins and buckles are just a few of the articles that were taken from the stomach of a patient by amazed surgeons at Upton, England. The collection is being inspected by a doctor in the above photo.

PICTURE OF A THIEF IN ACTION—A Glen Dale, Md., man exasperated by constant pilferings of his ice box, rigged a "photo trap" that took a photograph when the ice box was opened. This photo is the result. Police identified it as A. M. Page, of Washington, a former convict, who had been killed after the picture was made.

"MISS GREAT BRITAIN"—Miss Muriel Oxford who was recently chosen the most beautiful girl in the British Isles.

HOW'S THIS FOR FORM?—Senator Huey Long caught by the candid camera as he took a shot and registers disgust as the ball sails off in an entirely different direction. It was on a Washington golf course.

MEETING OF CHAMPIONS—Colonel Roscoe Turner, holder of numerous speed records, flew from California to Meridian, Miss., to personally congratulate Fred and Al Key for establishing a new world's endurance record for continuous flying.

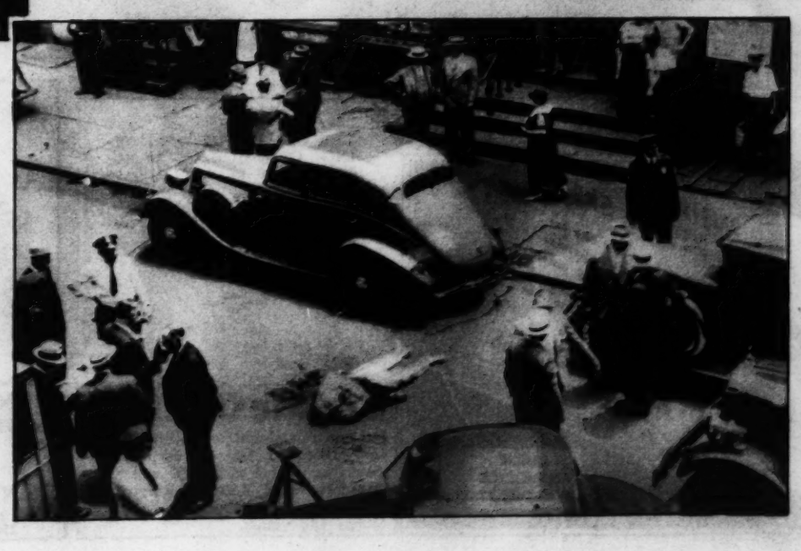

HONOR LATE EDITOR—The memory of John Lewis Herring, editor of the Tifton Gazette, was honored recently at the unveiling of this monument by his grandchildren, Eunice, Bobbye and Gerald Neal Herring. The Tifton Garden Club sponsored the movement to erect the memorial.

MAESTROS — YOUNG AND OLD—Ben Bernie, famous orchestra leader, welcoming his son, Jason, to Hollywood where a career in pictures may await him.

Nearly $10,000,000 is being spent by the United States government on improvements at Fort Benning. When completed it will be the largest and most modern army school in the world. The fort is located near Columbus and has a population of 7,000. It is a complete city within itself.

Presto! And the "Hypnotic" Speed-King Got the Heiress' Fortune

He Awoke Her in the Middle of the Night to Stampede Her Into Signing Away Her Riches

"PERSUASIVE" So Capt. Charles Lloyd Described Promoter Weatherell, Who Painted Glowing Word-Pictures of Racing Trophies to Adorn the Family Shelves.

BIG LEGACY The Drowning of Her First Husband Made Mrs. Lloyd Both a Widow and an Heiress When She Was Only 21.

HAPPY—AFTER THE VERDICT The Strange Midnight Contract Voided, Ursula and Her Gallant Husband Celebrate Over the Teacups—and Vow to Rule Out Go-Betweens in the Spending of Any Part of Their $600,000 Fortune.

SPEED WAS HER MANIA
And She Lost No Time in Signing the Glib Promoter's Strange Speed Pact.

THE "evil hour," the "hypnotic eye," a scratch of the pen—and the deed was done.

Also, Mrs. Ursula Eileen Lloyd, 23-year-old British heiress to $600,000 and former shopgirl, was undone, by that same action—until, after one of those typically spicy London high-court proceedings, with be-wigged justices sitting en banc and the pretty principal dramatically "collapsing" in the witness box at the high point in the testimony, Justice unscrambled the mess.

The "deed," in this case, actually was a deed, in a documentary sense. It invested one Reginald Dixon Weatherell, whiz-bang motorboat designer and racing pilot, and even speedier in promoting boat-building enterprises, with the full control of Mrs. Lloyd's investments and disbursements, save only domestic expenditures. For which stewardship the whiz-bang m. b. d. and r. p. was to be rewarded with an annual stipend of $2,600 for ten years—as "expense money"—and a bonus of $25,000, $50,000 or $75,000, to be staggered according to the amount the young heiress received under the will of her first husband, Charles Hanson, son of Sir Francis Hanson, whose drowning had widowed her when she was only 21.

Speed was the real core and consideration of the case—in fact, a dual consideration. For, as regarded Mrs. Lloyd, Weatherell's glowing picture of a fleet of Lloyd speed boats, to be constructed by a company he was to organize and she to finance—and which would attack and annihilate all existing speed records—proved the lure that caused her to affix her signature to the agreement.

It seemed quite equitable to her, under the spell of the nautical expert's glib talk; she was making a deal for that sizzling commodity, speed, to which, as an accomplished amateur aviatrix, land and water motorist and horsewoman, she was ardently addicted.

While, as Weatherell saw it, speed was quite as important a consideration to him—and an extremely urgent one. Not as a sizzling commodity, in this instance, but as an element of space and time. For—as the Court later pointed out—all his ventures of late had been singularly unfortunate, and he was in dire need of money. He had a wife and three children to support.

So he speeded up that fateful period of the signing of the crucial document which Justice Finlay called the "evil hour"—and which happened to be at 12:30 in the morning, a rather unseemly time at which to transact business, one would think.

When Mrs. Lloyd took the stand, she was asked pointedly about the circumstances surrounding the signing of the agreement which she now sought to have voided.

"Could you suggest anything in the document that is difficult to understand?"

"It is not difficult for me to understand now," was the plaintiff's quick reply, with a knowing glance at the defendant.

"Can you conceive of anyone of your age being muddled as to the meaning of a single paragraph of this agreement?"

"Yes—in the circumstances."

"What circumstances?

"Illness and sleeping draughts—being awakened in the middle of the night—and with two men arguing with me at the same time."

The other man referred to was her husband, Capt. Charles Lloyd, a retired army captain and air survey pilot.

"I was very angry," said the officer, referring to Weatherell's midnight intrusion. "I was amazed to see what was in the document and objected to her signing it. He said he'd change it to suit us.

"As I still would not agree, my wife got hysterical, snatched the document from him and signed it."

For Mrs. Lloyd believed in speed—and so did Weatherell.

Suggestions of clandestine meetings and overnight rendezvous at hotels were charged against the promoter in earlier testimony by Mrs. Lloyd—and of these her husband said:

"I saw my wife as being under the thumb of Weatherell; being held by his power of persuasion and the use of this power to his own ends. This power appeared to be of a mesmeric nature."

Wise Mr. Justice Finlay, in summing up, said he thought there was no doubt that the agreement was "an extraordinary document, which ought not to have been signed without careful advice and consideration"—in which opinion the jury concurred, deciding in favor of Mrs. Lloyd.

And the Judge also ordered that Mrs. Lloyd be reimbursed for her outlay in bringing the action—so that Mr. Weatherell will not be altogether without the exercise of his occupation: this time the promotion of those court costs.

4 Women Wedded to 2 Men Equals 2 Friendships Plus 0 Marriages

Psychologists Enjoy a Bad Day as Feminine Rivals Lock Arms—Not Horns—in Court to Settle Bigamy Troubles

DO THEY LOOK LIKE RIVALS? "How D'ye Do?" Said Mrs. Vernon Johns to Mrs. Vernon Johns, When They Met for the First Time in Court. After the Embrace, They Made Common War on Their Bigamous Mate.

"MARRY IN HASTE—!" Vernon Johns Had Lots of Time to Repent, With Two Mrs. Johnses Seeking Divorces Simultaneously.

MUTUAL MATE One Was Deluded Into Believing She Was Married, the Other Was Married—but Both Would Have Nothing More to Do With Edward M. Hatfield When They Met and Compared Notes.

BOMBSHELL PROVED BOOMERANG Edward M. Hatfield Escaped a Bigamy Charge, but in So Doing Earned the Contempt of His Wife, Who Sued for Divorce.

THE fury of a woman jilted and the rage of a woman bilked in love by one and the same object of affection results, through some strange biological quirk, in friendship rather than rancor between the offended parties.

There's a proposition that affords a pipeful for the professors of domestic relations to puff and to ponder, for it violates all previous conclusions in the matter and hands the psychologists a body blow.

For here is Mary O'Dell, of Los Angeles, who, at 18, finds herself the wife of Vernon Johns, a barber—and then finds she isn't, as her husband hadn't complied with the formality of a divorce from his previous spouse, 17-year-old Mabel Ross.

This situation, branding Johns a bigamist, came to light when Mary went to court to protest against her husband's practice of sending little 4-year-old Mary, the daughter of his previous and allegedly divorced wife, into beer halls to sing and dance for money. The court, seeking to determine whether he had legal custody of the child, found no record of a divorce.

Word of the imbroglio reached the forgotten wife and mother, and she, apparently grateful over the unselfish interest her successor had taken in her offspring, joined forces with the deluded girl to prosecute their mutual, dual and delinquent husband.

Johns's excuse that he had come upon a letter written by his wife, in which she stated that she intended to divorce him, that he had taken the matter for granted and had decamped with his daughter, then 2 years old, had little effect on the jury. He was found guilty of bigamy.

Exceptions prove the rule! cried the die-hard doctrinaires, always unwilling to revise text-books and stock treatises. And right on the echo bobbed up Case No. 2—that of the Hatfields, also of Los Angeles—identical in its main aspects and in its psychological reaction on the two aggrieved principals.

Edward M. Hatfield didn't take it for granted that his first mate, Alice, would free him when his fancy turned to his second, Solveig; he had made sure of that by not marrying her at all. His testimony, denying a legal ceremony, was a bombshell at the former's suit for divorce—but it also proved a boomerang. For it brought indignant Mrs. Solveig Hatfield on the scene, also to sue Hatfield for divorce, and to lock arms and link forces with Mrs. Alice Hatfield in making war on the common enemy. Two divorce suits at once is plenty!

So that, when Hatfield's coup succeeded and Alice was held not to be his legal wife, he also lost Solveig, whose divorce was granted in a jiffy.

Well, of course, coincidences will happen, now meekly countered the somewhat confused authorities. And then, with crashing conclusiveness, befell the third premise-piercing reiteration of woman's defiance of all ordinary rules of reasoning, upsetting for good and all the psychological apple-cart.

This time the scene shifts to White Plains, New York. Again two women, strangers until then, sit amicably side by side in a courtroom, balefully eyeing a once mutual object of affection—although at that time unaware of the similarity of their tastes. This time dual identity figures in the case, for one of the women is Mrs. Louis Marcus and the other Mrs. J. L. Marx—yet the husband is the same and the purport of the action is the same, namely bigamy.

"Marcus is the name, sir," as the debonair defendant used to greet customers at the taxi firm he operated, and he only became Marx when an estrangement with his wife, Rose, mother of a 4-year-old daughter, resulted and he sought out Anne McElwaine for consolation and a renewal of romance. Rose heard of it and had him arrested as a bigamist.

However, in this Marcus-"Marxian" mix-up, the friendship of the women banded together for mutual protection transcended even that of the other double pair of wronged mates, for Rose, doing her best to extricate all concerned from an unpleasant situation, relinquished Louis to her new-found friend, divorcing him so that Anne would be free to re-marry him. This step had the effect of relieving the White Plains Don Juan from standing trial for his transgression of the law.

NOW—what will the psychologists say? Well, maybe—"Women are just contrary, that's all! You can't fix them, for microscopic examination, like a spitted butterfly. You can't define them, like a given quantity or a set quality. That's what makes 'em women."

Yes, they're the inconsistent species, all right, despite the reams of paper devoted to impressively worded treatises, laboriously constructed with the one purpose of placing them in a certain category. And the more femininity has rebelled at being scientifically labelled and catalogued, and neatly placed in a niche as a known entity the more desperately have the professors of psychology struggled so to define them.

It's a bitter and galling thing for a professor—especially a professor of psychology—to admit that he is wrong. Poets and philosophers have been more successful by far than the psychologists. They have generalized—right to the point. Said Burroughs:

"It is a woman's reason to say I will do such a thing—because I will."

And Pope:

"Woman at best is contradiction still."

And Shakespeare:

"Age cannot wither nor custom stale her infinite variety."

At any rate, jaded mathematicians, wearied numerologists and cornered contrivers of conundrums can get some fun out of figuring the numerical phases and startling implications of this feminine flouting of ordinary psychology. For two and two do not necessarily make four in the logic of womanhood, as is evidenced by the examples above recited. Add up the above cases and you'll find more friendships resulting than marriages!

"TANGLED LOVE"—By Margaret Gorman Nichols. Follow in the daily Constitution this story of the Stuart sisters—Noel and Eleanor—and of the man they loved. He had his own ideals of marriage. He thought a husband should be father and lover combined, to a weak and fluttery wife who couldn't powder her own nose without a strong arm to guide her. Sturdy, self-reliant Noel thought that let her out and her weak, selfish sister in. But did it?

Ancient Palaces of the Pharaohs Come to Light at Last

Archeologists have good reason to believe they finally have found the residences of the Egyptian kings of the old Bible stories

By Emily C. Davis

START to name the most famous palaces of history—you won't go far without saying:

"Oh, and the palace of Pharaoh in the Bible! Why, that was where Joseph came from prison to interpret Pharaoh's dreams, and where Moses was brought up by the Egyptian princess who found him in the bulrushes. And where Moses stood before Pharaoh and warned him to let the enslaved Israelites go."

And perhaps you would add, curiously:

"Wonder what that old palace was like."

For in all the centuries that people have told and retold the stories of Joseph and Moses, they have never been able to describe the palace of Pharaoh, or point to it on the map of Egypt.

But now they can, for the palace—or rather palaces—have been found, there is good reason to believe.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York has in its possession several hundred pieces of decorated tiles from Egyptian palaces at el Kantir. And the Museum announces its conviction that "in all probability el Kantir is the city Raamses of the tradition of the oppression."

"In fact," declares H. E. Winlock, director of the Museum, and well-known Egyptologist, "there is ample reason to believe that these tiles come from the walls of the very palaces which—traditionally at least—were the scenes of the stories in the latter part of Genesis and the first part of Exodus."

Making this announcement in the Museum's official bulletin, Mr. Winlock explains that he is not concerned with the historic accuracy of the Bible narratives. That is a different problem. He is saying that whoever wrote down the life stories of Joseph and Moses, long after they had died, knew of the palaces of el Kantir. And these palaces—there were several, it now appears—were chosen by the Bible narrator as the stage for Israelite dramas in Egypt.

"From this stage," says Mr. Winlock, "we have retrieved a few bits of colorful scenery."

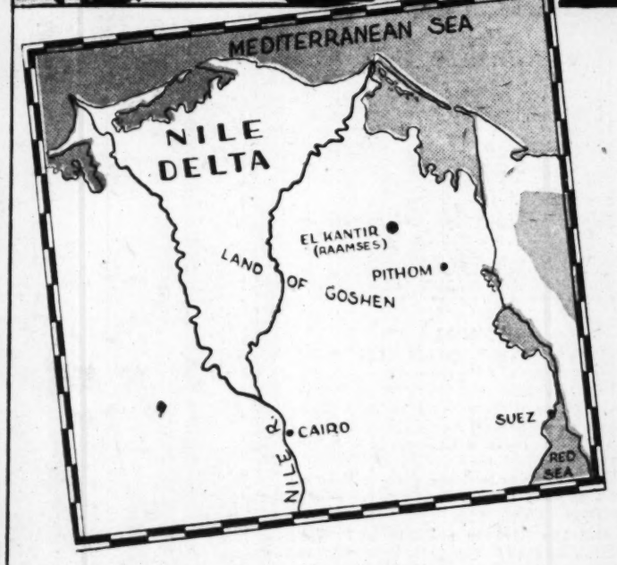

Bits of this rarely interesting scenery have been placed on exhibit in New York at the Museum. They consist of 40 tiles decorated with pictures and belonging to one palace. They show for the first time what the throne rooms of the Bible stories were like, and the sort of pictures on which the eyes of Moses and Aaron rested as they approached the throne to give Pharaoh their defiant messages. The art of the throne room was not calculated to encourage defiance—just the opposite. It was enough to make all subjects of Egypt tremble.

The jigsaw puzzles of broken tiles seem to have led archeologists, at last, to the palace where Joseph came from prison to interpret the Pharaoh's dream.

Another tile that decorated side steps to the Pharaoh's throne, showing a Hittite begging for mercy. . . . At the right, a map showing the situation of El Kantir and Pithom, where the Bible Pharaohs had their palaces.

MR. WINLOCK identifies certain tiles as belonging to the throne surroundings, and his description offers artists and story tellers new details for their representations of Bible Pharaohs:

"Some (tiles) incased the sides of the low platforms on which the Pharaoh's throne was placed, and most appropriately they show foreigners kneeling or prostrate around him—the Negroes and Libyans of Africa, and the innumerable tribes of western Asia, clad in their richest garments.

"Up to each dais went tiled steps on which were portrayed Egypt's enemies, with pinioned arms, lying where the Pharaoh would tread upon their prone bodies whenever he ascended his throne.

"Each newel post at the foot of such a flight of steps would have, molded in green faience, a lion of Pharaoh rampant, grasping a bound captive whose head he gnaws."

The Museum has one of these hungry royal lions from the throne steps. The victim clutched in the strong paws has unfortunately lost his head by breakage, an accident that suggests all too vividly that the lion has already taken a large bite.

No palace has ever before been found in Egypt so extensively decorated in faience—glazed and painted clay tiles and ornaments—as this palace from which the Museum has pieced together 40 tiles. Decorated tiles formed wall borders in state departments. Tiles were inlaid into door and window frames, and the railings of the royal balcony.

In the audience halls, says Mr. Winlock, the subject of the tiled decoration appears always to have been the same: defeated enemies supplicating Pharaoh or trussed up for execution.

These art scenes may have created a formidable atmosphere in their heyday, but they fail to awe modern Egyptologists, who know the weakness as well as the power of Egypt's monarchs of those days.

Mr. Winlock comments: "It was a queer, complacent, ostrichlike attitude that prompted the Egyptian to surround himself with such arrogant decorations when he was only too glad to buy off the enemies he frequently could not defeat."

IN the private rooms of the palace, the king and his household could drop some of the royal arrogance and be themselves. The tile pictures from private apartments suggest this by their attractive nature scenes.

A canal full of ducks, fish, and lotus flowers was a popular art motive, used several times in the informal rooms of the palace. Bits of tiles from one room picture young girls carrying pet gazelles. And probably from bedrooms are parts of a frieze showing the grotesque god Bes, who seems to have had among other duties the task of guarding over sleepers.

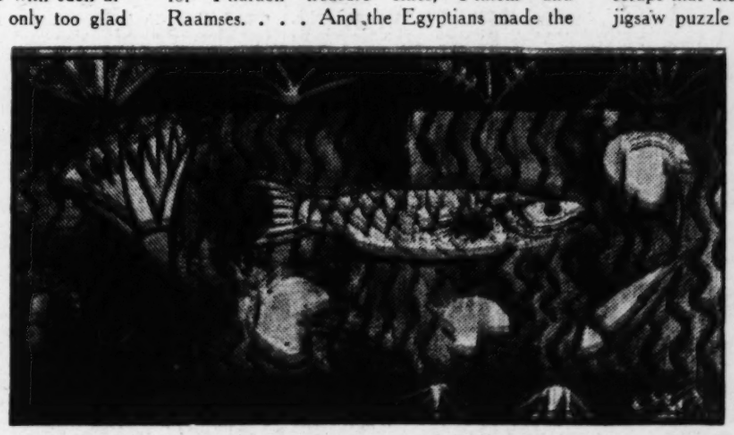

Names of kings who owned the palaces of el Kantir, and the geographic location of the city are the chief clews that link the new discoveries with Bible stories.

Bricks and tiles from the palaces bear the names of Sethy the First, Rameses the Second, Mer-en-Ptah, and many other kings of the 14th to 12th centuries B. C. who reigned during the period generally ascribed to the Bible record. The palaces were thus occupied throughout two centuries, during which time Mr. Winlock finds excellent reason to believe they were the northern residence of Egyptian kings.

Geographically, the palaces fit neatly with the Bible account. El Kantir is just beyond the confines of the "land of Goshen" where Joseph settled his brethren to have them near him while he dwelt at Pharaoh's court. The Israelites were still dwelling in the land of Goshen, in the fertile Delta of the Nile, when a Pharaoh who "knew not Joseph" set them to labor under hard taskmasters. For this hard Pharaoh, the Israelites had to build treasure cities—which sometimes are interpreted to mean garrisons or fortresses.

The Book of Exodus says that "they built for Pharaoh treasure cities, Pithom and Raamses. . . . And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigor: and they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick."

"Perhaps," comments Mr. Winlock, "it was actually while building the palaces at el Kantir that the command of Pharaoh went forth to his taskmasters to give no more straw to the children of Israel for the brickmaking required of them."

In his private apartments a Pharaoh could have less arrogant decorations. Here's a tile filled with lotus blossoms, fish, and other peaceful decorations.

HOW the Bible palaces were identified becomes the newest told detective story in Egyptian archeology.

It began 14 years ago in Cairo. When the Metropolitan's Egyptian Expedition arrived in Cairo that autumn, they were soon being offered extraordinary fragments of faience tiles. A number of antiquity dealers around the city had these remarkable tiles for sale.

Where were the pieces unearthed? the archeologists were, of course, eager to know. All from one place, the dealers admitted. But the place was described vaguely. East of the Delta, was one answer. Near Fakus, was another. El Kantir still another. That last name was a direct clew, the very place to look, but the tile buyers did not realize that then.

The archeologists turned to a Sherlock Holmes examination of their prize purchases, but all they could find that seemed significant was the fibrous plant roots clinging to some tile pieces. That meant the missing ruins would be found in cultivated lands, not barren desert.

The kind of decoration a Pharaoh liked around his throne. One of the ancient tiles showing a Negro kneeling in suppliance to the Egyptian king.

"WE bought all we saw that winter," says Mr. Winlock, telling of the tile adventures, "and when more pieces were to be seen in Cairo during the winter of 1928 and 1929, we again purchased all the fragments on the market."

Meanwhile the Egyptian Antiquities Service trailed the tiles to the "gold mine" of the antiquity dealers, at el Kantir. There the Cairo Museum began digging, and many more broken tile pieces emerged from the sites of ancient palaces.

Some of the scraps fitted directly on to scraps that the Metropolitan had acquired. The jigsaw puzzle that was emerging was not only incomplete, but the pieces were divided three ways. Some were in Cairo, some in New York, and some in the Louvre, in Paris.

The Metropolitan had several hundred of the fragments ranging from "pieces as big as a saucer to chips scarcely as big as a dime." Not one tile that it had was complete, however.

"It was," writes Mr. Winlock, "as though we had taken a dozen pieces out of each of a hundred different jigsaw puzzles, had mixed them all in one box, and then were trying to make something out of them."

But by helpful exchanges with the Cairo Museum, and by inspecting the pieces in Cairo, the Metropolitan finally put its pieces together.

The tiles of el Kantir are not the first exhibits from Bible palaces to reach America. Twenty fragments of ivory, believed beyond doubt to come from the Palace of Queen Jezebel, were brought to this country last year.

By James Aswell

THE counts are broke. The princes have already dived into the orange blossoms with American heiresses. Noble lords spend all their money in politics and income tax. On the whole the European marriage market is distinctly bearish—a washout—in the eyes of today's twinkling cuties of the night club and revue choruses.

But South America! There's a promised land worthy of any platinum blonde's metal—an Eldorado of ranchos and Panchos waiting for beauteous gringoes to capture the available supply of rich muchachos!

And now some sixty of the niftiest nudies in one of New York's brashest and flashiest night clubs have packed their costumes in their vanity cases, flitted to invade Buenos Aires, find gold and romance under the Pampas moon and—they chanted it in their dressingroom—

● "BRING A RANCHER BACK ALIVE!"

The Argentine sent a rush order to Broadway: "Send down 100 Grade A American Girls—blondes preferred—to the Paris of South America!"

The Paradise, that large and tinseled whoopery, was prompt to heed the summons. Nils T. Granlund, tall, droll Entrepreneur of Cuties and ringmaster for the establishment, promptly packed 60 gorgeous dolls ready for shipment South. The dolls, it should be added, were nothing loth. Off they dashed!

Meanwhile the plump and expansive ringside table boys are viewing the decimation of chorus ranks with dismay. How do the Argentinians get that way—stealing all the cream of the Broadway beauty crop? One whole boatload of beauties has already set sail—the first complete New York showgirl shipment ever to cross the Line. Others are restless.

South Americans have been "that way," the fact of the matter is, for some time. Never, perhaps, on a wholesale scale as at present, but the suave tango Cavaliers have before this discovered the piquant charm of American spotlight gals; and more than one chorine has discovered the piquant charm of feudal ranchos, unfrugal pesos and punctual peons to obey the slightest whim of the mistress of the hacienda.

But up to now Chorus Equity, the Federal Government and the State of New York have joined in warning young girls not to accept offers of theatrical employment in South America. "I'll get you a job, dearie, in South America," is one of the oldest lures of the professional white slaver.

Scores of trusting girls have responded to the bait—and disappeared into the backstreet hells of cities below the Line.

But this is all different. Under the watchful eye of N. T. G., who is so sophisticated and able to cope with evil men that should any mercenary wolves annoy his charges he'll have them breaking rock before they can say,

But the pampas millionaires? Will THEY be safe? The girls hope not. Of course they seek romance, too—as what girl doesn't?—but that's easy, where sleek young Caballeros with shining hair and toothbrush mustaches are concerned. In addition, though, they're invading the untapped prairies of the cattle kings with all the lust for adventure and sudden riches which actuated the Forty-Niners.

Before them are a number of glowing precepts and examples.

There was, first of all, the dazzling Leonora Hughes, dancing partner of the internationally celebrated Maurice. A decade ago she met handsome Carlos Ortiz Basualdo, heir to an enormous Argentine beef and mineral fortune—and gifted with all the traditional Latin graces. They were married and divided their time between Carlos' villa on the Riviera and his ancestral acres in the Argentine. She did something else stage beauties are not as a rule eager to do—she set about raising a family for her Carlos.

In recent years Leonora, a leader now in Argentine society, has entertained the Prince of Wales and other world figures, speaks Spanish fluently and is thoroughly contented with her choice of husband.

Maybe the emigres from the Paradise, sixty strong, will be invited up for tea by Senora Basualdo, who has remained democratic and is always eager to extend her hospitality to young hopefuls of show business.

And maybe, too, some of the troupe will corral sleek-haired millionaires of their own and set up housekeeping in the same exclusive suburb in which Senora Basualdo has her town house. That would be clubby.

Some of the better-known Broadway beauties who will sail for glamorous B. A. soon are Beverley Britton—who has won the title of "The Girl With the Most Beautiful Figure on Broadway" and has already been to England with another group of fair invaders; Della Carroll, who has decorated several lavish revues; Violet Carson, Orchid Hansen—who is blonde enough to panic the swarthy Argentinians at first sight; Beebe Lamont, Frances O'Day—"with the Most Beautiful Legs in New York"; the sensational Manners Twins and many others equally glossy.

Meanwhile two complete musical shows have already left for South America. Danny Dare, the famous dance director, has sent a chorus to Rio de Janeiro. Incidentally his premiere beauty, Miss Maxine Darrell, said she had set her mind upon 100,000 acres as the minimum possession of any suitor who'll stand a chance with her. Colette Francis put the acreage even higher.

MORE WHERE HE CAME FROM
Senor L. Ortez Basualdo and His Son Carlos, Who, as All Broadway Knows, Is the Child of the Former Showgirl, Leonora Hughes. Basualdo Represents the Cuties' Latest Ideal.

"Off to South America!" Chant Broadway's Loveliest Nudies, Who Have Discovered a New "Pay Streak" in the Pampas, When Romantic Grandees Strum Guitars and Boss Their Peons Around.

N. T. G.'s troupe is chaperoned by his wife, the former Rose Wenzel of "Vanities" fame. Colette Francis, once reported engaged to Tommy Manville, Jr., is along, doing a specialty with the troupe at Buenos Aires' swank Casino theater and doubling into the Novelty Cabaret, which boasts a grandee at every table, every night.

Now it's true that these girls bound for points South at the invitation of Argentine and Brazilian theatrical bigwigs, sail charmed with the whole idea and nursing half a hundred girlish dreams of romance and millions. But not all the love matches between rich South Americans and American showgirls have been models of felicity.

There was the case of Kathryn Ray, a notable front-row embellishment of musical comedies and former "Miss America." She fell in love (and out of windows) in a hectic romance with Macoco de Alzaga, a dashing playboy Prince of the Pampas. There was a headline almost every day concerning the strange misadventures, quarrels, ecstatic reconciliations of Kitty and her swarthy Romeo of the Ranchos.

But even that tale had a happy end—to date. For Kitty sailed not long ago to rejoin her husband in South America, pooh-poohing the idea that there could ever be anything between them but the most blissful affection.

And, as you remember, Millicent Rogers, daughter of the multi-millionaire H. H. Rogers of the Rockefeller Standard Oil dynasty, first married Count Salm von Hoogstratten. That was no go. She had to divorce and marry an Argentine before she found true happiness. The lucky boy was one Arturos Ramos. His friends tell him he looks just like the late Rudolph Valentino.

So there's precedent, in plenty, to whip up a visiting nudie's interest and spur on her girlish desire for an interesting time. Europe's anaemic Counts, India's globe-trotting young—or not-so-young—Maharajahs—Pshaw! A colorless lot! Not to be compared to a many-acred, mustang-riding, Latin-blooded, guitar-strumming, romantic Argentinian!

But meanwhile Broadway's male stay-at-homes are rather sadly regarding the suddenly-vacated stages and cabaret dance-floors, wondering when the wandering platinums will return—and how. There's rather a shortage of trained showgirl talent just now, and this large-scale loss to the sister-republic in the South comes peculiarly hard. Still—for Broadway habitues are characteristically optimistic—maybe a brand-new crop of floorshow ornaments will result from the departure of the gold-rushers!

All in all, it will be a great adventure for the girls. Between you and me, ninety-nine percent of them will probably come home and marry the handsome truck-driver they knew in school days over on Eleventh Avenue. But the one-in-a-hundred will marry her South American millionaire. And that will be another story for here.

A SORRY QUARTET
Four of the Mob Who Found the "Perfect Crime" Never Works. Left to Right: Arthur (Doc) Barker, Ollie Berg, Harold Alderton and "Rusty" Gibson. The Last-Named Was Slain by the Alert G-Men.

IT was a bleak, bitter day in December, 1934, three weeks before Christmas. Three men sat around a pot-bellied stove in a scrubby section of St. Paul. Snow was falling outside. The weather had all the appearances of developing into a blizzard.

The three men were Alvin Karpis, already a close rival of the late John Dillinger as Public Enemy No. 1. The other two were Fred Barker, a bank bandit turned kidnaper, and his brother, Arthur (Doc) Barker, whose only claim to gangland fame was that he was a brother of Fred and had done some excellent trigger work with a tommy gun.

For weeks these three men planned to kidnap Edward J. Bremer, St. Paul banker, son of Adolph Bremer, brewing magnate and friend of President Roosevelt. It was, as the Department of Justice afterwards found out, a "blueprint" job. Every detail was figured out with the utmost precision. Nothing was going to be left to guess work.

But ironically two things betrayed them: the transparency of a bandage with which they "blinded" their prey, and a section of wallpaper which he saw through his mask of medical gauze—and remembered.

On the morning of January 17, several weeks later, Bremer was kidnaped. He had just dropped his daughter, Betty, 13, off at her school and was on his way to his office when a sedan blocked his path at an arterial highway. Bremer was beaten unconscious when he resisted the two men who leaped out. They shrouded his eyes with goggles, shoved him under the dashboard, and drove furiously away in the Bremer automobile. Then the snatchers and their victim switched to another car, after they had proceeded a mile. The Bremer vehicle was abandoned at this point.

Although the kidnap band had used Bremer's car, they didn't leave a single tell-tale fingerprint on it. They had tossed two cans from their own car but they had left no trace to help the police in their quest.

Several days later, just as Bremer's family were beginning to believe that he had been murdered, a bottle containing a note was hurled through the kitchen window of the home of Dr. H. T. Nippert, the Bremer family physician. In it the kidnapers ordered the doctor to notify Walter W. Magee, a friend of the Bremer family, to look under the garbage can in the rear of his office for a note.

Thus began the negotiations which resulted in the return of Bremer to his family after his father, through Magee as intermediary, had paid over to the snatchers the $200,000 ransom they demanded.

The $200,000 in marked bills was handed over to the kidnapers on Feb. 7. Late that night young Bremer, unshaven, bedraggled and severely shaken mentally, staggered into his father's home and collapsed. It was several hours before the victim could talk to the G-men. Meanwhile the kidnapers, with their 40 pounds of greenbacks, were speeding over the wide-ribboned highways, presumably secure in the belief that they had pulled a "perfect job."

It was perfect except in one respect.

The kidnapers kept Bremer blindfolded every moment of the day and night. They spoke in whispers so that he might not hear and remember their normal voices. The gross mistake they made, according to the G-men, was in using surgical gauze for a blindfold instead of silk or linen or some other closely-woven fabric.

Bremer found he was able to see objects through the gauze without removing it. But he was not able to distinguish the features of the men who stood guard over him. So Bremer hit upon an idea which eventually gave the G-men the break they needed. He studied the wallpaper that adorned the shack in which he was held prisoner.

This wallpaper was of a curious design—one which the clever Bremer scarcely could have forgotten, had he wanted to. The main motif was a fantastic, futuristic tree, boughs asprawl, leaves apparently writhing in a high wind.

There was also a pattern of what looked like cobwebs. In the background there appeared to be a picket fence. Bremer looked sharply—and planted the picture deep in his memory.

After he was released, for ten hours Bremer described over and over the design of the paper. He was able to fashion for experts of the Department of Justice a pattern which was so amazingly like the original that the artist who designed it thought that the composite was his own creation.

Every piece of wallpaper of that particular design was traced. The dealer who sold 10 rolls to a painter recalled that he shipped it to Bensenville, Ill., across the state line. The painter took the G-men to an old shack across the railroad tracks. Of course, Bremer could not identify the shack as his prison for 22 days. But he did recall certain noises he had heard in the neighborhood, particularly the rattle of milk bottles about six o'clock in the morning.

Bremer was taken to the shack after he had given the G-men the approximate time he had heard noises—the nearby whistle of a train, for instance. The pause of the train at the station. The ringing of the train bell. Everything checked up beautifully.

Certain that they had at last located the hideout, the G-men started combing the neighborhood. About 100 yards from the shack they found a flashlight. At first it looked as if it might have been left by a camper. But they sent it to Washington first, and then traced it to a St. Paul department store, and to the salesgirl who sold it to a man whose features she recalled minutely.

"That's the man!" she declared with conviction, pointing to a Rogue's Gallery picture of Alvin Karpis. "I'll never forget him as long as I live."

In almost the same breath, she unhesitatingly picked up the picture of Arthur (Doc) Barker. The G-men knew that Karpis and Barker were leading a band of bandits and kidnapers. Therefore, this identification of the two men out of a batch of more than 100 photographs could not possibly be mere coincidence.

This was the break the G-men had been praying for. They had the shack located and identified as the hideout of the kidnap band. They knew, from the finding of the flashlight, that Karpis and Barker had been in that shack. The chain began to assemble itself in such a way that as each link was forged it became more certain that Karpis had "blue-printed" the Bremer kidnaping, and that he and Barker were the brains of the mob. The G-men kept the wires between St. Paul and Washington sizzling with hot developments. In the White House, President Roosevelt kept himself informed of the progress of the case. The President had personally asked the G-men to spare nothing to "catch the kidnapers of the son of my friend, Adolph Bremer."

With these instructions, the manhunt, the greatest in the history of American crime, was on. Two hundred G-men, most of them looking like young college students, but actually veterans in the Division of Investigation, joined the hunt. Into the slimy depths of the underworld these young "dicks" went. They combed the roadhouses, dives and resorts of the underworld for Karpis or Barker—or both.

On the night of Jan. 10, there was a shooting affray in a dive in Kansas City. The police told newsmen that it was "just a smear." A "smear" in underworld jargon means something unimportant in a news sense. But it was important enough to attract the attention of the G-men and bring to an end the criminal career of Fred Barker and his vicious hag-mother, "Ma" Barker.

From that shooting in the Kansas City dive the G-men learned that the Barkers had rented a house on Lake Weir, Oklawaha, Florida. They went to Florida and got them. Fred and his mother were crushed by screaming machine-gun bullets of the Federal agents. It is reported, and reliably, too, that "Doc" Barker tossed his machine gun at the feet of his mother and ran from the battle with her curses ringing in his ears.

"Doc" Barker spent most of his time after that walking the streets unarmed. It is even told of him that he tipped off G-men to the fact that he would be at a certain corner of a Chicago street, unarmed, and if they cared to get him he would submit to arrest without a fight. While "Doc" was surrendering, his side-kick, Russell (Rusty) Gibson, was being riddled by another squad of G-men who surprised him in an apartment not far from where "Doc" was taken.

Harry (Mean Harry) Sawyer took a long lam to Pass Christian, Miss., but the arm of the G-men reached out to the city on the Gulf of Mexico, snatched Harry and sent him to Leavenworth Penitentiary. Elmer Farmer and Byron Bolton, reputed to be the triggermen of the Karpis-Barker mob, decided, in the face of what happened to Fred and Ma Barker, that discretion was the better part of valor. They surrendered, pleaded guilty, and were sent away for life terms.

In a St. Paul courtroom the other day, "Doc" Barker, shackled to Oliver (Ollie) Berg, Harold Alderton, John J. (Boss) McLaughlin, former Chicago politician, and James Wilson were led before Judge Matthew M. Joyce to be sentenced under the Lindbergh Law.

Barker and Berg were given life. George F. Sullivan, U. S. Attorney and chief prosecutor, asked the court to hold sentence on the others in abeyance. Barker "had nothing to say." Berg had been taken from Joliet prison, where he was serving a life sentence for murder. He too was silent. In a tense and hushed courtroom they heard Judge Joyce thunder to all kidnapers in the United States:

"Kidnaping is the one crime that the people of this country will not tolerate."

And the Judge might have added: "You can't get away with it, with the Department of Justice on the job."

To make the score of the G-men almost perfect, Volney Davis, another member of the Karpis-Barker mob, surrendered in Chicago, was rushed to St. Paul for trial. He confessed conspiracy in the Bremer kidnaping, and pleaded guilty to that charge when arraigned before Judge Joyce.

"I pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge because I knew I couldn't beat the G-men," he said. "I decided that the Government knew just as much about the Bremer kidnaping as I did." There were eleven men and one woman, Edna (Rabbits) Marry, the "kissing bandit," implicated in the Bremer kidnaping. They have all been arrested—all, except Alvin Karpis, who escaped the net spread across the country for him. As this is written he is probably slinking away in some dirty hideout, with machine-gun clutched in his blood-stained hands, ready to shoot it out rather than surrender to dangle at the end of a rope.

"We'll get Karpis and every member of his mob," Chief Edgar Hoover sent assurances from Washington. "We won't sleep until every last one of them is in jail."

Thus will end—for all practical purposes of the law—what society had hoped would be the last major snatch in this new era of kidnapings.

For months, according to a confession by one of the kidnap band, Karpis planned the Bremer snatch. Every detail was worked out with the precision of a general planning an attack before going into battle.

"There was nothing left to chance or guessing," District Attorney Sullivan, of St. Paul, said recently. "Bremer was to be snatched in accordance with 'blueprint' rules. It was to be a perfect crime without a flaw to betray them."

And in the light of events, it appears that the Bremer kidnaping would have been a perfect snatch had it not been for that little patch of wallpaper with its pastoral design that Bremer saw and studied from behind his translucent blindfold.

That little patch of paper told the G-men where Bremer was held prisoner and tortured until the ransom was paid. In the hideout they found evidence which fastened the crime on the Karpis-Barker mob. It put the finger of death on Fred and "Ma" Barker, archfiends of the snatch racket, and sent every member of the gang to jail—all except Karpis—who is probably at this writing living a ghostly death, awaiting momentarily a blast of fire from Government agents.

So, the pet theory of crooks that there is such a thing as a perfect crime is shattered to atoms again.

It just can't be done—not so long as it is possible for snatch victims to make a little scrap of wallpaper talk.

They'll Get Your Dough if You Don't Watch Out

The city slicker is thinking up new ways of separating you from your bankroll. Never before have there been so many glib-tongued gents looking for suckers and easy money

By Jack Williams

GLIB slickers who used to trim suckers out of the family savings with fake oil stock and swampy real estate now are peddling bargain funerals, Utopian homesteads and depression folderols, and reaping a new harvest via scores of new and done-over easy money rackets.

And they still bite. Postal inspectors and Better Business Bureaus estimate there are more persons engaged in the art of sucker baiting and get-rich-quick quackery than ever before in the nation's history. The income of this fast talking, slick-tongued gentry is not so big per sucker as of old so it has taken a leaf from big business; that is, put the suckers on a volume basis.

So it is that few escape the fetching campaigns. The lures come by mail, by agent and by telegraph. Some hope to get only a dime from you. Others want you to sign up for monthly payments. All promise to set you on golden Easy Street quickly.

Illustrative of this new volume system of the slickers is the recent chain letter delirium. The mails have been swamped and clerks, laborers, housewives, office girls, shop girls, office boys and even business men have risked a dime, or maybe a dollar, on one or more of the letters.

The response to the chain letter has demonstrated far beyond any previous get-rich-quick scheme the gullibility of the American public. If lotteries were permitted in the United States it is breath-taking to contemplate the frenzy that would grip the imagination of the public.

In Denver, where the chain letter stunt started, the postmaster had to appeal to the public to let up and let the mails get out of the avalanche of chain letters that swept into the postal channels. Some chain letter addicts held back in fear of federal prosecution. Others sent their letters typewritten with the belief that they could not be prosecuted if they did not sign.

One weak link in the chain letter racket is that such a large number send no money but do send on their own names. The money would gain such rapid circulation if everybody sent the letters and money that it would eat itself up in postage in a few weeks.

The stunt was started by a group that used several names and addresses so they would get all the money coming in for weeks.

ANOTHER widespread racket also is based upon the volume angle as well as the somewhat certain eventuality that all of us will die. It is the currently popular burial racket. It is being worked everywhere, from the smallest rural town to the largest cities.

Most easy money schemes depend upon arousing the lust for riches. But for some reason the bargain funeral racket took in a big way. This is a new and novel approach to the suckers' pocketbooks and may revive the old monument racket.

The funeral scheme slicker poses as a good neighbor and upstanding citizen, anxious to see all men protected against the vagaries of an unplanned and unfinanced funeral.

Federal investigators and Better Business Bureau officials have been stumped by the funeral racket. John Public, they say, has grown sentimental when he can be talked into such a ghoulish "investment."

In brief, the bargain funeral racket is this:

The victim is talked into signing up to pay the measly sum of only $1 a month to insure himself a funeral that will cost $100. It includes a cheap job of embalming. The dollar-a-month sounds little enough for a good funeral. But the funeral peddlers put up no security bonds to guarantee the funerals.

True, the sucker gets a beautifully lithographed certificate assuring him his funeral. Most of the funeral companies are fly-by-nights and they put up no protection for the money they take in.

It is on the latter grounds that some states have moved to run the funeral rackets out. They say it amounts to an insurance company and they must put up bonds to guarantee the carrying out of the funeral contracts. The funeral companies cannot stand that, and move out.

There is one nice thing about the funeral racket; the victim at least never will suffer the humiliation of learning he has been robbed, for he will be in another world when funeral time comes.

Door knockers have been beating a tattoo on front doors for months, buying up old gold. They ask the housewife if she has any old jewelry, ornaments or even gold teeth or fillings for sale.

THE most simple way of victimizing the housewife is in the weighing. The buyer insists that he is the best little gold buyer in America and that he will pay the "government price." To prove his honesty he tells the housewife he will see that her gold is weighed correctly and that he buys it by the government standard, the pennyweight.

He uses a penny, to prove his honesty, on one side of the balance scale and puts the old gold in the other side. Not many housewives know that a cent weighs two pennyweight and she really only gets paid for half of the gold she turns over to the buyer.

The riff-raff and trash of the easy money boys are cashing in on the suffering and heartaches of the ranks of the unemployed.

Two ways are open in this field for the boys who gladly stoop to steal. In one of the rackets the rather direct method of assessing a registration fee is used. The other is worse. The employment agency works with a crooked employer, usually some form of the sweatshop. It works like this:

A man or woman goes into the crooked employment agency and asks for employment. He agrees to repay to the agency 50 per cent of the first month's salary, in addition to the registration fee, if the job is permanent. He signs up an agreement with the agency that a "permanent job" shall be one of 30 days or more duration.

At the end of the month and payment of his fees to the agency he finds he is fired. The crooked employer and crooked agency split and another sucker gets the job to last another month. In this racket the crooked employer gets labor for almost nothing and he usually is the operator of the employment agency under cover.

Very common is the registration fee in the employment office. In the reliable offices this fee is returned if no job is obtained. In others the victim is told he hasn't a Chinaman's chance of getting a job unless he puts up a registration fee. He never gets it back. The agency may move or may declare he never paid a fee.

"Sharing the expense" motor car tour rackets are common in every city, but their violation of law has become so flagrant that they have put their operations more or less on a bootlegging basis.

He uses a penny, to prove his honesty, on one side of the balance scale, and puts the old gold in the other side. Not many housewives know that a cent weighs two pennyweight and she really only gets paid for half of the gold.

ADVERTISMENTS are printed in the paper inviting travelers to go to this or that city and share the expenses of a motorist making the trip. The traveler, thinking he is going to get a cheap trip, makes a down payment. Sometimes that's the last of his money. In other cases the trips actually start but there are so many delays and breakdowns that the traveler eventually gives up and reports his losses to the police.

Newspapers are doing much to break up this racket. They are investigating persons advertising "share the expense" trips by motor cars. In some cities there are bureaus organized to promote this type of travel.

More romantic are the matrimonial bureaus, known nowadays by the more alluring and romantic title of "Widows and Widowers' clubs." Some matrimonial bureaus are used to find some simple-minded but well-to-do old man or woman and then proceed to take their money away from them. The victim gets gushing letters from a fake lover until he or she has told all about his worldly holdings. Then the plucking proceeds in various ways, according to the gullibility of the victim.

(Copyright, 1935

follows another, it seems that the same sort of appeal remains to capture the sucker's imagination—and his money—from year to year, and decade to decade.

This is, after all, the old racket of selling swamp land or non-productive areas. At one time the land peddlers had a vast army of the nation convinced it should retire to chicken farming and a life of rural ease. Probably every suburb in America has been platted for chicken farming and fruit trees.

The lack of money in the pockets of the victims has changed the old land racket to almost a dollar-down basis. But on this basis they can make more sales and here, too, the volume theory is worked out. Few ever will be able to pay for the land contracts trumped up by the slickers and those that do will be again disillusioned. There are reputable land companies but it takes money to buy land.

The victim is talked into signing up to pay the measly sum of only $1 a month to insure himself a funeral that will cost $100. . . . But most of the funeral companies are fly-by-nights and they put up no protection for the money they take in.

SOME others deal in a more catch-as-catch-can variety of love-making by mail. They get pictures and histories, put them together in book form and sell them. There their racket ends. The pictures may not be genuine and the would-be lovers may lie a little about their worldly goods.

But the depression has brought about a shortage of rich old people looking for a mate. At the same time it has created a demand for just that type. So the marriage bureaus have resorted to a new stunt. The victim is told that the bureau can reveal to her or him a perfect mate with lots of money, a farm or a business. But they want a good price for the information. After paying the price the love-sick one discovers that the picture and information he has received are pure fakes.

Women are not being victimized as much these days as heretofore. Rising prices and reduced family income have whetted their bargain instinct. The housewife has to skimp and figure to meet the bills. In fact the army of peddlers at her door almost makes it an impossibility for the house-to-house slicker to get a visit in edgewise.

Disillusioned of attaining fame and fortune, millions in the cities are prospective victims of a colonizaton and homestead racket. These people now seek the security of a small home they may call their own and an opportunity to win their bread and butter from mother earth.

It is not difficult for the dulcet words of the racketeer and shyster to arouse new hope in the tired hearts of these people and, of course, get some of their waning funds. They can point out that even the rich man of today is buying a place in the country. They say that he, too, recognizes the security of living upon the land.

LITERATURE with these heart appeals, of a new life outside the world of worry and trouble, is taking in many down payments and monthly payment contracts. As one generation

The lack of money in the pockets of the victims has changed the old land racket to almost a dollar-down basis. But on this basis they can make more sales and here, too, the volume theory is worked out. Few ever will be able to pay for the land contracts trumped up by the slickers and those that do will be again disillusioned. There are reputable land companies but it takes money to buy land.

The "free lot" racket is being worked as enthusiastically as ever. A housewife goes to a food show or some other event. She writes her name on a slip and drops it in a big box, a free chance on a lot in some real estate addition. Later a man thumps triumphantly upon the door some evening when the husband is at home. He beams when the door is opened.

"Folks, I have good news for you," he exclaims. "You have won a lot in So-and-So addition."

If the husband and wife are wise they will sneer and reply:

"Bring it around and let us look at it."

If they go out to see their lot they will find an undesirable spot back in a gully on the addition. They also will have to pay abstract fees that will amount to more than the cost of the lot. But the trick is to get the "lot winner" to trade his free lot in on one of the better lots, agreeing to pay more money. And the additional investment is exactly what would have been required to buy the second lot in the first place. The "free lot" has been a swell "come-on."

Fake sweepstakes and lottery tickets have been developing as a lusty racket for some time. It is illegal to send the sweepstakes tickets through the mails, but many Americans have bought them; at the rate of several millions of dollars each year. The winners have been given much publicity in motion pictures and the press.

The get-rich-quick boys got busy; printed fake tickets and sold them through agents over the country. Recently several hundreds of thousands of dollars in fake race tickets that were going to be unloaded on the public were seized by federal agents in Kansas City. The racket is being worked all over the country.

The Constitution's Washington Bureau now has for five cents a pamphlet entitled "Motion Picture Stars"—a condensed directory of best-known actors and actresses of the silver screen.

HAS JUSTICE TRIUMPHED?

By PETER LEVINS.

FARMER WILL SAUL came out on his porch just as the big red sedan, slewing crazily in the narrow muddy lane, swung into his barn lot. In the dim morning light, through a curtain of pelting rain, he saw a pretty, bare-headed young woman at the wheel, and in the back seat he discerned a large, lumpy sort of package. No one else was in the car.

The woman had evidently been seeking a place to turn and get back on the highway. As visitors were rare in this isolated region (near Sandersville, Miss.), Will Saul stepped toward the sedan, prepared to meet the woman, and to give her directions in case she had lost her way. But she quickly backed into the road and sped away toward the highway. Saul stood stroking his jaw and wondering what a pretty, well-dressed woman was doing out in this neck of the woods so early in the morning.

Some while later W. E. Kennedy, extension worker of Port Gibson, Miss., was driving carefully along Highway 11 through sleet and rain. Four more miles of driving would take him to Sandersville, 10 more would land him in Laurel, county seat of Jones county.

Up ahead Kennedy saw a woman sloshing along in the mud and as he drew near she waved to him to stop. Kennedy, applying his brakes, observed at once that she was no hitch hiker, for her dark dress and matched fur coat were stylishly cut. Her dark hair glistened from under the coat, which she had drawn over her head for protection from the drenching rain and sleet. She wore no stockings and her high heeled shoes were hardly the thing for trudging in the mud.

Passenger Refused To Talk of Herself.

"Can I help you, ma'am?" inquired Kennedy.

"Yes, my car is stuck in the mud in a side road near here. Would you mind taking me to the next town, where I might get a tow car to pull me out?"

"Maye we can get help at Sandersville," he said.

"I hope so," she said and climbed into the front seat beside him.

Kennedy introduced himself and told where he hailed from. He waited for the young woman to volunteer similar information, but she did not.

As the car approached Sandersville, she said, "If you are going on to Laurel, I believe I'll go with you. I have friends at Laurel and it will be easier to get help there."

Kennedy devoted his attention to the road, which was treacherous, and there was little further conversation. At Laurel she asked him to stop at a certain service station, where she said she could get help. Kennedy stopped and she got out, thanking him.

But as he drove off he noticed that she did not head for the service station but for a large brown house near-by.

Later that morning (Jan. 21, 1935), Don Evans, colored tenant farmer, set out with his two dogs for a bit of rabbit hunting in the woods, near Sandersville. Hardly had Evans entered the woods when one of the dogs, circling ahead of him, stopped short and growled. Evans saw that the dog had halted at two bundles.

They were wrapped in white cloth, resembling sugar sacks. Evans' first thought was that the packages contained spoiled meat. But when he took a stick and lifted the cover from the larger bundle, he observed that the flesh was not beef, or pork, but white—white like that of the white man he had seen killed in a sawmill accident several years before.

Panic-stricken, the hunter dropped the stick, called to his dogs, and dashed home to his cabin. He told his wife of his grewsome discovery, said he wasn't going to get mixed up in no white folks killin', and remained indoors until midafternoon, trying to figure out exactly what he should do in this predicament—tell and get into trouble, or keep quiet and maybe get into worse trouble?

He decided finally that he'd better tell.

Ed Conliff, driving along the highway, saw Evans waving frantically and stopped. His story seemed incredible but his manner was exceedingly sincere. Conliff, half wondering whether he was being led into some sort of ambush, got out of his car and accompanied Evans into the woods, and to the two bundles in the clearing.

Lifting the covering of the larger package, Conliff saw what was apparently the leg of a white woman, severed at the hip and knee. The second package contained the other leg, similarly dismembered.

"Come along," said Conliff.

Evans' eyes widened. "Ah ain't gonna get in no trouble, is Ah?" he wailed. "Ah don' know nuthin' 'bout dis!"

We've got to tell the police."

Conliff drove to Sandersville, sent Evans to notify Sheriff J. C. Basset, of Jasper county, then drove on to Laurel where he informed Chief of Police J. E. Brown. Officers of both counties, who had collaborated in previous investigations, hastened to the scene, which was just inside the Jasper county line. When Brown arrived, deputies and a constable had already reached the spot. Basset got there soon afterward.

The officers' first thought, after they had examined the bundles, was that the other parts of the body might be found in these same woods, or somewhere near-by. But a careful search disclosed no more packages.

Examination of the road revealed the clear tracks of two heavy cars, possibly more. They had entered the road since the rain. Sheriff Bassett judged from the tracks that one car had been mired in the deep ruts and that a second car had pulled it out of the mud. He copied the tread of both cars—the track of the mired car showed a diamond tread flanked by a bead, a common tread in that state.

The severed legs were taken to a funeral parlor in Laurel, where medical experts examined them.

An ax had apparently been the instrument used, for the legs had not been severed evenly. The portion of the right leg weighed 37 pounds and was 19 1-2 inches long; the left portion was shorter and weigher 32 pounds. The doctors judged that the victim had weighed about 170 pounds, was about five feet seven and had borne children.

Police officials of the state launched an intensive investigation. There was a flurry of excitement when it was reported that two colored men in a car had molested two white women near Enterprise, but this lead collapsed when the women were located. Another report told of a missing woman who had not been heard from for several days after a trip to an eastern city. But she, too, was found.

Other dissapointments followed. For several days it appeared that the case would never be solved.

But then a deputy reported to Bassett the story of Will Saul.

The sheriff knew the farmer for a dependable man; he was not the type to tell a cock-and-bull story in order to get his name in the papers. When he heard of the red sedan and the bare-headed young woman driving alone at dawn, Bassett was convinced that he at last had definite clues upon which to work.

Garage Man Knew Woman Who Drove Car.

That same morning a garage man named Duckworth called Chief Brown from Laurel, saying he had towed a car into Laurel the preceding Monday morning, from near the spot where the legs were found. He said he had not connected the car with the supposed murder.

"We didn't talk much on the way out," he said, "but she showed me where she had stalled the car. The bumper was caught on a pine tree. She told me she was driving an old lady home but didn't say who the old lady was." He said he had towed the car to Laurel.

"What kind of a car was it?" asked Brown.

"It was a red sedan."

"Do you know who the woman was?"

Duckworth nodded. "The woman was Miss Ouida Keeton."

"Good God!" gasped Brown. "Are you sure?"

"Positive."

Chief Brown had reason to be shocked. He had known Miss Keeton for years. She lived with her mother, Mrs. Daisy Keeton, who had inherited a large fortune on the death of her husband in a railway accident in 1931. The family history had been a turbulent one, for a brother, Earl Keeton, had twice been indicted for murder, each case having been nol-prossed, and a sister, Eloise, had been twice married, once secretly.

Eloise had first eloped with Rayburn Robinson, who later charged Mrs. Keeton with abducting his bride from a train. He had instituted habeas corpus proceedings against his mother-in-law, and the writ had been granted, but eventually there had been a divorce, and Eloise had remarried.

At this point in the investigation a letter came to Sheriff Bassett at Bay Springs. The letter had been written by W. E. Kennedy, and he described the young woman he had picked up on the road not far from the woods in which the legs were found. The description fitted Ouida Keeton exactly.

Sheriff Bassett and Chief Brown drove to the Keeton home, an attractive but not ostentations bungalow. Ouida Keeton, who was 33, herself, came to the door.

"We have come to see your mother," said Bassett.

"I am sorry but mother went to New Orleans," she replied.

"When?"

"Tuesday morning."

"Have you heard from her?"

"Yes, I got a letter from her in New Orleans."

Bassett asked to see the letter but Miss Keeton, after a search, reported that she must have mislaid it.

The two officers entered the house, and immediately noticed what they described as a "sour, stenchy ordor." They asked to look at her car, and the young woman led them to the garage. There stood a big, red sedan, whose tire markings tallied with the imprints Bassett had found in the road.

"You'll have to come along with us to the county attorney's office, Miss Keeton," said Bassett. "He wants to ask you a few questions."

"I'll be happy to answer any questions he cares to ask me," she replied.

County Attorney Jack Deavours had made only a few queries concerning Mrs. Keeton's disappearance when Ouida suddenly offered a startling explanation of the supposed murder. She declared her mother had been kidnaped while they were driving Monday morning, and that the abductors had forced Ouida to return to town for ransom.

She had hastened to Laurel, obtained $5,000 in bonds, and returned to the place of the kidnaping, where she was blindfolded while the gang informed her that they would hold Mrs. Keeton as a hostage until the bonds were cashed. They told her, she said, that they would release her mother in New Orleans.

Examination of Home Reveals Murder Evidence.

Thoroughly suspicious of the story, Bassett and Brown returned to the Keeton home and made a careful examiniation. Before long they were finding evidence galore—bloodstains on the door-facing and on one of the doors in Mrs. Keeton's bedroom; bloodstains on the fire poker by the fireplace; a "fatty" substance, possibly grease exuded by burning flesh, under the fireplace; and the same fatty substance on a rafter beneath the freshly painted hearth.

Also in the fireplace were a pair of stockings specked with "undigested vegetable matter." Ouida Keeeton was confronted with these discoveries—and then began to tell a new, and much more logical withal horrifying story of what happened to her mother.

She said that her mother had been murdered, beaten to death, by W. M. Carter, her socially prominent former employer, with whom she had discussed the deed for months. Carter, 67 years old, well-to-do businessman, father of three married children, had employed Ouida as his business secretary, and the motive for the killing, according to the young woman, had been that she "wanted more freedom."

Miss Keeton said that Carter took the body, saying he would dispose of it. Later he came back with the legs. "Here's your part to dispose of," he told her. "I've disposed of mine." She said he placed the bundles in her car, instructing her to drop them off a bridge. Instead she had rolled them out of the car in the woods near Sandersville.

"There was no quarrel—no argument," she said. "He just killed her and then threatened to do the same to me if I did not help in disposing of the body."

But what about the evidence in the fireplace? She professed to know nothing about that. Further search by the officers disclosed a buckle, charred bones, and a pistol with three discharged shells.

Neighbors Heard Shots, Smelled Strange Odors.

Neighbors had last seen Mrs. Keeton Saturday evening. They recalled hearing shots and they had smelled queer odors. The investigators were convinced that Mrs. Keeton had been shot and that the dismembered body except for the legs, had been burned in the fireplace of her bedroom.

The community was stunned—doubly so when they learned that Mr. Carter, head of a wholesale supply house and former banker, had been named as the killer.

"There is not a word of truth in Miss Keeton's accusation," said the elderly businessman. "She must be insane."

But he was arrested and locked up in the Hinds county jail in Jackson. Ouida suffered a nervous breakdown soon after she had made her confession and was confined in the Laurel General hospital. They were indicted in February.

On March 11, after 13 days of trial, Miss Keeton was convicted by a farmer jury and sentenced to life imprisonment. Reclining in her wheel chair, and attended by her trained nurse, she showed no emotion on hearing the verdict. Her attorneys won her release on $15,000 bail, pending the appeal, and she was wheeled back to the hospital.

The defense had been that the woman had been insane at the time of the crime.

Carter, still vehemently protesting his innocence, was convicted on June 6 and also sentenced to life. His defense was that he had been made the victim of an insane woman's phantasy and knew nothing of the murder. But the jury took Miss Keeton's final verdict of the crime as the true one and refused to believe Carter. This verdict has also been appealed.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

The Planets--Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

JULY 7—SUNDAY: The best portion of the day will be before 9:46 a. m., and this will be a good time for dealings with friends, and the interests that are usual for Sunday morning. From 9:46 a. m. until midnight care should be taken to avoid misunderstandings. Shun extravagances of all kinds and do not take undue risks if you go swimming this afternoon. People born the last of September and the early part of October may feel moodier than is usual with them.

JULY 8—MONDAY: Before noon the vibrations are favorable in a slight degree for dealings with brokers, bankers, speculations, shipping and foreign affairs. Business connected with liquids, may be transacted with favorable results. The afternoon and evening hours will be more favorable for following routine in connection with finances and business. The influences that are operating now may bring a desire to jump into something without enough consideration, and thereby cause confusion.

JULY 9—TUESDAY: Public affairs or dealings with the public where finances are involved, contracts are to be signed, or where it is necessary to use diplomacy, are especially favored today until 3:31 p. m. Matters involving liquids are not so well favored at this time, and therefore care should be used in dealing with them. From 3:31 p. m. throughout the afternoon and evening favors matters of pleasure, courtship, entertainment, jewelry and where the creative powers are involved. People born the latter part of August and the latter part of October should obtain much social enjoyment, and those born around the 10th of July are likely to have some sudden and unexpected benefit or gain in their lives.

JULY 10—WEDNESDAY: Before 2:42 p. m. you may have a feeling of extravagance and therefore should guard against overdoing in some department in your life. Good judgment seems to go in hiding under such vibrations, therefore, be careful not to arouse enmities among others, don't indulge in excessive conviviality, and be discreet in purchases. From 2:42 p. m. and throughout the remainder of the afternoon and evening favors property interests, real estate, affairs that have been "hanging fire" for some time and old and established people and concerns.

JULY 11—THURSDAY: The things you are most desirous of doing where your personal efforts are concerned should meet with much success this morning until 12:48 noon. People born around the 10th of July and the first part of November will probably be kept very busy with some new business deal, or some desire or ambition will be gratified around this time. Between 12:48 noon and 6:43 p. m. suggests caution in mental work, correspondence, publishing, traveling or dealings with agents.

JULY 12—FRIDAY: The entire day does not favor the beginning of new affairs, especially if these affairs pertain to real estate or those who are at the head of undertakings. But, much may be accomplished in secluded and uncompleted tasks.

JULY 13—SATURDAY: During the entire day and until 8:21 p. m. favors work that is of an original nature, and that requires much independence of action. Social affairs and entertainment are likely to be greatly enjoyed, and people born the latter part of August will find that new friends will react favorably toward them in some way. Vacations started today should prove happy from a social standpoint. The influences after 8:21 p. m. are not so favorable, and therefore if you are planning a trip, try to start before 8:21 p. m.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice Denton Pierson will be glad to send it to you. State your birth month and date (year unnecessary). THE SLAM CONVENTION

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

THE Four-Five Notrump Convention, which I invented nearly two years ago, has more than proved itself. Not only is it used by every player of the Culbertson System but it has been grafted to almost all other systems for the purpose of accurately arriving at slam contracts.

One of the most intersting variations of this convention is when a player holds the kings of every suit that has been bid by the partnership and in addition a a single ace. After a four-notrump bid the holder responds with five notrump.

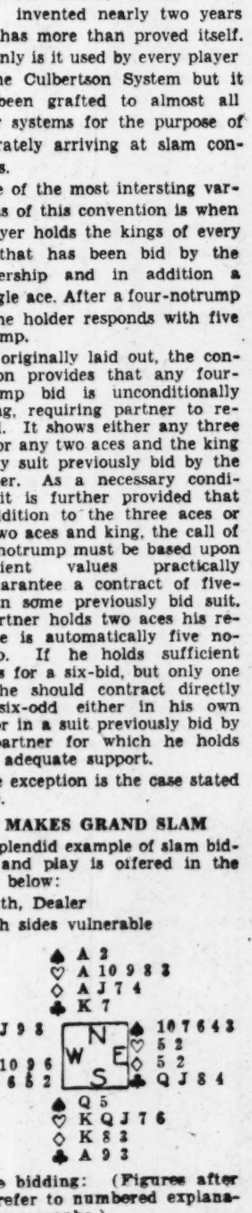

As originally laid out, the convention provides that any four-notrump bid is unconditionally forcing, requiring partner to respond. It shows either any three aces or any two aces and the king of any suit previously bid by the partner. As a necessary condition it is further provided that in addition to the three aces or the two aces and king, the call of four notrump must be based upon sufficient values practically to guarantee a contract of five-odd in some previously bid suit. If partner holds two aces his response is automatically five notrump. If he holds sufficient values for a six-bid, but only one ace, he should contract directly for six-odd either in his own suit or in a suit previously bid by his partner for which he holds some adequate support.

The exception is the case stated above.

MAKES GRAND SLAM

A splendid example of slam bidding and play is offered in the hand below:

South, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3◇(1)	Pass
3NT(2)	Pass	4NT(3)	Pass
5NT(4)	Pass	7♡(5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Forcing the game with strong trump support and 3 1-2 honor-tricks.

2—Not having sufficient values to justify a slam try at this stage.

3—Conventional slam try with three aces.

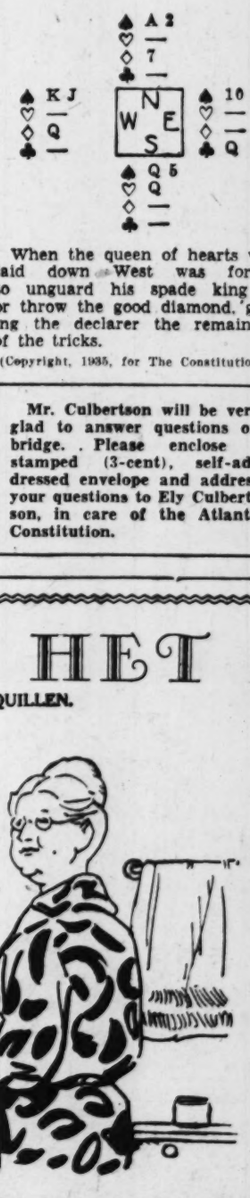

4—The conventional response with one ace and the kings of all bid suits.

5—Slightly optimistic with both the spade king and the diamond queen unaccounted for.

The Play

The opening lead was the heart four, and it was at once apparent the finesse in diamonds must be taken if the contract was to be fulfilled. Three rounds of trumps were taken, the last in the closed hand, and South then led the diamond king and followed with the eight on which the knave was played from dummy. The ace of diamonds was laid down, South hoping for a break in the suit, but when east failed to follow it was apparent West had the suit stopped.

South decided there remained the possibility of a successful squeeze. The ace and king of clubs were cashed and declarer's last club ruffed in dummy. Then the last trump in dummy—the 10-spot—was led and overtaken by the declarer. At this point the hands were:

When the queen of hearts was laid down West was forced to unguard his spade king or or throw the good diamond, giving the declarer the remainder of the tricks.

Paris Presents — Slashed Effects and Printed Fabrics Galore

GRACEFUL draperies and revealing slashes provide smart effects in the character of the new French gowns and frocks for mid-summer wear.

The slashed effects are particularly interesting and, appearing as they do on every type of frock, from the simplest beach costume to the most elaborate of evening gowns, they provide nice detail of line besides revealing intriguing areas of Milady's fair or sun-tanned flesh—as the case may be.

Evening gowns and wraps feature draped effects which are graceful and flattering, and many of the new street frocks borrow the idea, particularly in the effects which are wrought through skirt fullness at the front.

Printed fabrics predominate the summer scene and are equally popular for daytime and evening wear. Molyneux's evening gown illustrated here today is typical of the new mode, a lovely flowered crepe de chine, combining the new draped skirt with slashed chiffon wrap.

Patou Calls the Lovely Print Frock Shown at the Right "Chrysantheme," in Tribute to Its Inspiration. The Chrysanthemums in the Pattern Are White on a Navy Background, and the Sleeves Are Entirely Covered With Them, Cut Out and Sewn On in Shaggy Profusion. A Sash of Navy Crepe Completes the Picture. The Cape Suit of Coarse Linen Features a Stiff Brown Calf Belt Run Through Slashes in the Back.

IF YOU HAD ONLY BEEN ABLE TO GET A GOOD LOOK AT THE MAN THAT GRABBED TESS, JUNIOR, OR COULD HAVE SEEN THE CAR'S LICENSE - THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN A LITTLE HELP.

IT ALL HAPPENED SO QUICK, TRACY.. I DIDN'T HAVE TIME TO THINK. I DO REMEMBER THE MAN THAT SNATCHED MISS TESS HAD A HANDKERCHIEF OVER HIS FACE.. ..AND I THINK THE CAR HAD A LICENSE PLATE.

COME ON, PAT... WE'RE GOING OVER EVERY INCH OF GROUND FROM THAT BRIDGE TO THE PARK DRIVE AND SEE WHAT WE CAN FIND.

YOU'RE OUR PRISONER, MISS TRUEHEART, AND WILL RECEIVE ALL YOUR INSTRUCTIONS OVER THIS LOUDSPEAKER.

OUR REASON FOR TALKING TO YOU THROUGH THIS LOUD SPEAKER IS TO MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR YOU TO EVER IDENTIFY ANY OF OUR VOICES.

NOW WRITE WHAT I DICTATE - "DETECTIVE TRACY: THIS IS NOT A KIDNAPING. THERE WILL BE NO RANSOM. OUR DEMAND IS THAT YOU CALL OFF YOUR GAMBLING-BOOKIE-SYNDICATE DRIVE. YOU HAVE 36 HOURS TO COMPLY OR ELSE! SIGNED X."

THERE'S NO GETTING AROUND IT, PAT! ANY CAR COMING OFF THIS BRIDGE WOULD HAVE TO GO STRAIGHT DOWN THIS DEAD-END STREET.

YOU'RE RIGHT- BUT STILL..

EVEN THOUGH THE STREET IS BLOCKED, TRACY, THEY COULD HAVE SWERVED OVER ONTO THAT GRAVEL BRIDLE PATH AND REACHED THE BOULEVARD.

WAIT! WE'RE GOING TO STOP HERE. THAT LOOKS LIKE MARKS OF A SKIDDING CAR IN THE DIRT!

I'LL TAKE ANOTHER LOOK AT THE BRIDLE PATH.

HM... LOOKS LIKE A CAR DASHED DOWN HERE - THE DRIVER SAW THE STREET WAS BLOCKED.. ..PUT ON THE BRAKES, AND SKIDDED INTO THIS DIRT BANK.. OH! OH! WHAT'S THIS!

PAT, THE CAR THAT CARRIED AWAY TESS TRUEHEART BORE LICENSE PLATE NUMBER M-2053.

HOW IN THE WORLD DID YOU FIND THAT OUT?

LOOK! THE CAR SKIDDED WITH SUCH FORCE THAT THE REAR WAS THROWN AGAINST THIS BANK OF DAMP LOAM! THE PRESSURE CRUSHED THE FENDER AGAINST THE WEAKLY SUPPORTED LICENSE PLATE! WITH THE RESULT THAT M-2053 IS IMPRINTED FOR OUR COMPLETE INSPECTION RIGHT HERE IN THE DIRT.

TARZAN'S AUDACITY

THEIR ENEMIES SLAIN, TARZAN AND THORIK HAULED SYBIL UP THE CLIFF AND BEGAN THEIR PERILOUS TREK TOWARD THE LAND OF THE VIKINGS.

THEIR GOAL WAS MANY MARCHES TOWARD THE DISTANT MOUNTAINS, BUT THEIR PATH LAY THROUGH DARK, DENSE FORESTS.

TARZAN'S JUNGLE SKILL AND SWIFT ARROWS PROVIDED THEM WITH FOOD AND PROTECTED THEM FROM MARAUDING BEASTS.

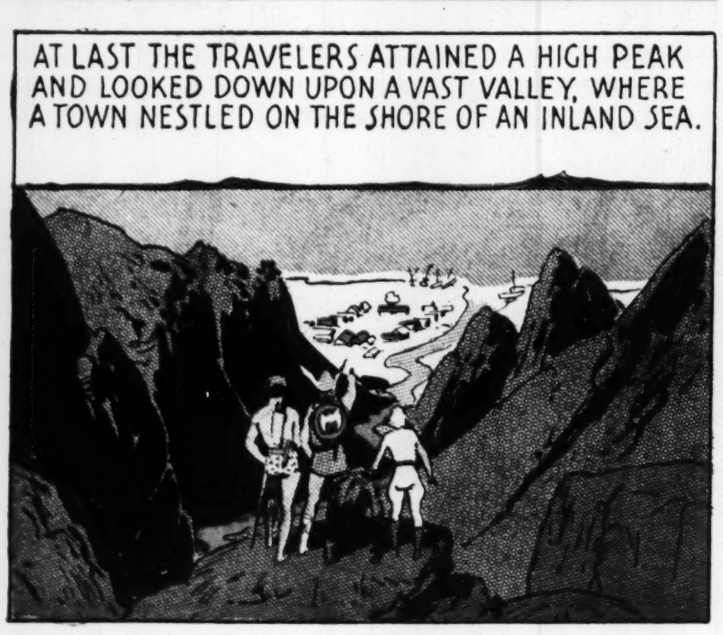

ONE DAY THE JUNGLE LORD SAID TO BOHGDU: "YOU GO SOUTH TO YOUR OWN APE-PEOPLE. WE GO AMONG CRUEL MEN. THEY MAY KILL US ALL!"

THE FAITHFUL BOHGDU ANSWERED: "TARZAN IS KING OF THE APES. I FOLLOW TARZAN, MY KING." THE APE-MAN SMILED.

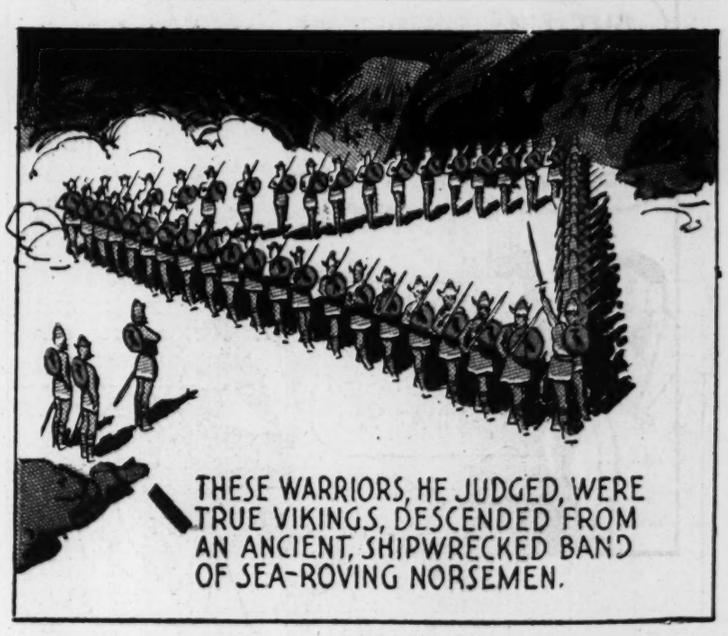

MEANWHILE THE LOVE-STRICKEN SYBIL SOUGHT THORIK'S FAVOR, BUT HE GAVE HER NO MORE ATTENTION THAN COURTESY REQUIRED.

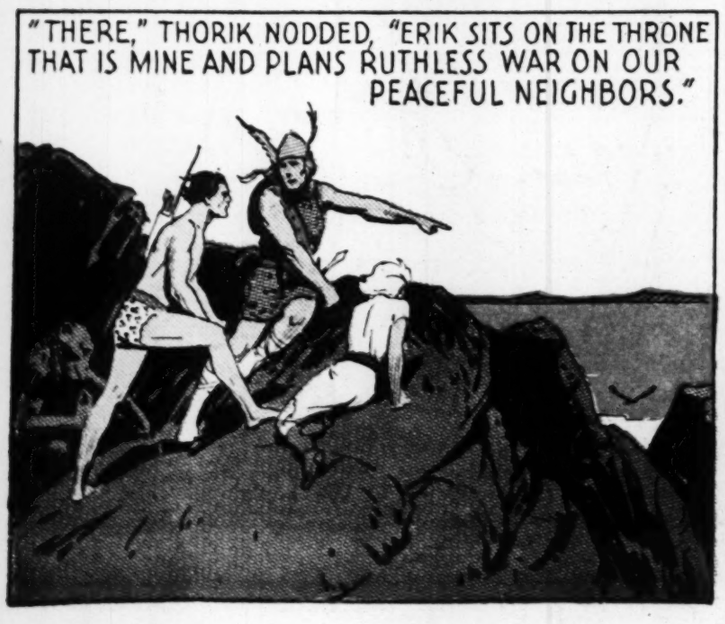

AT LAST THE TRAVELERS ATTAINED A HIGH PEAK AND LOOKED DOWN UPON A VAST VALLEY, WHERE A TOWN NESTLED ON THE SHORE OF AN INLAND SEA.

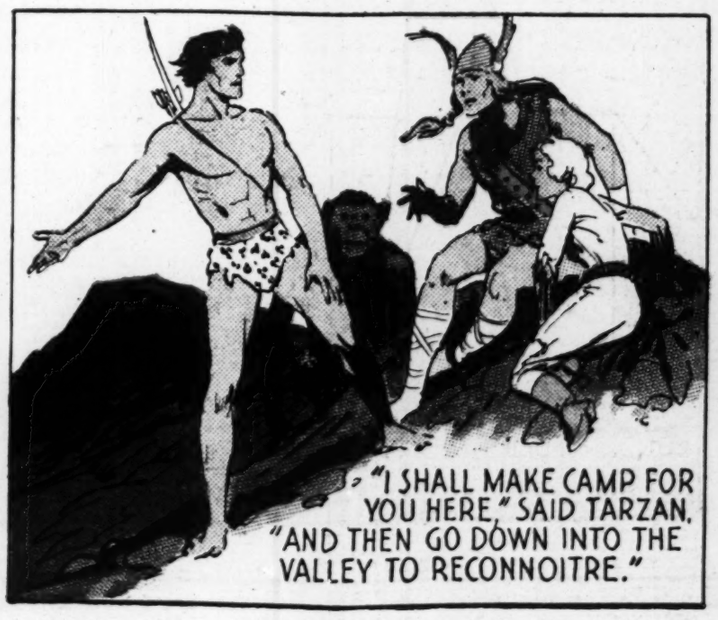

TARZAN'S KEEN EYES CAUGHT THE EXCITED MOVEMENTS OF MANY MEN, SEEMINGLY PREPARING FOR AN EXPEDITION.

THESE WARRIORS, HE JUDGED, WERE TRUE VIKINGS, DESCENDED FROM AN ANCIENT, SHIPWRECKED BAND OF SEA-ROVING NORSEMEN.

"THERE," THORIK NODDED, "ERIK SITS ON THE THRONE THAT IS MINE AND PLANS RUTHLESS WAR ON OUR PEACEFUL NEIGHBORS."

"I SHALL MAKE CAMP FOR YOU HERE," SAID TARZAN. "AND THEN GO DOWN INTO THE VALLEY TO RECONNOITRE."

EVEN THE BRAVE THORIK WAS AGHAST AT TARZAN'S AUDACITY. "YOU WILL BE CAPTURED AND KILLED!" HE WARNED.

Little Orphan Annie

LEAPIN' LIZARDS! THINGS SURE HAVE CHANGED FAST AROUND HERE-

ONLY A FEW MONTHS AGO WE WERE POOR AS BEGGARS- THEN WE FOUND OLD ELI EON ALMOST DEAD IN TH' WOODS- ONLY WE DIDN'T GUESS HE WAS ELI EON-

EONITE

WE THOUGHT HE WAS JUST SOME OLD TRAMP- GEE- WHOEVER COULD HAVE GUESSED HE'D TURN OUT TO BE A REG'LAR FAIRY PRINCE?

TO LOOK AT HIM NOW YOU'D STILL NEVER PICK HIM TO BE A FAIRY PRINCE- BUT HE SURE IS SMART- HELLO, ELI- HOW'S TRICKS?

HELLO, ANNIE-

HEY- WHO ARE THOSE GUYS, WITH THE BIG CAR, WHO JUST WENT IN TO SEE "DADDY"?

OH, THEM FELLERS? FOREIGN DIPLOMATS, I HEAR- CAN'T STAND DIPLOMATS, I CAN'T-

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS- WHEE- C'MON, SANDY- QUICK- MAYBE WE CAN HEAR WHAT'S GOIN' ON-

WE ARE AUTHORIZED BY MY GOVERNMENT TO NEGOTIATE FOR THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF EONITE FOR OUR ARMY AND NAVY- AH--- I ASSUME THIS SUBSTANCE HAS A PRICE-

SORRY, GENTLEMEN- EONITE IS NOT FOR SALE FOR YOUR PURPOSE-

AH- OF COURSE- IT IS PERHAPS TOO MUCH TO ASK EXCLUSIVE USE OF EONITE- PERHAPS FOR ITS USE, SAY ONE BILLION DOLLARS--- AS A BONUS- PLUS YOUR CURRENT PRICE FOR ALL WE MIGHT REQUIRE-

SORRY, GENTLEMEN- IT'S NOT FOR SALE-

PARDON- IT IS A MOST DELICATE QUESTION- PERHAPS SOME OTHER NATION HAS MADE A HIGHER BID? NO? I AM FRANK- WE MUST HAVE THIS EONITE AT ANY PRICE-

VERY SORRY- I'M AFRAID IT CAN'T BE ARRANGED-

BUT, SIR- EVERYTHING HAS IT'S PRICE- AND THIS EONITE- A SHIP ARMORED WITH EONITE WOULD BE IMPREGNABLE TO THE LARGEST SHELLS- IT WOULD BE UNSINKABLE-

THAT IS QUITE TRUE- AND CANNON OF EONITE WILL BE TEN TIMES MORE POWERFUL THAN ANY EVER MADE BEFORE-

YES- THE NATION WHICH POSSESSES IT MAY RULE THE WORLD- IF ONE NATION POSSESSES IT, ALL MUST POSSESS IT, FOR THEIR OWN PROTECTION-

I SHALL FURNISH, AT COST, TO MY OWN NATION ALONE, ALL THE EONITE REQUIRED FOR MILITARY DEFENSE- I SHALL NEVER PROFIT ONE CENT FROM EONITE, AS A WAR MATERIAL-

AH, BUT YOU ARE CRAZY-

. THERE ARE BILLIONS IN IT-

THE MAN IS QUITE MAD-

NO- I'M NOT CRAZY- I MERELY PROPOSE TO BE A DECENT, HONORABLE AND PATRIOTIC CITIZEN- GOOD DAY, GENTLEMEN-

Maw Green

OH, NO ONE CAN HAVE THE SLIGHTEST IDEA OF HOW I SUFFERED- COULDN'T SLEEP- COULDN'T EAT- IT WAS TERRIBLE-

THE WORST OF IT WAS THAT CONSTANT, AWFUL PAIN IN THE NECK I HAD- THEN DOC CUT OUT MY TONSILS AND THREW 'EM AWAY-

HUH- SAM AND HIS TONSILS- GAVE HIM A PAIN IN TH' NECK, EH? EVER SINCE HE HAD 'EM OUT THEY'VE BEEN GIVIN' EVERYBODY HE MEETS A PAIN IN TH' NECK-

AND THAT DOC HE HAD- HE SURE MADE A TERRIBLE MISTAKE WHEN HE CUT OUT SAM'S TONSILS AND THREW 'EM AWAY-

HAROLD GRAY

HE SHOULD O' CUT OUT SAM'S TONSILS AND THROWN SAM AWAY-
